Hack, Mick	Rough On Rats That, Not Epilepsy, Caused The Death Of Mick Hack
	Louisville, Ky., March 9 It developed Sunday that Mick Hack, a tobacco worker, who died Saturday night, swallowed "rough on rats," immediately after the death the coroner pronounced death due to epilepsy. Dr. J. P. Ferguson, who attended Hack, says he attended the man who swallowed "rough on rats" because his friend William Denton committed suicide by swallowing carbolic acid one day last week.

Haddon, Susie	The Winchester Sun January 4, 2012 Horrible Accident. Susie Haddon Has Both Legs and Arms Cut off by Freight Train.
Traudon, Suste	One of those accidents which makes the spectator sick with horror and which, unfortunately, are so frequent on railroads, occurred near the depot Thursday morning.
	On the early Kentucky Central train, among other passengers, were Mrs. Lou Haddon, her step daughter, Susie Haddon, aged thirteen, and two little stepsons, aged about eight and ten years. They were the family of Wm. Haddon, who lived near Bailey's Switch, Knox county, and were on their way to visit relatives in Estill county. They left the K.
	C. road at this point in order to take the K.U. road to Bowen, the nearest railroad point to their destination. As they were crossing the C. and O. track, the mother was pointing L	, and a second of the pointing out the location of the K.U. depot, and none of the party noticed a freight train backing down upon them until it was nearly upon them. The girl was struck and horribly mangled, the right arm was cut off at the shoulder and the right leg at the hip. The left arm was mangled at the wrist and the left leg near the ankle, and the left foot was also crushed. Besides, she was otherwise bruised. Notwithstanding these terrible injuries she lived for two hours, being conscious all the time. In attempting to save her daughter, Mrs. Haddon had her leg badly broken at the ankle, the bones protruding through the flesh. The two little boys were not hurt. Medical aid was summoned at once and all was done to help the sufferers. Mr. Lewis, the Superintendent, came up from Lexington and humanely ordered that everything possible be done at the road's charge. A number of ladies, among them a number of the King's Daughters, took charge of the little boys and ministered to the suffering woman. As the husband and father lived at some distance from the railroad, he could not be found for some time, but came the next morning. Coroner Alexander summoned a jury who, after hearing the testimony, brought in the following verdict: "We, the jury, find from the evidence that Suse Hadden, whose dead body is before us, came to her death by a freight train on the Chesapeake and Ohio railway running over her on the morning of August 11, 1892, near the depot in Winchester, Ky. Haggard, Augustin Louis		Death of Judge Haggard Augustin Louis Haggard died at his home Pinchem Friday night of bladder disease, aged nearly sixty-seven years. He has been a great sufferer for a number of years. The funeral was preached at Mt. Olive church Sunday by Rev. B. B. Bailey and the remains were interred in the family graveyard near by.

		For many years he had been a prominent figure in business, church and political matters of the county. He was at different times County Judge, Master Commissioner, Circuit Clerk, etc., and filled all these offices ably and well. On other occasions he was defeated after contests that are still memorable in the annals of politicians. But in victory or defeat he was always pleasant, affable and courteous and possessed in a high degree the power of attracting and retaining friends.
		Early in Life he united with the Old Indian Creek Baptist church and when Mt. Olive church was constituted he was one of the original members. During all these years he was a consistent and prominent member.
		Early in life he married Mrs. Lou Ann Mullins, who died about six years ago. A few years later he married Mrs. Mary Haggard who survives him. He leaves three sons, Judge Rodney Haggard, D. Shelt Haggard and Gordon Haggard. An only daughter, Mrs. George J. Hunt, died a few years ago. He was a true type of the old fashioned Kentucky gentleman, and his home was synonymous for hospitality. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, December 24, 1895

Haggard, Bartlett Shepherd	The last survivor Death of B.S. Haggard – The last of the Mexican war veterans in the county Bartlett Shepherd Haggard died of they decay incident to old age Wednesday evening, at the home of his brother, George W. Haggard near the Boonesboro pike, aged eighty- two years. The funeral will be held at the family residence this morning at ten o'clock, and the remains will be buried in the family graveyard. His wife, who was Miss Bush, died many years ago, and he leaves no children. Two brothers, George W. of this county and Enoch, of Texas, survive him. For many years he was a prominent business man of this city and county and was also in business in Cincinnati and Louisville. He was a veteran of the Mexican War and so far as we know, the last survivor in this county. He was highly esteemed by a large circle of friends and acquaintances. The Winchester Democrat Friday, December 17, 1909
	One more left In commenting on the death of B.S. Haggard which occurred recently, we said he was the only survivor of the Mexican war in the county. The Clay city times says that Eld. McIntosh, who recently moved to this city from Clay city, was a soldier in the Mexican war.

Haggard, Garrett
	At his home near Allensville Monday, or paralysis or heart disease, Garrett Haggard, aged about 72 years. He was out in the field apparently as well as ever, and sat down on a stone. He fell over without warning and in a little while was dead.
	During the past year three of the same family have died under similar circumstances;
	Mrs. Judge Allan, John Haggard and Garrett Haggard, of this county, Martin Haggard, of Fayette, and a sister in Tennessee. Mrs. Twyman is ninety-one years old.
	The Winchester Democrat, Friday, November 9, 1894.
	H. R. Watts, auctioneer, reports the Administrator's sale at Garrett Haggard, Nov. 24, as follows: Six-year old work mare, $46; dry cow, $15, two yearling heifers, weight 600 lbs., $13.00 a head; heifer calf, $6; sixteen plain ewes, $1.60 each; fat hogs, weight 275 lbs., $4.00 per hundred; shoats, weight 80 lbs., $2.60 each; corn in field, $2.05 per barrel; fodder, 6¢ per shock. Household goods brought good prices.

Haggard, J. J. Haggard, J. Mason	The Winchester Sun Wed., 2-24-1926 SAD SUICIDE; Sunday afternoon the citizens of our city were horrified to learn of the
Haggard, J. Mason	death of J. Mason Haggard, so long a familiar face about the store of Squire Bloom. His death was the result of knife wounds inflicted by his own hands. He was last seen about one o'clock in the afternoon and two hours later was found in an outhouse in the backyard of Bloom's store with his throat cut. From indications he had made several attempts before making the decisive stroke. Coroner Alexander held an inquest and the jury returned a verdict in accordance with these facts. Mr. Haggard was sixty years of age, and was never married. He was a royal Arch Mason, but for some years had not been in active affiliation. Deputy Sheriff, C. T. Haggard, and County Clerks Joe B. and
	W. N. Ramsey were his nephews. His remains were buried at the cemetery Monday. Rev. Richard French officiating. The Winchester Democrat; Wednesday, September 10, 1890

Haggard, James H.	Aged citizen dead
	James H. Haggard, a prominent citizen passes away – Funeral services this morning James Harvey Haggard died Sunday afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W.H. Tucker, of complications resulting from old age, aged eighty-seven years. The funeral will be preached at ten o'clock this morning at the Baptist church by Revs. T.J. Porter, Richard French and J.W. Harding and the burial will be in the Winchester cemetery. The following will be the active pall bearers: Stuart Haggard, Claude Haggard, Sidney Tucker, Lee Evans, Robert Moss and Dallas Dunnigan. The following will be the honorary pall bearers: Geo. J. Hunt, J.W. Hunt, S.P. Hunt, J. Harvey Hunt, J.J. Gilbert and W.D. Strode. The deceased was well and favorably known, and with the exception of Clinton S. Haggard, of Texas, was the last of a large family. His wife, formerly Miss Hunt, died about three months ago. He leaves one daughter, Mrs. Tucker, and four sons, Sidney A., Jeptha J., James D., and Clay F. Haggard. The Winchester Democrat Tuesday, June 7, 1910
	M.H. Haggard, of Georgetown, was here Tuesday to attend the funeral of his kinsman, Jas. H. Haggard. The Winchester Democrat Friday, June 10, 1910 County court items Will of Jas. H. Haggard probated. Geo. J. Hunt, A.T. Tucker, and W.O. Parrish appointed appraisers of the estate of Jas. H. Haggard.
	Will probated The will of Jas. H. Haggard dated May 16 th , 1906, was probated Monday. After payment of his debts and burial expenses, all his property was left to his wife, Mary E. Haggard, except twelve shares of Winchester Bank Stock, and she was to have the income of this during life. After her death three shares was left to Jeptha J. Haggard, three to Jas. D. Haggard and six to Sidney A. Haggard in trust for the children of Jas. D. Haggard. This was to be given to these children at any time after they are twenty-one years of age, when the trustee and W.H. Tucker may see proper. Nothing was left to Clay Haggard, Sidney Haggard and Mrs. Nannie Tucker, as they have already had their share. W.H. Tucker is devised half the testator's lot in the cemetery. Sidney A. Haggard is named as executor without bond, and it is requested that he be allowed to act as trustee for J.D. Haggard's children, also without bond. 	EXPIATION. Bob Haggard Pays For His Crime With His Miserable Life. Taken From the Jail and Hung to the Muddy Creek Bridge. All the laws which govern our land are not found on our statute books. The statutes say that for a successful attempt at rape the penalty may be death, or confinement in the penitentiary for a term varying from ten to twenty years; for an unsuccessful attempt, imprisonment from two to seven years. The unwritten law says that the violation of a white woman's honor by a lecherous black brute, shall be visited by death, swift, terrible and inexorable. In accordance with this law, none were surprised at the events of Monday night, and nearly everybody approved of the result. During the day vague rumors of a mob could be heard at intervals, but nobody seemed to know much about it. The first positive information was late in the afternoon when Judge Haggard received a telegram from Ford signed "Confidential Friend," informing him of the approach of the mob and advising that the jail be guarded. Sheriff Hodgkin and Judge Haggard had a lengthy consultation after which the Sheriff summoned a civil posse. Shortly after, the men summoned were dismissed and Company A., of the State Guards, under the immediate command of Capt. Harry Strother, was called out and placed under the control of the Sheriff. The boys had been using their guns simply for drill and had no ammunition. After some time ammunition was procured but it did not fit and could not be depended on.

The streets were lined with citizens, expectation was intense and rumors of all kinds filled the air. Just at midnight a number of men marched up Maple and Boone streets to near College where they were met by those coming in from the country. After a halt of a few minutes they started for the jail. At this moment the electric lights were turned off and the city was left in total darkness. The sympathy of the people was plainly with the mob and as they neared the jail their numbers were rapidly augmented until by the time the jail was reached, the jail yard and space in front of the jail was filled. In view of the impossibility of coping with this large number. Sheriff Hodgkin wisely yielded to the inevitable and did not order out his little handful of guards. He went to the head of the steps leading to the jail and in the name of the law, ordered the mob to disperse. Judge Haggard also made a short speech invoking the majesty of the law, and pleading that it be allowed to take its course. They were accorded a respectful hearing, but nothing more. By this time Jailer Butler Robinson had been overpowered and had given up the keys to the cell. An entrance was quickly effected, but as the door was opened, the prisoner leaped out in a vain effort to escape. He was clutched by a dozen hands and a shout from the crowd proclaimed that they had secured their prey. Up Court street to Main, out Main to Hickman and along Hickman to the bridge of Muddy Creek pike over the Kentucky Central railroad, where a halt was made. The crowd had a rope and it was soon around the neck of the doomed man. His feet and hands were tied, and the rope made fast to the railing of the bridge. The drop was about four feet, but some doubts existed as to the strength of the rope and he was gently lowered to die of strangulation. The crowd lingered awhile to be sure that he was dead and then quietly dispersed. No attempt at concealment was made by any member of the crowd; it was very quiet and orderly, there being no shooting, no swearing and very little shouting. The leaders had the quiet, determined air of those who had an object in view and were determined that it should be accomplished.

The negro made no outcry at any time but seemed dazed with fright. Before he was hung he was asked to make a statement, but made no effort. When asked directly if he was guilty he said he was not. Some one then suggested that he be allowed time for prayer. He began in an incoherent manner but his words soon died away in a moan. The body was left swinging from the bridge. It was thought by the railroad officials that it would be struck by passing trains and shortly after three o'clock Tuesday morning Coroner Crim was notified. The body was cut down, a jury impaneled and an inquest held, the verdict being that he came to is death by hanging at the hands of unknown parties.

No one appeared to claim the remains and they were buried by the county in pauper cemetery.

The Winchester Democrat, Friday, July 19, 1895.

WHEN the lynchers opened the jail for the negro Haggard Monday night, another prisoner confined there was frightened nearly to death. This was Robt. Hocker, a negro who was indicted for the seduction of Sallie Walker, a young colored girl. Hocker was captured in Lincoln county a few days ago and lodged in jail here. Although importuned by the girl's relatives to marry her, he refused to do so until after the visitation of the mob, when the consequences of his sin was brought so vividly before him that he gladly consented and the pair were married next day. Winchester's Police.

Chief Madagan and his gallant deputies are excellent officers and Winchester should feel proud of Matt, Cliff and Newt. The latest and best display of their noble work was in saving the company of State Guards from the clutches of the angry mob that hung the negro. Bob Haggard.-Mt. Sterling Gazette.

TO HANG

The Death Penalty Given to Dillard Rainey.

The Murder of Aaron Adams to Be Avenged. The Majesty of the Law Vindicated. Not in a spirit of vengeance; not with an outburst of wrath nor with the savage senselessness of mob violence; but with the calm, dignified majesty of the law has the blood of Aaron Adams, which cries from the ground, been avenged, or will be when the sentence of the law is executed. A thrill of horror went through our people when the causeless, cruel murder was committed, and when the news spread Saturday that the death penalty had been awarded the murderer, there was a verdict of assent almost universal, and the only regret was that Matt Rainey, the prisoner's father, did not receive the same sentence.

The crime was a most atrocious one, and with no mitigating circumstances. Matt Rainey and James Henry had differences concerning a piece of land near the mouth of Upper Howard's Creek, and Henry had placed Frank Haggard in possession as a tenant. Rainey hauled the fence from around Haggard's garden leaving it open to the stock. Haggard hauled the rails back again and a quarrel on the 13th of last May in which Rainey shot Haggard inflicting a wound that it was thought would prove fatal. Mrs.

Haggard saw Aaron Adams passing along the road and asked him to go for a doctor. Adams went after Dr. T. S. Allen, who lived near, and returning with the physician half an hour later, he was met by Matt Rainey and Dillard Rainey, father and son. Matt was armed with a gun and Dillard with a pistol. The former raised his gun to shoot Adams, but was prevented by Dr. Allan. With an oath he told his son to shoot and the latter did so. As Adams sank down pierced with a number of balls, Matt Rainey savagely tried again to shoot him. Deputy Sheriff Eperson was in the neighborhood and arrested Matt Rainey at once. Dillard escaped, although the officers once got close enough to shoot at him. He went through the mountains and was finally arrested at Roanoke, Va., under an assumed name. Matt Rainey was tried last fall and got a life sentence. He took an appeal and since has been in jail here. Two or three feeble attempts were made to mob him here last Spring but they lacked leadership. Since he has been in jail he has incurred the illwill of the officers and fellow prisoners all whom concur in saying he is the meanest man with whom they have ever had dealings. The trial of Dillard Rainey began last Tuesday. The evidence closed Thursday at noon and was argued until the next morning when it was given to the jury, which brought in a verdict of guilty and fixing the death penalty the next day. When the prisoner heard it he turned deathly pale and seemed almost overcome. He soon recovered and was taken back to jail cursing the jury and vowing that he would never be hung. Neither of the prisoners have ever shown any remorse for the poor widow and the six helpless children. This will make the second sentence pronounced by Judge Scott, the other being the negro Will Taylor, who was hung for the murder of Squire Doty, in Madison county a year or two ago. If Rainey is hung it will make the fourth legal hanging in the county, and the first white man to be hung. Many years ago Jesse Winn, a negro, was hung near where Col. R. N. Winn's residence now stands, for the murder of Wm. Emerson, a white man, who owned him or had him In August, 1839, a young negro named Knight was hung on the Lexington pike near F. H. Dudley's. He belonged to Mr. Morris who lived on Stoner and had committed a rape on a little white girl. In April, 1841, a negro man, belonging to Daniel Spar, broke into a house and disemboweled his wife. The latter got well, but the negro was hung for housebreaking. The negro woman belonged to Geo. Anderson and her assailant was hung near the far end of the C. and O. trestle on the side of Poynterville. In November, 1850, Thomas Nichols killed his master, Fred B. Nichols, at a rock quarry on the Lexington pike. He was hung about Christmas of the same year. The late Wm. Simpson was Sheriff at the time, and not liking the job of hanging the negro, he employed Marsh Lawrence to tie the rope. A year or two later Marsh Lawrence was killed by his brother, Jack Lawrence. The latter fled to Missouri, but was caught, brought back and sentenced to be hung. He was the first white man in the county to receive the death sentence, but was finally pardoned by Gov. Powell. About seventeen years ago, Ben. Plunkett was lynched, being hung to a tree in the Courthouse yard, the charge being an attempt assault on Miss Annie Ball, now Mrs. Bradford. In the fall of 1895 Bob Haggard was hung from the bridge on the Muddy Creek pike for a similar assault on Miss Elkin of near Ford. No motion has yet been made for a new trial, but this will be done. Since the death penalty has been given to Dillard, his father says he does not wish a new trial, but is inclined to accept the life sentence given him last fall. The general opinion is that if he should secure a new trial he would also be hung. The Winchester Democrat. Tuesday, February 16, 1897. The Winchester Sun Thur., 9-10-2009 The Winchester Sun Fri., 5-2, 5-3-1997 The Winchester Sun Wed., 10-22, 10-23-1969 Judge Rodney Haggard. The Lexington Herald of Tuesday contained a portrait of Judge Haggard and the following sketch of his life: "Judge Rodney Haggard, the well known attorney of Winchester, is a native of Clark county. In 1862 at the age of 17 years, he joined the Buckner Guards, Kirby Smith's command, Confederate army; and was soon after commissioned as a recruiting officer and with others raised 'the first company for Chenault's regiment of General John Morgan's command. His uncle Gordon C. Mullins, was elected captain and he lieutenant. He served in that command until the surrender of General Morgan at Salineville, O., at which time he was in command of the remnant of the regiment, all his superior officers having been either killed, captured or wounded. He was then taken prisoner and held until the close of hostilities. 'Judge Haggard was elected high Sheriff of Clark county in August, 1866, the first election at which he was old enough to vote, and the youngest man that ever held office in the State of Kentucky. He was re-elected, and was the first, or among the first, each year to settle his accounts. He afterward graduated at the Louisville law school and has been in active practice of his profession for nearly thirty years, and has enjoyed a good practice. In 1880 he was elected, without opposition, to the State Senate from the district then composed of Clark, Montgomery and Bourbon counties, and served as Senator for four years and made an admirable record. He was elected Judge of the County court of Clark county in 1893, to fill an unexpired term and again in 1894 for a full term. He was a Democrat and never scratched a ticket until 1896, when he voted for Palmer and Buckner. He devotes all his time to the active practice of his profession, except what time he devotes to public interests. He has always taken a deep interest in

"Judge Rodney Haggard is an excellent illustration of success in several vocations. He was a most gallant and meritorious soldier, a model Sheriff, a popular and efficient County Judge, an influential and wise Senator, and an unusually successful practitioner of law. He is an earnest, frank, brave citizen, who participates in all the movements which are of interest and importance to his county or State or country; and freely gives his time, his labor and his money for good causes. At the recent meeting held in this city to consult as to what steps ought to be taken to better organize the opposition to the Goebel law and secure its repeal, he was unanimously chosen chairman. BY HIS OWN HAND.

Judge Rodney Haggard Puts a Bullet Into His Brain.

The community was doubly shocked Saturday morning. To the verified news of President McKinley's death, which was not unexpected, was added the tiding that sent a thrill of horror to the hearers, that Judge Rodney Haggard had died by his own hand. For some time business and domestic troubles had preyed upon him and his mind had evidently become unbalanced and in this condition he took his own life. Friday night he returned, but it is said, did not go to sleep, and before day he arose, partially dressed himself and went to a fence in the rear yard of his home on West Broadway; he placed a pistol in his mouth and pulled the trigger, the ball passing through the brain and out near the top of his head. His death must have been instantaneous. When his wife awoke he was missing and she found him in the yard dead. Coroner Willis was summoned, but the evidences of suicide were so plain that no jury was needed and his verdict was in accordance with the facts above given. The funeral was preached Sunday afternoon at the residence by Rev. B. B. Bailey and the remains were buried in the Winchester cemetery. He was a member of the United Confederate Veterans and the Winchester Lodge of Elks. He had also for many years been a member of the Baptist Church. The funeral was probably more largely attended than any funeral ever held in this city. The services at the house were brief and at the grave the burial service of the Confederate Veterans was read by Mr. Bailey, followed by the burial ceremonies of the Elks led by the Exalted Ruler, T. Landsberg. A brief but touching eulogy was pronounced by Col. Breckinridge, of Lexington, a lifelong friend of Judge Haggard. He leaves a wife, formerly Miss Eliza Baldwin, five sons, Leland, Frank, John, Rodney and Wheeler, and two daughters, Mrs. Annie McFarland, of Simpson county, and Miss Mary Haggard, of this county. He was the son of the late Judge A. L. Haggard, of this county and has many relatives in the county. He was always a man of strong impulses, and though but a boy when the civil war broke out, he cast his fortunes with the south, and was chosen as first Lieutenant of Co. A, 7th KY, Cavalry. His company was commanded by his uncle, Gordon Mullins, and his regiment by Col. Chenault. He made a splendid soldier and was very popular with his comrades. He was captured in the Ohio raid and was sent to Johnson's Island where he remained until the close of the war. When he came home he was nominated by the Democrats for Sheriff before he became of age; he taught school for a while and was elected and reelected Sheriff. In the meantime he studied law and attended the Louisville Law School. He was admitted to the bar in 1873 and at one time took high rank at the bar and secured a lucrative practice. In 1880 he was chosen State Senator and was one of the most influential men of that body. He was the author of the famous Equalization Bill, one of the best laws enacted for many years. When Judge Marcus Lisle was elected to Congress, Judge Haggard was chosen to fill out the last year of his unexpired term as County Judge and was elected for the following term also. In 1890 he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress from this district and was defeated principally by the efforts of the Farmers Alliance which was a power in Democratic local politics at that time. Up to 1896 he had been one of the trusted leaders of the Democracy of Clark county, but at that time he refused to support Bryan and the Chicago platform and has not been identified with the party. In 1897 he headed a fusion ticket for county offices composed of Republicans and gold Democrats, but was badly defeated and since that time he has not been prominent in politics. For a while he was a member of the board of Education of this city and was a valued and conservative member. We learn that he made his will Friday, providing for an inexpensive funeral and leaving all his property to his wife. Judge Haggard was a man of warm generous impulses, who made friends and who served them faithfully, and his memory will long be cherished by them.

A TRIBUTE-RODNEY HAGGARD.

Col. W. C. P. BRECKINRIDGE in Lexington Morning Herald, Sunday. This afternoon at three o'clock at Winchester the funeral of our friend. Judge Rodney Haggard, will take place. We have not heard any of the particulars of his death, except the simple fact that about four o'clock Saturday morning he left his wife's room, and not returning he was looked for and found in his yard dead. Evidently the ball which produced death had been fired into his mouth and passed out at the base of the brain. Our friendship for Rodney Haggard began immediately after the war between the States. He had been a soldier in Morgan's Calvary, and had won high reputation for cool, calm, deliberate courage. He had also won the affection of his comrades by the geniality of his nature the cordiality of his manner and his unfailing kindness. He belonged to the largest family connection in Clark county-a family who settled in the county of Clark before Kentucky was admitted into the Union. It was a powerful and popular family and he was its most popular member. He was scarcely of age when he was elected Sheriff of his county, and performed its duties, with skill, integrity and fidelity. While acting as Sheriff he studied law and entered the bar. He has been elected Judge of the County Court and Senator from that district and we believe at one time he was practically tendered the nomination for Congress until his circumstances and engagements prevented his entering the canvass. After he entered the bar he married the daughter of a Confederate comrade, and there was a romance about it which was very sweet. When he was scarcely more than a lad he happened to see his wife, then a girl about ten years of age and instantly announced that that girl was to be his wife. The war intervened, years elapsed and finally the young lawyer succeeded in winning the hand of the fatherless girl. When the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad, then known as the Elizabethtown, Lexington & Big Sandy railroad, was constructed through Clark county, and Judge William M. Beckner, who had been originally its counsel, was appointed by Governor Blackburn a member of the Railroad Commission, Judge Haggard was selected by the writer of this article as his colleague in the law department of that corporation and upon his recommendation he was retained. When the Kentucky Central railroad was constructed through Clark county that corporation also retained him and at his death he was the counsel of both corporations and into the office of Breckinridge & Shelly on Saturday, after his sad death came legal papers prepared and signed by him Friday afternoon, probably the last professional service performed by him. The intimacy between the firm of Breckinridge & Shelly and Judge Rodney Haggard, and the intimacy between him and the writer of this article was far more tender than the professional association though that was constant and confiding. It has been our good fortune to secure the friendship of many noble men. The inestimable richness of such friendship no one can hold higher than we do. Among those friends we knew no purer, truer man than this soldier associate. We have known him for thirty-six years, known him as friend as lawyer as political associate, known him in our family, in his office, in our office, in public assemblies, in political conventions and in exciting trials. We have had reason to know him well in the various relations of life in which two men can associate. During all those years and in all those varied associations our confidence in him and our affection for him constantly increased. We do not mean to say that he was a faultless man; for that is a contradiction in terms. He had burdens to carry which were very heavy; cares which were corroding and left scars upon his heart. And he himself in his last conversation with us, with tears in his eyes and in the manliest manner for it is only manly men who can confess themselves in error said to the two friends who form the firm with which he has been so long associated railroad matters that he felt that he had been to blame in much that had happened; and the conversation gave promise of a long life of new happiness and new usefulness. He was assured that so long as those friends had influence he should be rejected in the professional relation which he occupied with those corporations; and was further assured that whatever personal and professional friendship could do was wholly and lovingly at his service. And as he left the office to catch the train he gave his hand in farewell to him who writes this article, expressing in most cordial and grateful way in appreciation of the friendship which has lasted through so many years; and we think was gratified when the answer was made by us that there was nothing that could be done by us that could repay him for the friendship which had never wavered in good report and bad report for the fidelity to that friendship which nothing had ever been able to shake. We have not heard whether he left any explanation of this last sad act. He was not afraid of death, for he had faced it on the battle field for years. He as dauntless a man as we ever knew, and it was to us an overwhelming surprise as well as an intense sorrow. Of all the men in our acquaintance he would have been among the last we thought capable of this act. His courage was so fine; his kindliness was so great; his sense of obligation to those dependent upon him was so keen, that it never crossed our mind that he would lay down his arms, surrender his sword and leave the battle field until he was ordered so to do. At our time of life the loss of a friend is irreparable. Older men do not make new friendships. They learn with a certain grief of surprise that the number of friends grows smaller with the loss of each. Youth forms ties of friendship. Middle life may cement those ties. As we grow older death breaks them. It is therefore, not only the loss of a friend which saddens at each death, but it is the recognition that the circle of friends has permanently grown smaller. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, September 17, 1901.

Resolutions Upon the Death of Judge Rodney Haggard.

Whereas, it has pleased the Grand Exalted Ruler of the Universe, the Master over land and sea, to call ashore from the storm-swept sea of human existence the baroque of our brother, Rodney Haggard, and bid him enter into the great Lodge, whose password is death, now be it

Resolved, by Winchester Lodge, No. 539, B. P. O. E., in regular meeting assembled. 1st. That in the death of Brother Haggard, we have sustained an irreparable loss. 2nd. That throughout his entire life, both within and without the Lodge, we recognized in him the exemplification of those cardinal virtues and attributes the possession and practice of which made him what he was.

3rd. That very early in life his conduct gave promise of the prowess he was afterwards to display, the worthy deeds he was able to do, the honor, love and respect he was to win, the power and influence which sprang from a strong, brave and loyal heart, the radiance of an upright, moral life, well lived, the halo of honesty and integrity, he was to achieve, and in his manly modesty wield and disseminate among his fellow men.

4th. That whilst our hearts are filled with sorrow at his taking, and regret that he was not yet longer spared for more years of usefulness, we are forced to bow our heads in submission to a higher than our own; secure in the perfect faith and hope for him, of a glorious immortality.

5th. And that not only when the circling hands shall mark the dial at the appointed hour,-the pealing bells or ringing chimes announce its arrival—but ever and always, the many loving hearts of true and loyal Elks will hold in sweet, in sacred and in honored remembrance the spirit of our departed Brother, long after earthly flesh and blood shall have returned to the dust from which they sprung, and mere material tombstones, with their commemorative inscriptions shall have crumbled into nothingness..

Be It Further Resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the Minutes and become a part of the record and proceedings of this Lodge.

And a copy be furnished to The Winchester Democrat, Winchester Sun and Gateway Sentinel for publication.

Veterans Tribute to Rodney Haggard.

It again becomes our mournful duty to pay a last tribute to a departed comrade. Rodney Haggard, on Saturday, the 14th of September, laid down his arms and surrendered to the great enemy, Death.

He was a soldier and an officer at the early age of sixteen. Espousing the cause of the South, he enlisted in Col. Waller Chenault's regiment, Gen. Morgan's command, and was made First Lieutenant of Company A, commanded by that sturdy and manly veteran, Capt. Mullens. Although young in years, he took rank among the best and bravest of this splendid division, and was the peer of any officer of his rank. Dauntless and dashing, he was cool and steady as a veteran, and in camp and field he bore himself always so as to commend himself to his superiors in rank and to gain and hold the confidence and esteem of those he commanded. We, his comrades, near hearty testimony to his qualities as a soldier and to his conduct during the time of his service. No man took higher rank and no man deserved more the admiration the confidence and the affection of those who served with and under him.

But he was gone to join those who are gathering across the river, and we who are left in the ranks, can only say good bye, and wish that "after life's fitful fever" he may sleep well.

In Memoriam.

After motion hour Tuesday morning Circuit court adjourned in respect to the memory of Judge Rodney Haggard. The witnesses and jurymen summoned for the day were excused from duty, and the Bar resolved itself into a body to pay just tribute to the memory of one of its best-beloved members who no longer sits in counsel. Judge Flanagan was called to the chair and L. H. Bush was made secretary. A committee appointed for the purpose retired and in a short time reported the resolutions printed below, which were read impressively by Judge C. S. French, of the committee, and on motion were unanimously adopted.

Beautiful tributes were paid to the memory of the departed in addresses by Judge J. M. Benton, Col. J. T. Tucker, Col. Shelby, (Lexington), Capt. Lee Hathaway and the Chairman.

A letter from Hon. James B. McCreary, expressing his regrets that he could not be present to participate in the ceremonies, and embodying a heart-offering to the memory of his dead friend, was read by the secretary.

The secretary also read a letter from Judge Haggard's old friend and classmate, Dr. C. P. Whitehead, of Lecompte, La., eloquent and pathetic in its expressions of sorrow on the death of a schoolboy companion. The ceremonies were peculiarly sad and impressive.

Following are the Resolutions Of Respect.

Whereas, Our friend, Honorable Rodney Haggard, by a grievous and inscrutable dispensation of God's providence, has passed the narrow bounds of life, and gone to join the hosts innumerable on the other side of the flood of death; and,

Whereas, We, the members of the Winchester Bar, desire to place on record some testimonial of our appreciation of his personal worth and sense of the loss we have sustained. Resolved,

- 1. That in the death of Judge Haggard, we have sustained a loss that we cannot well express in words—the loss of a friend whose intercourse was genial and kind; whose attachments were sincere and devoted; whose sympathies were broad and generous; whose word of honor, universally accepted, like fine gold tried many times in the fire.
- 2. That as an attorney at this bar we recognized in him an ability equal to the gravest emergencies; brave and self-poised in forensic contests; the onset of his adversary and clash of arms, even though he encountered giants, only awakened in his heroic nature a fine frenzy, and lent to the conflict a charm and made it a coveted pastime.
- 3. That in his public services, which were numerous and distinguished whether as Sheriff of his county, Presiding Judge of its Court, or Senator to the State Legislature, his fidelity to his various trusts was well attested by the generous plaudits of an approving constituency.
- 4. That as a soldier in arms, whether in the camp or in the field, or in dreary prison walls, his bearing was gallant and knightly; he knew no fear he knew no defeat; neither booming cannon nor hurtling bullets rending the air in maddening tempest, nor bursting shell, singing a death song for many were a terror to him, for he believed with all the holy fervor of a heaven-born inspiration, he was fighting for his God, his country and the sacred fireside of his fathers, but alas! For us, his life's work is done, and done when his day was but little past its noontide. His honors and hopes his burdens and griefs alike sleep beneath the unconscious turf. The drama in which he played his part so well, is ended; the curtain has fallen—and who can raise that curtain again? No human hand, neither king nor conqueror, nor angel hand can lift the mystic veil. Yet it is well! For though we cannot see through the thick cloud and understand the mysteries of this sad dispensation, God knows and has suffered it all. In His presence we will be dumb and open not our mouths. And now we bid thee a last farewell, our brother, thy virtues we will cherish long in memory and strive to emulate until we too, are summoned to appear in that court above the stars where God is the judge and eternal justice His universal dispensation.

	5. That a copy of these proceedings be presented to the family of the deceased and that we tender to them our sincere condolence that the Winchester Sun, The Winchester Democrat and Gateway Sentinel be requested to publish the same in their respective papers and a copy presented to the Clark Circuit Court and request made that it be spread at large upon its records. 	Sorrow and Pleasure. In sorrow we remember our brothers that have gone over the river; with pleasure we do honor to their memory. The Elk's memorial Services at the Opera House Sunday afternoon combined the two-sorrow and pleasure. The departed brothers in whose memory the services were held were, J. Edward Mitchell, Rodney Haggard, George W. Flanagan and N. V. Prewitt. The program as printed in last week's paper was followed.
	The singing by the Winchester Choral Society was fine indeed. "Jesus Lover of My Soul," by Miss Elizabeth Robinson, Mrs. Savage and Messrs. Hodgkin and Wentworth was equal to the very best. The Solo by Mrs. Savage was especially pleasing. The address was delivered by Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge. It was the best, because it was the last we have heard him make. It is sad to think that in not so many years Breckinridge will be heard no more. He is a young man for his age of 66, and while we trust there are many more years of brightness and usefulness left to him, we realize that when he is gone there will be a vacancy that cannot be filled. After the service the Elks, with Col. Breckinridge, repaired to the Club Room where an hour was spent in cordial greetings. Col. Breckinridge kindly gave his autograph to the large number that asked for it.

Haggard, Tandy Q.	Deplorable tragedy Tandy Q. Haggard shot and killed by Charles Forkner Wednesday morning near Pilot View A telephone message to the Sheriff's office Wednesday morning was the first intimation received here of a terrible tragedy that had just been enacted at Pilot View. It was from Charlie Forkner, and stated that he had just shot and killed Tandy Haggard, and wished an officer to be sent for him. Officer Bedford complied with the request and brought him to the city about noon. Both men were neighbors, and lived near Pilot View. During the winter a son of Mr. Haggard fed cattle for Forkner, and they disagreed upon the wages that he should receive. A lawsuit ensued, which was tried before Judge Evans, Tuesday, and this is thought to have been the beginning of the trouble. The Coroner's inquest brought out no facts as to who began the trouble or exactly what was said. Haggard was fixing a gate in front of Harry Paynter's residence when Forkner rode up. Witnesses testified as to high words and opprobrious epithets, and that Haggard threw rocks at Forkner. The latter displayed a bruised place on his side which he said was caused by one of these rocks. Forkner drew his pistol and shot Haggard three times, one bullet going through the brain and two entering the back and passing through the body, killing Haggard instantly. Forkner then went home and telephoned the Sheriff. He was not admitted to bail, but was placed in the hands of a special officer, Dock Pigg being appointed Deputy Sheriff for that purpose. Coroner Brinegar held an inquest with the following jury: Will Huls, F.A. Bowen, J.E. Douglas, John Mastin, C.F. Rupard, and A.J. Shultz, whose verdict simply recited the manner of his death and expressed no opinion. The funeral of Mr. Haggard was preached yesterday morning at the residence by Eld. Morrow, and the remains were buried in the Winchester cemetery. He was about 55 years of age and leaves a wife, formerly Miss

Delaney, and several children, some of them grown and others nearly so. Forkner has a wife and several small children, and is a younger man than Mr. Haggard. The examining trial of Forkner is set for next Thursday.

Forkner's trial

The court room was crowded yesterday with interested spectators to hear the examining trial of Charles Forkner for killing Tandy Haggard. The examination was held before Judge Evans, and quite an array of legal talent appeared. County Attorney Jeffries was ill and the State was represented by Pendleton, Bush & Bush, Byrd & Davis, Jas. F. Winn and Frank H. Haggard. The defendant had John M. Stevenson and J. Smith Hays. The case was still in progress as the Democrat went to press.

Released on bail

The examining trial of Charlie Forkner for the killing of Tandy Haggard was held before Judge Evans Thursday and the Courthouse was crowded to repletion by interested spectators. The prosecution was represented by Byrd & Davis, Pendleton, Bush & Bush, James F. Winn and Frank H. Haggard. For the defense appeared J.M. Stevenson, I. Smith Hayes and Chas. F. Spencer. Judge Evans decided that he should be held over to await the action of Circuit court and fixed his bail at ten thousand dollars which he gave and was discharged from custody.

Circuit court

Tuesday morning the case of Chas. Forkner for killing Tandy Haggard was called and gone into. Much interest was manifested, and the courtroom was crowded at all times. The testimony was all in by Wednesday evening and at a night session, Jas. F. Winn spoke for the Commonwealth and J. Smith Hays for the defendant. Yesterday morning Jno. M. Stevenson spoke for defendant and Ben A. Crutcher closed for the State, and the case was given to the jury about noon. Self-defense was the principal reliance of the defendant, and a strong fight was made by both sides. At the time of going to press the jury had not returned a verdict.

Big suit filed

Thursday, Mrs. Laura Haggard filed suit in the Circuit court against Charles Forkner asking damages in the sum of fifty thousand dollars, for the killing of her husband, Tandy Q. Haggard, just a year previous. The petition alleges that Forkner willfully, carelessly, wantonly and maliciously shot and killed Haggard and that the shooting was done at a time when the defendant did not believe and had no reason to believe it was necessary to protect himself from any immediate bodily harm and that by the alleged unlawful killing she and her family have been damaged in the sum of $50,000 for which she prays. Forkner was indicted for murder and was tried here, but the jury hung, a change of venue was then secured by the defendant and the case was tried at Richmond the jury bringing in a verdict of acquittal. Byrd and Jeffries are attorneys for Mrs. Haggard.

A Richmond indictment

The Grand Jury of the Richmond Circuit court returned an indictment against Charles Forkner, of this city, charging that he obtained a witness to swear falsely. The trial of Mr. Forkner for the killing of Tandy Haggard was tried in Richmond last year being sent there on a change of venue from this county. One of the witnesses who testified in behalf of Mr. Forkner was Joe Howard of this county. Forkner was acquitted of the charge of murder, but Howard was afterward indicted for false swearing. He was tried and found guilty at the present term of court, his punishment being fixed at one year in the penitentiary. The indictment of Forkner followed this conviction. He was arrested Friday by depu8ty Sheriff Bush and shortly afterward was released on one thousand dollars bond. His trial is set for today at Richmond. Several cases have grown out of the Forkner murder trial. Besides the conviction of Howard and the indictment of Forkner, there is a damage suit pending in the Richmond Circuit court wherein Forkner asks then thousand dollar damages from W.O. Hoskins, who testified that Forkner's reputation was bad, and a suit in the Clark Circuit court against Forkner in which a large sum is asked as damages for the killing of Haggard, the suit being brought by the family of the

Forkner acquitted

The trial of the State against Chas. Forkner, of this city, for subornation of perjury was the last case tried in the Richmond Circuit court and concluded Saturday with a verdict of acquittal. Forkner denied that he ever procured Howard to testify falsely. The testimony was largely as to the character of Forkner. Among those who testified as to his good character were Judge Hardwick, of Stanton, Dan Scott, of Fayette county, J.J. Embry, John E. Baldwin and Thos. Vaughn, of Madison county, H. Garrett, John W. Swope, N.H. Witherspoon, Cas Goff, John G. White, R.A. Scobee, and A.B. Hampton, of this city and county: Six speeches were made and the jury had the case but a short time before bringing in a verdict.

Haggard, Wheeler J. The Winchester Sun Mon., 10-16-1950 Haggard, William It is considered and adjudged by the court that the plaintiff recover of the defendants in these three cases respectively her costs expended. The plaintiff by his attorney produced a bill of exceptions herein to the opinion of this court session which being signed and sealed by the court is ordered to be entered of record and sealed in the words and figures following to wit "Haggard vs. Rout __3 cases -Be it remembered that upon the trial of these motions the plaintiff read in evidence to the court, the will of James Rout dec., he also read in evidence to the court a deed of Coupey, and made by Samuel Hodgkin to Pleasant Haggard he also read in evidence to the court a deed to Martin Haggard, the plaintiff there called Samuel Hodgkin as a witness who being sworn proved that at the death of said testator James Rout he left a widow named Eleanor and four children to wit Martha Ann Rout, Rebecca Jane Rout, Benjamin Rout and James D. Rout which were the only children the said Martha Rout V. James the testator had that some years after the death of the testator James Rout his widow Martha Rout intermarried with the plaintiff William Haggard and afterwards in the year 1843 Benjamin Rout a son of said testator departed this life in Clarke County in this state under the age of twenty-one years without ever having married and without having made any last will, and afterwards in the year 1844 Niv Haggard who was then the wife of the plaintiff departed this life, said witness also proved that the said plaintiff and his aforesaid wife Eleanor had 3 children all of whom are now infants and reside in said county of Clarke, said witnesses also proved that he received from the witnesses Pleasant and Martin Haggard $1,300 as named in said deeds by him made to them as read in evidence to this court and after the intermarriage of the plaintiff William Haggard, he said witnesses paid the on said $1,300 over to said William Haggard and his aforesaid wife Eleanor and took their receipt for said interest said witness Hodgkin also proved that in the lifetime of the said Mrs. Eleanor Haggard and whilst she was the wife of the said William Haggard he paid over to the said William Haggard said sum of $1,300 and which payment was made by him before the death of said Benjamin Rout, the plaintiff then read in evidence to the court a receipt from the plaintiff William Haggard his self that testator personal estate was insufficient for the payment of his debts and that after he sold the land testator widow and children lived on witnesses land until she was married to said William Haggard and that until he paid the principal sum of $1,300 to said William Haggard he regularly paid the interest to her or appropriated it to the use of her and her children until after she was married and then he in like measure paid said interest to said William Haggard until he paid him the whole of said $1,300. The plaintiff then introduced Dr. Anderson Hood as a witness that he proved that he attended as physician in conjunction with his son Dr. James M. Hood to the said wards of the said plaintiff in the year 1843 that said wards were sick one or the other of them needy constantly for about four months, Benjamin Rout died of sickness after he lay about 20 days, that said wards of said plaintiff were all sick at the house of said plaintiff and that said plaintiff took great pains in nursing of them and he thinks that said plaintiff ought to receive $60 for his personal attention to said wards, that said plaintiff very often came after witness to go and see said wards as their doctor and that the plaintiff had and did sit up and nurse said wards during all the time they were sick as aforesaid and that he was compelled to devote nearly the whole of his time in nursing of his said wards, he further proved that he was a witness before the county commissioners who made the settlements in these cases and he thought that $50 was a reasonable compensation for said plaintiff Haggard to receive for nursing said wards but upon examining his books and refreshing his recollection as to the length of time that said wards were sick in 1843 he now believes that $60 would be a reasonable compensation for said plaintiff to receive. It was admitted and proved on the bearing of these motions that said William Haggard was appointed by this court the guardian of said infant children after his intermarriage with said Eleanor Rout. The plaintiff then introduced Dr. James M. Hood who proved that he as physician attended to the wards of said plaintiff in 1843, he stated that Ben Rout died after being sick about 20 days that the aforesaid wards were sick one or some of them nearly constantly for about 4 months and that the plaintiff attended to them during said sickness that he the said plaintiff attended to them well and had to quit other business to nurse them. The plaintiff then read to the court the papers referred to in said reports of said commissioners which being all the evidence upon the trial of these three cases the court rendered the judgment as entered upon the record and refused to sustain the exceptions to the records of the commissioners except as in named upon the record to which opinion of the court is not sustaining said exceptions and each of them the plaintiff Haggard by his counsel then accepted and now praise this his bill of exceptions to be signed sealed and made a trust of the record herein which is done. A. H. Buckner, William C. Cooper, Willis Collins Order Book 11; P. 360; June Court 1845 Haggard vs. Routs heirs. Three cases Be it remembered that at the present term of this court the court sustained the exceptions filed to the three reports of the commissioners Flanagan and Taliaferro as this day stated upon the record to which orders the said Haggard by his counsel then objected and excepted and now excepts to said orders and opinion of the court and praise this his bill of exceptions to be signed sealed and made a part of the record herein which is done. A.H. Buckner, H.W.H. Taylor, J. Williams. Order Book 11; P. 366; July Court 1845 William Haggard plaintiff against Rebecca Jane Rout, James D. 	this state reviewing the orders heretofore made by this court in each of these three cases, overruling the exceptions filed by said plaintiff to said reports and settlements and confirming by this court said settlements as corrected by this court, which opinion is filed – in conformity to said opinion it is ordered that the order heretofore made by this court in each of the three cases overruling the exceptions filed by said plaintiff to said reports and settlements and confirming said reports and settlements as corrected by this court be set aside and that each of said settlements and reports be referred back to the commissioners for the ascertainment of facts and a resettlement of the accounts of said plaintiff as former guardian to said defendants according to the principles of said opinion. Haldeman, Walter Newman	Haldeman Dead.
Traidelliall, Walter Newillall
	Owner of the Louisville Courier-Journal Passed Away.
	Louisville, Ky., May 14.—Walter N. Haldeman, owner of the Courier-Journal, died Tuesday morning from injuries suffered Saturday morning when he was struck by a street car in front of his home. Death was sudden, as the last bulletin from his physician
	Monday stated that everything was favorable and that he might be out in a few days.
	Mr. Haldeman was one of the foremost newspaper publishers of the country. He was over 81 years old.
	Walter Newman Haldeman was born in Maysville, Ky., April 27, 1821. He attended the Maysville academy until 16 years old, then settled in Louisville, where he clerked in a commission and grocery house until 1840. He then became a clerk in the office of the Louisville Journal. Later he engaged in a book and magazine business, and in October, 1844, married Elizabeth Metcalf, of Cincinnati He bought the Louisville Dime in that year and changed its name to the courier. The office was seized by Gen. Robert Anderson September 18, 1861. The paper was then circulated at Bowling Green and printed at Nashville, resuming at Louisville in 1865. He bought the Journal in 1868 and consolidated the two into the Courier-Journal, of which he became president.

	Haldeman's Will.
	It Retains Henry Watterson as Director of the Courier-Journal.
	Louisville, Ky., May 20.—The will of the late Walter N. Haldeman, president of the Louisville Courier-Journal Co., admitted to probate Monday, names as executors his wife, Elizabeth Haldeman; Col. Bennett H. Young and his son, Bruce Haldeman. The publication of the Courier-Journal and the Louisville Evening Times is to be continued under the financial direction of the executors and the general management of the sons,
	B. and Bruce Haldeman, and "under the advice and direction of the decedent's friend, Henry Watterson." The will makes several bequests to Mr. Haldeman's children and grandchildren, and excepting these bequests the use of the income of the decedent's property is bequeathed to his wife. The trust committed to the executors is for ten years, future disposition of the estate to be governed by circumstances that may obtain at the end of this period.

Taur, Cauc	Jule Webb Acquitted of Killing Chad Hall—Two Other Cases Dismissed. London, Ky., May 30.—The case against Jule Webb, charged with killing Chad Hall, both members of the Garrard-White feud in Clay county, but on opposite sides, was given to the jury at 4 o'clock Wednesday evening. The jury, after being out five minutes, returned a verdict of acquittal.
	This case was brought to this county on a change of venue from Clay county. The cases against Bill McCollum and Taylor Spurlock, jointly indicted with Webb for the killing of Hall, were dismissed by the court after Webb was acquitted. The evidence against Jule Webb showed that he killed Chad Hall, but acted in self-defense in doing so, as Hall was trying to kill him at the time and would have done so if his (Hall's) pistol had not snapped. George Hall, a brother of Chad Hall, attacked Attorney Sam Cash, who was defending Jule Hall, in the court house during the noon adjournment, and would have killed him had not friends interfered. When court met in the afternoon Hall was put under a $1,000 bond to keep the peace. Mr. Cash made a statement to the court that his house in Manchester had been shot into and his windows smashed, and that he believed that George Hall was the man who did it, and George Hall had on several occasions tried to kill him, and that he tried again to kill him during the noon adjournment of court. All is quiet and no further trouble is looked for here. desperate conflict.

Hall, George	The daily papers of Friday contained intelligence of another outbreak in Harlan county.
,	About the August election Geo. Turner was killed by Wilson Howard. A warrant was issued for his arrest, but both the sheriff and jailer were his relatives and refused to make the arrest. Wilson Lewis, the county judge, summoned a posse and went to arrest Howard. He found him surrounded by a number of his friends and opened fire, fatally wounding a member of Howard's party named Spurlock. Geo. Hall of the attacking party, was also killed during the fight. Both parties were scattered. Meredith and L	party, the theorem and the right. Domparies were scattered. Microally and

	Craig, of the Judge's party were ambushed on their way back and badly wounded.
	Judge Lewis and his brother were followed and fired on but without effect. Howard has a number of determined men with him and says he will not be taken. The Gov. of Missouri has offered $5,000 reward for his arrest for crimes committed there and Gov. Buckner has offered $500 on account of the last killing.

Hall, Henry	THE Governor has offered a reward for William Tobe and Ambrose Puckett of Estill county, who beat Henry Hall to death in the Fork precinct on election day. The Democrat, Wednesday, November 26, 1890.
	Wm. Puckett one of the perpetrators of one of the bloodiest deeds in the hannais of crime, was tried at Irvine last week and sentenced to be hanged. It will be remembered that Puckett, assisted by his two sons, Toadney and Ambrose, killed Hall in Estill county last fall, and escaped the officers, secreting themselves in the mountains, but upon being pursued fled to Indiana where they remained until some one informed the officers of their location, when they were captured and brought to Irvine, where they have since been awaiting the justice which should be meted out to them. Our readers are familiar with the case, and they join with the people of the community in which the Pucketts resided, in saying that it will be a relief when these terrorizing villains are dispatched. Hall was a peaceable citizen and begged piteously for salvation, but they counted his pleas as nothing and brained him like a hog with rocks and clubs. One of the sons was tried the following day, Saturday, and sentenced to the penitentiary for life. It is likely that the other will follow him.—Richmond Climax. The Democrat, Wednesday, September 23, 1891.
	WM. PUCKETT, who was sentenced to be hung at Estill Springs. Dec. 4 th for the murder of Henry Hall last November, received his sentence without fear. He told Judge Lilly that he had sentenced "as game a man and as true a Democrat as ever lived." When the time was fixed for to split the difference and make it November. He was taken to Richmond for safe keeping. The Democrat, Wednesday, September 23, 1891.
	A FRANKFORT special says: "The Court of Appeals has affirmed the decision of the Estill Circuit Court to the case of William Puckett against the Commonwealth, which fixes his sentence at hanging. On March 8, 1891, William Puckett, together with Ambrose and Tobe Puckett, killed Henry Hall in a fight at an election. The Democrat, Wednesday, September 23, 1891
	William Puckett who was sentenced by a the Estill Circuit Court to be hanged for the murder of Henry hall in Estill county last fall, will certainly meet his doom on December 4 th , 1891, the day set apart by the court for the execution unless Governor Brown takes action soon, and respite him. It is the belief of many that the Governor will respite him. His friends are making a great effort to gain a respite and will not cease struggling for same until the refusal, or approval comes. There is a petition in circulation now asking that he be respited, and is signed by 1,500 citizens. Puckett says it seems that his neck must go and it seem so. Richmond Climax, The Democrat, Wednesday, November 25, 1891.
	WM. PUCKETT, sentenced to be hanged December 4th, at Irvine, has been respited for eighty days by the Governor, so that the evidence in the case can be reviewed on petition for commutation to life imprisonment. The Democrat, Wednesday, December 2, 1891.
	Gov. Brown has fixed February 5 th for the execution of William Puckett for the murder of Henry Hall in November, 1890. By the Circuit Court he was sentenced to die Dec. 4 th but his case was appealed. The higher court affirmed the decision of the lower. The Democrat, Wednesday, December 9, 1891.
	AN Irvine special Saturday says: "William Puckett, sentenced to be hanged on February 5 th for the murder of Henry Hall at the November election 1890, in this county, is pronounced to be a dying man by two prominent physicians. Cause consumption and nervous exhaustion. A full statement of his condition with physicians certificates will be forwarded to the governor by the county officials, and a strong effort made to secure a respite of thirty days so he can die in jail and not on the scaffold. A committee will call on governor Brown Monday or Tuesday and lay the facts before him. In his present condition he would have to be carried to the gallows on a stretcher, and held up while the rope was placed around his neck. It in not believed here that the governor will allow a dying man to be hanged." The Democrat, Wednesday, January 17, 1892.
	THE latest reports from Puckett, the Estill county murderer in jail at Richmond, is that the attending physicians have refused to certify that he is in danger of immediate death from consumption, but say that he might live a year. He will probably be hanged Friday. The Democrat, Wednesday, February 3, 1892.

		and he will hang. His two sons, Ambrose and Tobe, are in the penitentiary for life and the date of their father's hanging is fixed for February 5 th . In declining to interfere, the governor sets forth his rights as follows: "William Puckett, condemned to be hanged, fails to furnish me with satisfactory reasons for committing his sentence to imprisonment for life. He was drunk when the tragedy occurred, but not too much so to engage actively in flight, to pursue his victim for a great distance, to club him and when he was dying to demand if he were not dead he was ready to kill him. His illiteracy, intoxication, even his reported imbeelity, do not excuse his awful crime. The laws must be enforced and I decline to interfere with the judgement of the court."
		The Democrat, Wednesday, January 13, 1892
		PUCKETT, the Estill county murderer, who is to be hanged Friday was baptized in the Richmond jail Wednesday by Rev. F. S. Pollitt, a Methodist minister.

Hall, Henry	AA	HENRY HALL, a negro man residing at Paris, and who has been a servant in the
•		Neeley family nearly all his life, died last Friday after an apparent illness of a few days.
		He said nothing about being mistreated by any one, but there was a suspicion that something was wrong. An autopsy was held, when it was found that he had been stabbed in the abdomen with an ice awl by his wife, the instrument penetrating the bowels in several places. Thereupon Halls's wife was arrested and placed in jail. At the examining trial held Tuesday the verdict was that Hall came to his death by injuries inflicted by his wife and she was bound over to court.

Trail, James E.	Friday morning at five o'clock, James E. Hall, one of our oldest and most respected citizens, died at his home on Winn Avenue, after a short illness of stomach trouble. He was born in this county April 22, 1827, and with the exception of two years, which were spent in Illinois and Missouri, has resided in this county and city. He was married in 1854 to Miss Annie R. Hall, who survives him as do the following daughters and son: Misses Alice and Annie Hall, of this city; Mrs. J. C. Carlyle, of Brazil, Ind.; Mrs. A. T. Hillis, of Greencastle, Ind.; Mrs. O. R. Wilson, of Centralia, Mo.; and Mr. J. E. Hall, Jr., of Chattanooga, Tenn. They were all here to attend the last sad rites with the exception of Mrs. Wilson, who was in Colorado for her health and could not get here in time. Mr. Hall was an honest, upright man, highly esteemed by all who knew him. The funeral services were held at the Methodist church, conducted by Rev. Geo. H. Means and the interment was in the Winchester cemetery. The following officiated as pall bearers: Jas. T. Ecton, Jas. F. Winn, Sam Hastings, Jas. Gilkey, E. C. Fox and Chas. Lundberg. 	In Loving Remembrance of James E. Hall.
	We saw his suffering, heard his sighs With throbbing heart and weeping eyes; But now he calmly sleeps at last. All griefs, all pain, all suffering past; God loved him, too, and he thought best To take him home to be at rest.
	We miss thee from our home, dear father, We miss thee from thy place; A shadow o'er our life is cast, We miss the sunshine of thy face.
	We miss thy kind and willing hand, Thy fond and earnest care; Our home is dark without the, We miss thee everywhere.
	Heaven now retains our treasure, Earth his lonely casket keeps; And the sunbeams love to linger, Where our dearest father sleeps.
	The dark winged messenger has again visited our home robbing us of a kind thoughtful and loving husband and father. Our hearts are made unutterably sad as we note the vacant chair, as we miss the hushed voice and declining step of one we loved so well. We feel we have truly been deprived of the holy influence of a pure spirit, although we know that God doeth all things well, and that we should always be ready to submit willingly to His decrees, yet it seems hard to resign ourselves to the death of our beloved husband and father, and our poor rebellious hearts murmur against the fate that surely awaits us all.
	From our home the form was carried To the cold and silent grave, And his soul was borne by angels To its loving God who gave.
	If we'd thought he'd so soon left us, On this lonely world behind, Could we not have made more precious The swift hours of passing time?
	Oh, 'tis hard to be contended, Not withstanding we are blessed, When the dark, damp earth and coffin, Hold the lips that once we passed.

	Even then, though sad and lonely
	And his voice is heard no more,
	Yet we know he's gone to greet us;
	With a welcome at the door.

Hall, Jessica Humphrey	Jessica Humphrey Hall was called by an Angel to our Lord's heavenly home on Wednesday, July 5, 2023. Jessie was born on June 30, 1978 in Akron, OH, where she lived with her parents in Uniontown until the age of two. We moved to Winchester, KY in 1980. We lived on Elkin Station Road in the country, where she became best friends with Eric and Chris Korsgaard. They remained friends throughout their lives growing up. They were inseparable! Jessie excelled in school and went on to college at EKU, eventually obtaining a masters in special ed. She married in 2004, had 2 sons, opted to stay home to raise her two sons, Noah and Wesley.
	Now divorced, Jessie was looking forward to starting her new life and job. She loved her new home and job at Service Specialties. Everyone who knew her, knew her beautiful smile.
	Jessica leaves behind sons, Noah Seth Hall, 17, and Wesley Ryan Hall, 13, parents Jim and Leslie Humphrey of Florida, her brother Johnathan and wife Jill Humphrey, exhusband Russell Hall, and numerous other aunts, uncles and cousins. Many close friends and all of her pets. She will be sorely missed.

Hall, John	Serious Joke John Hall, a farmer near Owingsville, took up a horse a few days ago, which he advertised as a stray. The owner, of near North Middletown, Bourbon county, proved the horse to be his and took him home. Neighbors of Hall, as a joke, circulated the report that he had stolen the horse. This so preyed on his mind that he tried to commit suicide by cutting his throat with a razor from ear to ear. He is still alive, but there is no hope for his recovery. Hall is fifty years old. The Winchester Democrat Friday, May 1, 1908
	Was in jail here The Owingsville correspondent of some of the daily papers has a wonderful imagination. The past week he told of a simple minded farmer who took up a stray horse and advertised for the owner, and when the neighbors joked him over having stolen it he committed suicide by cutting his throat. His name was given as John Hall, which was about the only bit of truth in the report. In the meantime Hall was resting in the Winchester jail, having stolen the horse from Mr. Coburn, near Thomson, and being caught the following day. He was indicted Friday by the grand jury and was arraigned that afternoon. His neck was heavily bandaged and it is said he tried to cut his throat just before he was arrested.

Hall, Joseph Hall, Josephine W.	The Winchester Sun Sat., 12-13-1930 OBITUARY
	Josephine W., the beloved wife of Capt. Theophilus Hall Died at Winchester, Clark County, Ky., April 21st. Mrs. Hall was born at Vernon, Vt., was the daughter of Ruth and Marshall Whited, Esq. She came forth from her home a young lady of unsurpassed loveliness, whom all of us new and loved. She engaged in school teaching, always gaining the love of her pupils, and upon the Sabbath was found, cheerful and happy, at her place in her Sabbath school class. As the death of her mother occurred in childhood, she bestowed attention and tenderness upon her father, discharging her filial duty with assiduity. Some years since she went South, as teacher, and continued until her marriage, a little more than two years since. To the duties of this new station, these new and important relations, she came with a well-cultivated mind, a warm heart and willing hands. The high minded integrity and considerate thoughtfulness of Capt. Hall for his wife rendered their abode one of joy. Why so soon, so suddenly, was this made a house of mourning? The Lord took from the husband the "desire of his eyes, with a stroke." He is not left to mourn alone. Christian sorrow fills the hearts of four sisters and three brothers and a large circle of relatives mourn her loss. The funeral was held in the Union Church, April 27th. Services conducted by Rev. M. Cadwell of Bernardston, Mass, assisted by Rev. N. C. Hodgdon, of Vernon. The concourse and procession were unusually large and her remains now sleep beside loved ones gone before. It was the blessedness of the Christian religion that made her what we all loved that sustained her in her sickness and enabled her to make arrangements for her departure and soothe and comfort her lonely companions. Then let her good example, the remembrance of her many virtues, let the impressive admonition of the uncertainty life sudden departure utters, lift our souls to God and we willingly cast ourselves upon his altar, "a living, holy and acceptable sacrifice." The subject of the above notice was well known

Hall, Mrs. Henry A foul murder	1
What appears now to be one of the foulest murders of recent occurrence we by the finding of the body of Mrs. Henry Hall wrapped in ropes in the Ohi Catlettsburg one day last week. She had disappeared an afternoon or two her home in Huntington, W.Va., carrying away with her about $500 in mo	oney. She had been seen in Catlettsburg the night after her disappearance, in company w	ith a man named Edward Artis, of Huntington. Artis has been arrested, and claims that Mrs. Hall gave him the money, over $200 of which has been recovered from an old stove pipe on his premises, where he confessed to having secreted it. The Winchester Democrat Tuesday, August 16, 1910

	Catlettsburg – The body of a finely dressed woman, about 35 years of age, was found in the Ohio river. A rope was attached around the body. The police authorities of Huntington, W. Va., stated that the body was that of Mrs. Henry Hall, who disappeared a week ago, having with her $415. There was no money found on the body. The Winchester Democrat Tuesday, August 23, 1910

Hall, Mrs. Jemima	Killing In Letcher County In Letcher county, Ky., Sunday night a band of twelve men went to the home of Mrs. Allen Hall, a widow, and shot her to death. Her twenty-year-old son was also shot and probably fatally wounded. After the shooting, the house was robbed. Mrs. Hall's house was robbed last spring and several men are under indictment for that offense. The Winchester Democrat Fri., Nov. 16, 1900
	Troops Will Not Be Sent. Gov. Beckham Declined to Interfere in the Letcher County Trouble—Lanterns Hung Out At Night. Frankfort, Ky., April 18 County Judge Blair, of Letcher county, was here Wednesday to make a personal request of Gov. Beckham that troops be sent to this county to capture the band of desperadoes who are charged with the murder of Jemima Hall and her nephew last fall. The governor declined to send the troops to do the duty of a sheriff's posse, realizing that it would be fruitless to try to move such a body secretly to capture the fugitives.

	To Pineville For Trial. The Removal of the Ku-Klux Was Effected Without Exciting Suspicion. Mayking, Ky., Sept. 19.—Sheriff Wilson Sergent and a dozen deputies of this county left Tuesday night unawares with the kuklux outlaw members for Pineville, Bell county, where they were transferred on a change of venue at the last term of court. For fear their friends of Boone's Fork would release the outlaws. Sheriff Sergent departed with them Tuesday midnight. They will go on trial September 23 for the murder and robbery of Mrs. Jemima Hall and her son, Sherwood Reynolds, at Boone's Fork, last November. The trial will be watched with more interest than any case ever tried in Bell county. Hundreds of witnesses will go from this county. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, September 24, 1901
	Kentucky KuKlux. Thirteen of Them Captured Near Whitesburg, Va.—Were Taken to Pineville for Trial. Bristol, Va., Sept. 25.—Considerable excitement was created at Stonega, wise county, Va., Monday when a dozen officers arrived in that town with 13 prisoners whom they were taking to Pineville, Ky., to be placed in jail for safekeeping until they can be brought to trial. The men under arrest are members of a kuklux band that, it is alleged has been operating in Letcher county, Kentucky, and that immediate section for the past several months. During that time a number of men and women have been mysteriously murdered, and these crimes are charged to this kuklux gang, with numerous other crimes that have been committed in that vicinity. The men were captured near Whitesburg. One member of the gang is still at large, but a posse is hot on his track. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, October 1, 1901
	Pineville, Ky., Sept. 26.—Three witnesses were examined in the kuklux case Wednesday. Elijah Fleming testified that he and 15 of the Reynolds gang met at a schoolhouse near the murdered woman's house, where Reynolds administered the kuklux oath. They then went to Mrs. Hall's and killed her and her eldest son. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, October 1, 1901
	Pineville, Ky., Sept. 27.—After making out a strong case in the kuklux trial the prosecution rested at 2 p. m. Younts, the defendant, testified that he and Marg Reynolds, captain of the gang, on the night Mrs. Hall was killed were at Reynold's home. Minerva Reynolds, mother of the kuklux captain, stated that her son and Younts were at her house all night; that Reynolds is now in this county, and was at her house last Saturday. It is reported that Marg Reynolds is coming here to surrender. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, October 1, 1901

	Convicted Of Murder At Pineville, Mark Younts was convicted of the murder of Mrs. Hall and was given a life sentence. He is the first of a dozen or more of an allegded kuklux gang indicted for this murder. The Winchester Democrat Fri., Oct. 4, 1901
	Declared Not Guilty Pineville, Ky., Oct. 31 The jury in the case of Isaac Potter returned a verdict of not guilty Thursday. This was Potter's second trial, the first being for the alleged murder of Mrs. Jemina Hall, in Letcher county, in which the jury was unable to agree. The second trial was for the alleged murder of Sherwood Reynolds and the adopted child of Mrs. Hall.

The past three winters Mrs. Hall sojourned in this city, where by her sprightliness of manner, her sweetness of disposition, her amiability of character, exemplifying in the purity of her daily walk and conversation every Christian grace and domestic virtue, she drew around her a large circle of warm and admiring friends. Here in Houston, far away from her home, many who know her, but to love her, lament her death, and mourn the loss of a departed friend. 	In Memoriam Mrs. John H. Hall died in Maysville, Ky., after an illness of five months, Nov. 8 th , 1880. Once more the angel of slumber and the angel of death has passed over the earth and scattered with quite hand the invisible seed of death. The recording angel has registered one more name on the book of eternal life. One more soul has gone to its judgment, and left sorrowing on earth, him who had taken the eternal vow to love and shield the frail young life, taken so surely and yet so quietly from him. God, the righteous and merciful judge, who gave this precious life has the power to take it away; to cleanse it from all sin, and to clothe it in robes as pure and as white as when he first put them on. This should be a consolation, that the laws of heaven are more just than those on earth, and sometimes send afflictions to turn our thoughts and hearts toward heaven; sometimes our richest treasures are taken from us that we may seek after them. Mrs.

	John Hall though only 35 years old, had accomplished a noble Christian mission. Greatly will she be missed in her husband's home, in God's house, and by her many friends for buoyant with life, beaming with happiness, she was as a sun-beam that scattered brightness wherever it fell, a help to the needy, a friend to the poor. Truly can it be said of this charitable woman, she lent hers to the Lord by giving to the poor. We, her old friends, who have known her long and loved her, were grieved to hear that death had so soon taken her from among us, and we fully realize that all we could say would be in vain, yet, in sympathy with the bereaved husband, we would say with our eyes dimmed by tears. Bow is submission to him who rules the destinies of all men: The circle is broken, one seat is forsaken, One bud from the tree of our friendship is Shaken, One heart from among us no longer shall Thrill, With joy in our gladness, or grief in our ill. As a cloud of the sunset, slowly melting in Heaven, As a star that is lost when the daylight is Given, As a glad dream of slumber that wakens in Bliss,
	She has passed to the world of the holy from

Hall, Pleas D.	A Foul Assassination Stayed All Night With Corpse Of Murdered Father And Husband Franklin, Ky., Jan. 6 Pleas Hall was assassinated at his home five miles from Franklin about 8 o'clock Saturday night, while sitting around his hearthstone with the wife and four children. He was fired upon through a window with a double barreled gun heavily loaded with slugs and buckshot, and the entire top of his head was torn off. The distressed wife and children picked up the lifeless body and placing it on the bed, remained alone with it throughout the night, afraid to venture out to give an alarm lest they meet the same cruel fate. Mr. Hall was 45 years old, and one of the best known farmers in the county. If he had an enemy on earth it was not known to his closest friends. There is absolutely no clew to the perpetrator of the deed. The Winchester Democrat Fri., Jan. 10, 1902 Life Imprisonment. Franklin, Ky., June 28.—The case of the State vs. G. B. Alderson, tried for the assassination of P. D. Hall on the night of January 4 last, was given to the jurors. They considered the case two hours and returned into court with a verdict of guilty, fixing his

Hall, S. D. (Dock)	In Powell county Monday, Dock Hall was shot and instantly killed by his father-in-law, John Rose. Family feuds the cause.
	The Winchester Democrat Wed., 7-18-1888
	John Rose had a preliminary trial before Judge Justice Rogers in Stanton for killing S. D. (Dock) Hall. Both parties are of the wealthiest families in Powell County. The evidence shows a strong case against Rose, and the Justice, after hearing, fixed his bail at eight thousand dollars but afterwards reduced it to fifteen hundred dollars under the mistaken impression that the County Attorney thought it ought to be reduces to that sum. The Commonwealth was represented by County Attorney Atkinson and Mr.

	Scholl, of Powell county, and Hon. Rodney Haggard. The defense was represented by Judge Riddell, Judge Day, Judge Fluty, Judge White, Col. Wood and Capt. Hancock. The Winchester Democrat Wed. 2-25-1888
	Another case that has attracted much attention from wealth and prominence of the parties, is the trial of James Hall for complicity in the murder of John Rose about a year ago. Rose shot and killed Dock Hall in a private quarrel. Hall was Rose's son-in-law, having married his daughter much against the wishes of her father. Bad blood was thus engendered and quarrels were frequent, in one of which Hall was killed. Several months after this started from his home above Clay City to attend Court here. As he lived some distance from the depot it was necessary for him to start very early to catch the morning train. On his way to the station he was joined by two unknown men who engaged him in conversation. At a given signal the strangers drew their pistols and began shooting at Rose, who fell mortally wounded, the assassins escaping. They proved to be Jesse Barnett and one of the Combs', and were apprehended shortly after. Upon trial they were convicted, and are now serving out a life sentence in the penitentiary. When first arrested they said James Hall, who was a kinsman of the murdered Dock Hall, had hired them to kill Rose, but afterward they retracted this confession. Hall was indicted by the grand jury and some months afterward surrendered and was released on bail. He is the wealthiest and most influential man in Powell county, and will make a desperate effort for acquittal. Senator Haggard of this city is the lead counsel for the defense. Later—We learn that owing to the illness of Judge Lilly, the special term was adjourned.
	The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, January 28, 1891 John Rose and John Hammond were acquitted at Stanton on the charge of accessories to the murder of S. D. Hall.

Hall, Tice	Fitzgerald, who killed Tice Hall, at Georgetown, has been taken to the penitentiary to

	The Winchester Democrat Wed., 9-26-1888
	Eugene Fitzgerald, of Georgetown, who killed Tice Hall in August, 1887, and was sentenced to the penitentiary for thirteen years, was Thursday released on parole after serving about two years and three months of his time. The killing of Hall took place in Pullen's saloon, while Hall was sitting at a table eating his supper, and was the result of bad feeling over a game of cards. Fitzgerald was tried in September, 1887, and sentenced to the penitentiary for thirteen years, but laid in jail until March, 1888, when he was then taken to the penitentiary at Frankfort.

Hall, Todd	The Harmonizer Cont. Todd Hell was own in Trigg County last week, and the interviewer of the Codiz
	Capt. Todd Hall was own in Trigg County last week, and the interviewer of the Cadiz Telephone got in his work with the following result: "Capt. Hall is a most excellent gentleman, and we do not wonder that all the Legislators before whom he has appeared have become smitten with him and promptly honor all drafts he draws upon them.
	On a certain occasion Capt. Hall went from his home in Clark county to the mountain counties bordering upon the West Virginia line, when and where the French-Eversole factions were endeavoring with might and main to exterminate one another. The Captain made it a point to see each of the chiefs of these outlaws and expostulate with them on their mistaken ideas touching high moral ideas and various holy admonitions.
	Col. French did seem to be pleased with the Captain's Sunday school ideas and advised Hall to get away as speedily as possible. Maj. Eversole was furious and looked to be as blood-thirsty as Mercutio. He too advised the young man to get out.
	Hall, who had, without flinching looked into the enemies cannon-mouth, when its gunner took dead aim at him, vomiting flaming bushels of death and destruction at his boys in gray, began to take advise tendered by fools, and pulled for the lowlands, occasionally looking back to see if the field was "clear in the rear" (something, by the way, which Todd says had never occurred to his mind to do before, as he had always looked for the enemy in front). Getting home safely, he said, "By thunder! I missed a narrow scowering."
	A few months after he was elected to the place he now holds; and one day while attending to his own business a member of the House called Capt. Hall to him asking permission to introduce him to a friend. It was Col. French. "Why yes", said the Colonel, "I know you. You are the great harmonizer."
	The story leaked out and Capt. Hall not only got the credit of bringing peace to the vendetta, but also got the nick-name of being the greatest "harmonizer" in Kentucky.
	The Captain likes the word, uses it, and gets much comfort out of his efforts to harmonize the discords, pouring oil on the troubled waters so to speak, and making the human race one happy family."

Hall, William Hall, William	The Winchester Sun Thur., 3-19-1936 WM. WADE who returned from the South last week, brought the first information received here of the death of Wm. Hall, formerly of this county, who died at Tates Spring, Tennessee, in July 1892. He was forty-five years old and a bachelor. He owed a big livery stable in Greensboro, Alabama, where he was formerly a partner of Jas. Tisdale, who has spent considerable time in this county. In addition, Mr. Hall had a policy on his life for five thousand dollars and owned property in Birmingham. His brothers and sisters, Capt. T. Hall, John O. Hall and Thos. Hall, Mrs. Jas. Hall and Mrs. Al. Montague, who are his sole heirs, have employed counsel to look the matter up. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, March 23, 1894.

Hall, Zack T.	Killed By a Woman. Zack Hall, a prominent farmer living near Clay City, was shot and instantly killed Tuesday by Mrs. Tempa Hampton. The families were neighbors and Hall recently gained legal possession of the land on which the Hamptons resided. Hall passed through the farm walking and the Hamptons forbade his trespassing. Hall answered that the land was his and he would pass over it when he pleased. The woman said she would kill him if he came back that way. Hall returned shortly and Mrs. Hampton shot him in the forehead with a pistol killing him instantly. She was arrested and lodged in jail and will have her examining trial to-day. Hall was an old soldier and was Langley's choice for Postmaster of Clay City, but was turned down for Frank Russell. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, June 3, 1898 A Killing Near Clay City. Clay City, Ky., June 1.—A killing occurred Tuesday morning on the Stanton road, about one mile from this city. It seems that there was a dispute between Z. T. Hall and the Kentucky Union Land Co. about a farm and at the last term of the circuit court the suit was decided in favor of Hall. He sold the land to Silas Lee, who had made one payment on it and refused to pay more until the suit was decided. Silas Lee had rented through, and Mrs. Hampton told him not to come back that way, but he did. She then shot him with a 38-caliber revolver, the ball entering below the right eye and killing him instantly.

Halley, Thomas Jefferson	Death of T.J. Halley
	One of Winchester's oldest and most highly respected citizens Thursday evening Thomas Jefferson Halley died at his home on East Broadway Thursday night of the infirmities incident to old age, in the eighty-second year of his age. The funeral was preached at the family residence Saturday afternoon by Revs. Marshall Thomas and J.J. Gilbert, and the remains were buried in the Winchester cemetery. He was a native of this county and belonged to one of its oldest families, his father, James Halley, having been born here in 1783, while this part of the country belonged to Virginia. He was twice married. His first wife was Miss Maria Stuart, who died more than half a century ago. His second wife was her sister, Miss Elizabeth Stuart, who survives him, as do three sons, James, Charles and T.J. Halley, Jr., two daughters, Misses Nannie and Mayme; also one grandson, Claud Halley, of Mt. Sterling. He also leaves two half sisters, Mrs. Bettie Thompson, of Lebanon, Tenn., and Mrs. Mary J. Robinson, of Lexington. For fifty-three years he had been a consistent member of the Old Baptist church. Although a public spirited man and one who took much interest in public matters, he never held office, but was content to exert his influence in a private capacity. In his death the county has lost a most estimable citizen and we join a host of friends in expressions of sympathy to his family.

Hambrick, Jessie Lee
Hambrick, Jessie Lee	A DEPLORABLE AFFAIR – Mrs. Thos. Hambrick, of Ford, Kills Her Little Girl by Cutting Her Throat With a Razor. Death is terrible when it comes and takes the soul from the body wasted by disease and racked by pain; when the victim, like a withered tree has lived his allotted span; when the spirit is called away amid the clash of arms and the smoke of battle; or when the Master calls for the little babe which, for a little while he has loaned to its earthly parents; in any form and in any event the grim monster is terrible; but when a young life is taken by the mother who bore it, it is more terrible still. This is the tragedy which was enacted in our sister town of Ford, Saturday. For some time the intimate friends of Mrs. Mattie Hambrick, marshal of the town, have seen that her mental powers have been unbalances, but no one dreamed of the horrible tragedy that was imminent. Saturday morning Mr. Hambrick arose and made a fire at an early hour and went back to bed. His wife, her little daughter, Jessie Lee, aged eight years, and Miss Myrtie Elkin, a neighbor, occupied a bed in an adjoining room, the two latter being asleep. A slight noise aroused Mrs. Wash, the sister of Mrs. Hambrick, who occupied an adjoining room, and upon entering a "horrible sight was presented. The insane mother had by some means secured a razor and had cut her little duaghter's throat from which death insued in a few moments. Miss Elkin was also slightly cut on the face, but probably by accident. The mother was at once secured and has since been closely guarded. Some time since she lost a child several years old and this has aggravated her insanity. A few days ago she attempted to commit suicide by choking herself to death with a veil wound tightly around her throat. She does not realize what she has done but fancies that she is dead and wants her children with her. She has two children, one an infant, a few months old, and the other a daughter aged about thirteen. She is from Jessamine county from which she and her husband came a few year

Hamilton, J. S.	Will contested The will of the late J.H. Hamilton of near Millersburg who left his estate valued at about $80,000 for the education of poor worthy white girls of Bourbon county is to be contested. At a late hour Friday afternoon an appeal to the Circuit court was filed asking that the document, purporting to be the last will and testament of the deceased, J.H. Hamilton, and which was admitted to probate and record in the Bourbon county court, January 6, 1908, be set aside as not being the last from will and testament of deceased. The Winchester Democrat Friday, June 12, 1908 J. S. Hamilton, Deputy United States Marshal of Owsley county, was shot from ambush Tuesday in Breathitt county and fatally wounded. He had recently arrested a large number of moonshiners and this fact probably let to his murder. The Democrat, Wednesday, August 31, 1892.
	A Mt. Sterling special of Sunday says: "United States Deputy Marshal Daniels, who arrived in this city this morning from Knott County, brings news of the probably fatal shooting of Special Bailiff J. S. Hamilton by moonshiners. Hamilton had been given warrants to serve on a family named Riley, and accompanied by John Riley, proceeded to the home of the Riley's to serve the warrants. The parties had in the meantime got information of the approach of the officers and laid in ambush for them. When within a few yards of the ambush Hamilton was fired upon, eleven bullets taking effect in his body. It is supposed that four of the Rileys did the shooting, and officers are vigorously searching for them. At last accounts Hamilton was still alive. Marshal Daniels left for Zanesville this afternoon to report the shooting to the Revenue officials. The Rileys have long been known as notorious parties. Hamilton's companion escaped with but a slight wound." The Democrat, Wednesday, August 31, 1892.

T m oi m	The jury in the Taylor murder case at Barbourville, after being out thirty-six hours. Thursday morning returned a verdict finding the defendant guilty of voluntary manslaughter, and fixed his punishment at confinement in the penitentiary for a period of twenty-one years. Taylor and a man named Davis were accused of the murder of a man named Hamacker, on Stinking creek, sometime last winter, and it was probably times with a knife. There were no eye-witnesses to the killing hence the light verdict.

Hammet, Robert David	Robert David Hammet, 71, of Winchester KY, passed away on Tuesday, October 3, 2023, after a brief illness, at Saint Joseph Hospital, Lexington, KY. He was born August 28, 1952 in Wincehster KY, the son of Sarah Scobee and Hugh Bedford Hammet of Bethesda, Md, and the grandson of Dr Robert Hughes Scobee of Winchester, Ky. Robert was a graduate of Transylvania University class of 1974 in Lexington KY and was a member of the Kappa Alpha order fraternity. He earned a doctorate degree in American Art History at the American University in Washington DC. Robert was a Horseman having trained and jockeyed with the Kentucky Equestrian community. He was a talented artist who painted beautiful portraits of Kentucy dignitaries and other often gifting them as a symbol of gratitude and thanks for those close to him. His love of animals was profound as evidenced by the fact that his sister named her dog Rocky Robert after his uncle Robert! Robert will be missed by his adult nephews who would call to review their bets on Derby Day with their uncle. We all will miss his great conversation, wisdom and humor!!! . He is survived by one brother, Glenn Hammet of London, UK, and one sister, Betsy Emmons, of Scarboro, Maine; and five nephews; Aaron Scobee, Colby Mallan and Tyler Daniel Emmons from New England and Renat and Max Hammet-Millay from London, UK. The family would like to especially thank the wonderful nurses and medical team at Saint Joseph Hospital, Lexington, KY. A funeral service will be held at the Winchester Cemetery on Saturday, October 7 th at 11:00am.

Hammons, William Earl	William Earl "Pop" Hammons (born March 17, 1925), passed away on Saturday, March 12, in Greer, South Carolina, just a few days short of his 97th birthday. Earl was the son of William Monroe Hammons and Josephine Jordan Hammons, a brother to Elsie Mae Dulin (Tom), and a native of Clark County, Kentucky.
	Earl graduated from Clark County High School in 1944 and began volunteer service in the U.S. Navy, where he served on the U.S.S. Lanier during WWII in the South Pacific. After the Navy, Earl attended Kentucky Wesleyan College in Winchester, Kentucky, where he met the love of his life, Nancy Ruth Anderson. Earl and Ruth were married for more than fifty-eight years until Ruth's passing in 2006. They raised two children, Sarah Hammons Dove and William Michael Hammons (Theresa ("Willie")). While farming with his father, Earl was in manager training for Kroger grocery store in Winchester, Kentucky. He moved with his family to Paris, Kentucky in 1955 as Kroger manager, and in 1967 became owner of Convenient Food Mart in Lexington. After retirement, he also enjoyed working at the True Value hardware store in Eastland Shopping Center. He was well-respected in his community and honored as a Kentucky Colonel.
	Though Earl had a long and successful career, his greatest joy in life came from his family. He is predeceased by his wife Ruth and his sister Elsie.
	He is survived by his daughter Sarah, his son Mike, and his daughter-in-law Willie, whom he always saw as another daughter, as well as three grandchildren; Adam Michael Hammons (Nikki), Ashley Christine Standera (Josh ("Stan")), and Audra Ruth Turkus (Jesse); four great-grandchildren, Sam Michael Turkus, Jack Benjamin Turkus, Logan William Standera, and Everett Hammons Standera; nephews Tommy Dulin (Sue) and John Dulin (Ellen); niece Caie Dulin; and great-nephew Hiram Dulin.
	Known to his family and many friends and acquaintances as "Pop," Earl was a lover of sports including golf and horse-racing, as well as a lifelong Kentucky Wildcats fan. In 2012, he moved to Greer, South Carolina to be closer to family; there, he joined Covenant United Methodist Church, where he made many new friends and became a fan of the Clemson Tigers. He spent many Saturday's cheering on the Tigers while tailgating with friends and family. He became well-known for his famous beer cheese recipe, and occasionally enjoyed a nice bourbon and Ale-8 with a cigar. He was a stranger to no one and a friend to everyone and he will be greatly missed by all who knew him.
	Services will be held at Scobee Funeral Home in Winchester, KY. A visitation will be held on Friday, March 18 from 6 to 8 pm with funeral services Saturday March 19 at 11 am at the Leon Pace Memorial Chapel.

Hampton, David S.	By His Own Hand. Our community was shocked Thursday evening by the announcement that David S.
	Hampton, of this city, had committed suicide.
	About six o'clock he sat on the door step and placed the muzzle of an old fashioned squirrel rifle in his mouth and by means of a string attached to the trigger, discharged the gun. The ball ranged backward and upward, shattering the skull and lodging under the skin of the scalp. Death was instantaneous and was evidently carefully prearranged.
	He left a note, asking that no reflections be cast upon his daughters on account of his action; he also stated that his misery was more than he could bear, and closed by asking forgiveness for his act.
	He leaves one son, Wade Hampton, and two daughters, Misses Mattie and Mollie Hampton. His wife, who was Miss Susan Cooper, died several years ago. A brother, Phillip Hampton, and sister, Mrs. Margaret Stevenson, also survive.
	The remains were taken the following day to the old Fox burial ground near Pilot View for interment.
	Coroner Brinegar summoned a jury, composed of R. A. Scobee, S. W. Anderson, M. G.
	Outten, Joe Fielder, S. P. Gannon, G. L. Wills, who brought in a verdict in accordance with the facts above stated.
	He was an honest, pure hearted man, a splendid citizen, and had a host of relatives and friends. Continued ill health and financial trouble is supposed to have been the cause of the suicide.

Hampton, Jesse (Littlle Jesse)	Order Book 17; P. 530 - 531; November Court 1880 Died-At Keytsville, Mo., August 30 th , 1879, "Little Jesse", infant son of C. J. and
Hampton, Jesse (Little Jesse)	Mattie Hampton, aged nearly eighteen months. He was a sprightly, bright and sweet little boy, the loved one of the family. Jesus has taken him to himself, for of such is his kingdom. Fond parents, put your trust in God and you shall see him again, more beautiful than when on earth, not marred or blemished by sin. You have now a strong link to bind you to a good life that you may see him again. Hope in God, he can bind up the broken hearted, and soothe all your sorrows. A Friend.

Hampton, John	An Old Physician Dead
	Dr. John Hampton, one of the oldest residents of our city, died at his residence on South Main street at an early hour Thursday evening of old age. He was born near Pinchem more than eighty-three years ago and lived in that neighborhood until about the war when he went to Lexington and lived there until about ten years ago when he moved to this city where he has since resided. In 1839 he married Miss Minerva Hampton, a relative who died in 1860. The following year he married Miss Nancy Price, of Woodford county, whom died about twelve years ago.
	Two children were the result of the first marriage, a son, who died, and a daughter, now Mrs. Ben Taul. There were no children from the last marriage. A number of years ago he slipped and fell, injuring his hip and the remainder of his life he was a cripple. More than fifty years ago he united with the Baptist church an Indian Creek which was afterward merged with Old Unity to form Mt. Olive, and was a consistent Christian whose daily companion was the Bible. He was a kind, gentle old man, cheerful and loving and leaves many friends. He was buried in the cemetery, services at the grave by Rev. Richard French.

Hampton, Mrs. George	Motorist Dies After Accident
Trampion, wirs. George	Mrs. George Hampton, 42, Negro, died at approximately 8:15 a.m. today as the auto she was driving left North Burns Avenue and crashed into a house.
	Coroner James W. Bean said at noon today that an examination of the body showed that the victim suffered a broken neck as a result of the crash, and this was attributed as the cause of death.
	In preliminary examination at the scene of the accident this morning Coroner Bean said it appeared that Mrs. Hampton suffered a heart attack while she was driving along the street. After further investigation, the coroner discovered that the motorist sustained the broken neck in the crash. He said it may be possible that the woman was stricken by a heart ailment, but that would not be definitely known unless an autopsy was ordered.
	Patrolmen David Davis and Kenny Charles, who were called to the scene, said the Hampton auto struck a delivery truck, ran over the street curbing and struck the house of Mrs. Missouri Bluster, 25 North Burns.
	Mrs. Hampton resided on Edgemont Avenue, near the city limits in Poynterville. Her husband is employed by the Bedford and Tuttle store here.

Hampton, Simpson AA	Killing at Ford. Friday Simpson Hampton, a negro, was sitting on the scales in Ford talking to a companion, when James Johnson, another negro, came up and asked why Hampton was carrying a pistol for him. This Hampton denied and started to rise when Johnson struck him on the head with a piece of scantling, fracturing his skull from which he died the following day. Drs. Hood Williamson and Shirley performed an autopsy to ascertain the exact cause of death. Coroner Wills summoned a jury composed of Ed Bruce, J. H. Estes, John Adams, Judah Harris, Scott Thompson and William Holder, who brought in a verdict with the above facts. Johnson was arrested, brought to this city and lodged in jail. He waived examination on the charge of malicious assault. After the death of Hampton the charge was changed to murder. No examination was held as the Grand Jury is now in session and will take charge of the case. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, May 7, 1901 Circuit Court Jas. Johnson, a negro, was given two years in the pen for killing Simpson Hampton, another negro, near Ford. The Winchester Democrat Fri., Sept. 27, 1901

Hampton, Thornton	Death Of Thornton Hampton Our community was shocked at the news of the death at an early hour Monday morning of Thornton Willis Hampton, although these things had been expected for several days. Tuesday night he was in his usual health, but was suddenly stricken with meningitis. He became unconscious in a few moments and remained so until his death. He was forty-seven years old and unmarried. An honest upright, kindly gentleman. He was deservedly popular and at the time of his death was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Sheriff. He belonged to one of our oldest and best families and leaves a mother, four brothers and two sisters and a host of devoted friends to mourn his loss. The remains will be buried in the Winchester cemetery at eleven o'clock this morning with services at the grave by Revs. B. B. Bailey and R. French.

Hancock, Arthur Boyd Sr. Hancock, Charles B.	Died Charles Hancock, a prominent lawyer of Stanton, Powell county, who is well known here died Saturday of consumption. The Winchester Democrat Fri., June 23, 1899 Resolutions of Respect.
	At the opening of the Powell Circuit Court, on Monday, June 18, 1899, at Stanton, Ky., the death of C. B. Hancock, a member of the Powell county bar, was announced, and on motion the special Judge presiding appointed a committee consisting of W. M. Beckner, J. W. Lilly and C. F. Spencer, to draft and report suitable resolutions. At the session of the court in the afternoon of the same day the following resolutions were reported and adopted by the bar assembled, to-wit: We mourn the loss of Charles B. Hancock who died at his home in Stanton, on June 17, 1899, in the forty-first year of his age. Born and reared in Cincinnati, Ohio, he had enjoyed the opportunities for culture and education offered by a great city, and was a ripe scholar and had a bright, quick mind, which showed the results of study and a general acquaintance with the best literature. Manly and generous in disposition, he was a warm, faithful friend and kindly and liberal to all who called on him for help or who had occasion to be associated with him. As a lawyer he was true to his clients, and courteous in his intercourse with his professional brethren. As a husband and father he was devoted and affectionate and as a citizen, always in sympathy with law and order, and anxious for the growth and development of the community in which he lived. He came to Stanton about fifteen years ago, taught school, practiced law and acted for a long period as United States Commissioner. In all these relations he secured the confidence and esteem of those of whom he came in contact. For years the shadow of death had hung over him, and to cross over the river and rest on the other side must be a relief to one so long and so hopelessly afflicted. We present this memorial and ask that it be spread on the records of the Powell Circuit Court and published in the Winchester and Mt. Sterling newspapers, and that a certified copy hereof be sent to the widow of the deceased. W. M. Beckner, J. W. Lilly, C. F. Spencer, Com. The Court then adjourned until June 20th, 1899 out of respect for the deceased. J. D. Atkinson, Special Judge

Miller, Lexi Miller and Blakely Shelton. Funeral services 1:30 PM, Tuesday, April

How do you sum up a person's life in a couple paragraphs? The truth is you cannot. Bob was a husband, father, grandfather, son, bother, and above all a Christian. He was much more than that to anyone who knew him. He loved unconditionally his family, friends, and church family. He would lend a helping hand when any need would arise.

What will get his family through the hard days they have been through and the hard days to come? The strength he has passed on to them and the hope of seeing him again one day in heaven.

Bob Haney went to be with his Savior on Thursday, September 7, 2023, with his family by his side at the Clark Regional Medical Center. He was born on September 17, 1945 in North Middletown (Bourbon County, KY) and spent most of his life residing in Winchester. He graduated from George Rogers Clark High School in 1963 and served in the Army Reserves for 6 years. Bob retired after 30 years at Rockwell/Meritor and worked several years afterward at the Bluegrass Army Depot. Bob loved spending time with his family, volunteering at the church, where for many years he served on various boards of the church and Clark County Christian School. He was a part of the Men's Group, served as an usher, a greeter, and the mowing team. He also enjoyed fishing and playing golf. He is preceded in death by his parents, Shirley and Rosalie Haney of Winchester. He is survived by his loving wife of 54 years, Janet Pendland Haney, two children, Robert (Robbie) Allen Haney Jr. (wife Amanda) and Jennifer (Jenny) Haney Noplis (husband Anthony), one grandchild, Jake Noplis, who referred to him as "Pa", his sister Faye Wilson (husband Ed), sister-in-law Suzy Pendland (husband Steve Bergstedt), and several cousins. He was blessed to have a loving, caring Respit caregiver, Sarah Conkwright.

A celebration of life well lived for his Savior will be Monday, September 18, 2023 at the First Church of God, 2500 Colby Road. Officiating the service will be Pastor Allan Hutchinson, Pastor Bill Konstantopoulos, Pastor Gary Brown, and Pastor Kristy Marcum. The visitation will be 11:00 am – 2:00 pm, funeral at 2:00 pm, and the burial to immediately follow at the Boonesboro Cemetery. Pallbearers for the services will be James Schanding, Ernest Clark, John Jako, Mike McGuire, Kenny Keeton, and Don Cartwright. Honorary pallbearers are Bob & Letha Feeback, Bob & Margaret Ann Cartwright, Delmar & Linda Carter, Rick & Rhoda Moore, Roy & Wanda Wood, Glynn & Magnolia Rawlins, Ralph Palmer, Steve Palmer, Teresa Clark, Linda Jako, Linda McGuire, Jennifer Keeton and Becky Hollon.

His family wishes to express a very special thanks to Dr. William Greiser and the caring staff of Hospice East, the staff at Clark Regional Medical Center and his Primary Provider, Jennifer Morris APRN and her staff. They provided excellent care for Bob and our family during his battle with dementia.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to First Church of God building or mission

The Winchester Democrat, Friday, March 29, 1895. At Campton, April 24 th , after a long illness, Hon. C. M. Hanks, aged about 78 years. He was the father of Mrs. Chas. S. Gay, of this county, and was one of the most influential men in the mountains. He had served many years as Jailer, Representative and Common Pleas Judge, and when Wolfe county was created, and spent nearly all his fortune in advocating the claims of Campton to be the county seat as against Hazel Green. The Democrat, Wednesday, May 4, 1892. A Large Estate In 1835, John Harper left Kentucky for the Indian Territory where he registered his claim as a member of the Choctaw tribe. He returned to Kentucky before taking possession of his claim, which is now held to be of great value. The heirs of C. M. Hanks, late of Campton have inherited a large portion of the estate and Mrs. Charles S. Guy, of this city is one of the heirs. The Winchester Democrat Fri., Nov. 21, 1902

Hanks, daughter	A dispatch from Catlettsburg to the Courier Journal, dated Tuesday says: "The little daughter of the Rev. L. B. Hanks, pastor of the Methodist church, died today at 12:30 o'clock of spinal meningitis. A series of meetings has been in progress in which the little girl, seven years of age, has been taking an active part. Last night she told the members of the church that she had been greatly blessed during the meeting. This morning the girl told her mother that she would die at 12 o'clock. The little one took sick and at 12:30 o'clock she died. This is the third child that has died in the family, giving their parents forewarning of their death." Mrs. Hanks was Mrs. Laura Fox niece. Hart and the remains were brought here and interred Thursday in Jesse Hart family graveyard. The Democrat, February 17, 1892. Rev. L. H. Hanks and wife leave today for their home in Catlettsburg. They came here with the remains of their little daughter for interment. The Democrat, February 17, 1892.

Hanks, Lewis Perry	Death of Rev. L. P. Hanks. Rev. Lewis Perry Hanks died at his home on Highland street Sunday afternoon after a comparatively short illness of typhoid fever. About three weeks ago, while getting on a street car in Cincinnati, the car started and he was thrown violently down, suffering severe bruises and perhaps internal injuries. This is supposed to have hastened his death. He was thirty-nine years of age and was a native of Breckinridge county, where his aged mother still lives. He was converted at the age of thirteen and in a few years entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church, or Northern Methodists, as it is popularly termed. He was an able minister and had pastoral care of a number of churches during his ministry. About fifteen years ago he married Mrs. Laura Fox, widow of the late Ben Hardin Fox, and who was originally Miss Hart. She survives him, with a son nine years old and a daughter of three years. He was a prominent Mason and Odd Fellow, belonging to the Masonic Lodge at Barbourville, the Commandery at Maysville, and the Odd Fellows Lodge at Vanceburg. The funeral will be preached at the Methodist Church by Dr. Means and the remains will be placed in the vault. The time of the funeral has not yet been determined upon. The Masons and Odd Fellows will have charge of the ceremonies.

Trainia, Ivancy Jean	29, 2023 at Saint Joseph Hospital in Lexington, Kentucky. She was born on January 13, 1941, in Camden, New Jersey. She was the daughter of the late Harrell and Rosalind Noble, who made their home in Xenia, Ohio. Nancy graduated from Carnegie Institute of Technology in 1963 receiving her bachelor's degree (Home Economics major, English minor) from the Margaret Morrison Carnegie College. Later she earned a master's degree in Mathematics from the University of Kentucky.
	Nancy was a Clark County School teacher who worked decades at Conkwright Middle School. After retiring from being a public-school teacher, she served as principal for Calvary Kids Christian School for several years. Nancy was a faithful long-time member at Calvary Christian Church. She served on various committees and in many ways, such as leading the Precepts women's bible study. She loved digging into the Bible and helping others experience God by facilitating the study of Scripture. Her steadfast faith in Jesus was foundational to all she did in life.
	Nancy was married for 61 years to Doug, the love of her life. They wed on August 3, 1962. Inscribed on the inside of their wedding bands is Psalm 34:3 – "O magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt his name together". This verse being engraved on their wedding bands was a symbol of their mutual devotion to the LORD and the fact that their marriage was grounded in their love for, service to, and worship of the LORD.
	Nancy was well known for many things, including baking, cooking, and quilting. She quilted many blankets over the years and was also a member of Quilts for Kids, where she volunteered countless hours quilting for Children's Hospitals. In addition, Nancy enjoyed gardening, raising beautiful flowers, dogs, and cats.
	Nancy deeply loved her family. Survivors include her loving husband of 61 years Douglas Hanna; children, Douglas Lee (Corrine) Hanna II and their children, Hayleigh, Tessa, Caleb, and Levi; Jimmy Hanna; David Lewis (Wendy Clark) Hanna; Margie (Adam) Sealey and their children, Christina, Sarah, and Rebecca; Denise (Jerry) Crawford and their children Jerry, Devon, and Dylan. She is also survived by her siblings, Harry (Mary Ann) Noble and Linda Christine Joseph, several nieces, nephews, great grandchildren, and many extended family members.
	A visitation will be held from 5:00-6:00 PM, Thursday, October 5, 2023, at Calvary Christian Church, 15 Redwing Drive, Winchester, KY. Funeral service will begin at 6:00 PM by Pastor Doug Hanna. The burial will be on Saturday, October 7, 2023, in Sunbury Ohio.

	Death of Richard H. Hanson; Hon. Richard Hickman Hanson, for a long time a resident of this city, died at his home in Paris, Friday, aged seventy three years. He was born here of a noted family. His father Samuel Hanson, was a native of Alexandria, Va., studied law; came to Kentucky in 1807 first stopping for a while in Paris and Richmond, but finally settling permanently in this city; was one of the most able and successful lawyers in the State; was for a number of years Commonwealth's Attorney; served eight years in the State Senate, from 1835 to 1843; was Speaker of the Senate and acting Lieutenant-Governor from the death of Gov. James Clark in 1839 until the inauguration of his successor after the regular election in 1840 was first elected to the Lower House in 1813 and served his last term in 1851, was son of Samuel Hansen, Sr., who never came to Kentucky. His wife belonged to a family from the earliest intimately identified with the history of Kentucky; they had thirteen children; she died in 1848 and he 1858 at their home here. Richard Hanson's mother was Matilda Calloway Hickman, a daughter of Lieutenant-Governor Hickman of this city and related to a number of our best people. Gov. Hickman was one of the early Virginia settlers of this county and one of the distinguished men of the State; he was a soldier in the war of the revolution, was a member of the Second Constitutional Convention, which assembled in Frankfort in 1799; was a member of the Lower House of the Legislature from 1793 to 1798; was sixteen years in the State Senate, being first elected to that body in 1800 and serving his last term from 1819 to 1823; was the 4th Lt.-Governor for Kentucky, elected in 1812; acted as Governor in the absence of Gov. Shelby during the campaign of 1813; was esteemed for his many virtues and was one of the most intelligent and valuable men of his day.

Richard Hanson was liberally educated at Miami College, Ohio and at Danville this State. When eighteen years old he served as deputy Sheriff and two years later began the study of law under his father. In 1840 he graduated from the law department of Transylvania University; he practiced law here for three or four years when he moved to Paris, where he has since resided. He was elected to the Legislature from Bourbon county in 1846 and re-elected in 1847; was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1849; was appointed Commonwealth's Attorney for the district which Bourbon county formed a part, by Gov. Crittenden; was elected by the people to the same office; filled the position nearly six years, resigning before the expiration of his term; was elected to the Legislature in 1863 and served one term. He was a Whig until the dissolution of that party; voted for Bell for the Presidency in 1860 and was an earnest Union man throughout the civil war. The Hansons were fighting men and when the war broke out four of the boys promptly volunteered. Charles and Sam donned the blue and white while Roger and Ike put on the gray. Roger was to be commander of the famous Orphan Brigade and died in front of his men in the terrible charge at Stone River. Charley was grievously wounded at Saltville, but lived to die of its effects after the close of the war. He also commanded a brigade but only held the rank of Colonel. At a meeting of the members of the Winchester Bar held at the Courthouse Saturday, Judge James Flanagan was called to the chair and J. D. Mitchell made Secretary. The object of the meeting being stated by the Chairman to be for the purpose of taking suitable action upon the death of Hon. Richard H. Hanson. On the motion of Messrs. C. S. French, Rodney Haggard, W. M. Beckner, J. M. Benton and T. G. Stuart were appointed a committee to draft resolutions indicative of the sentiment of the members to their late distinguished associate. After retiring, the committee made the following report which was unanimously adopted, viz.

Resolved That it is with the deepest sorrow we have learned of the death of our distinguished friend and former advocate as practicing lawyer at this bar, the Hon. R. H. Hanson and we cannot forbear giving expression to the regard we cherish for the deceased and our admiration for the many virtues which adorned his character. 2d. That we recognize in him a friend loyal and true to his conviction of duty a counselor wise and prudent and learned in his profession, a citizen and patriot honest and upright, and one who loved his country better than all honors and spoils of office. 3d. That in token of our regard we attend his funeral in a body.

- 4th. That a copy of these proceedings be presented to the Clark Circuit Court at its next regular term to be spread at large upon its records and a copy presented to the family of the deceased.
- 5th. That the Winchester and Paris papers be requested to publish the proceedings of the meeting.

The order of the exercises is to be in charge of the honorary Confederate Veterans Association composed of the women of Lexington, of which Mrs. James M. Graves is President. The ceremonies will be simple embracing a prayer by the Rev. G. B. Overton of Louisville, who was at one time a Chaplain and Lieutenant in the Second Kentucky Infantry, Gen. Hancock's old regiment; and addressed by Cat. Ed. Porter Thompson, who was Quartermaster of the Sixth Kentucky Infantry Orphan Brigade.

There will also be musical selections. The committee in charge is arranging to secure reduced railroad rates for the occasion.

The Winchester Democrat, Friday, June 28, 1895.

THE monument erected to the memory Gen. Roger Hanson and wife by the member of the Orphan Brigade, was unveiled at Lexington Wednesday, the address being delivered by Capt. Ed. Porter Thomson, State Superintendent of Public Instruction and a member of that celebrated brigade.

Gen. Hanson met his death at the deadly charge of Breckenridge's division at Murfreesboro January 2d, 1863.

He was born in this city in 1827 and was a son of Samuel Hanson, an eminent lawyer of our bar. Before he attained his majority he went to Mexico as first lieutenant in Capt. John S. Williams' company. After the close of the Mexican war he joined the 49ers in the mad rush for California gold. For some cause he fought a duel with one of his friends, named Duke, and a ball from Duke's pistol shattered Hanson's hip, laming him for life. While wounded he conceived the idea of studying law, and after his return from the West he began the practice of law in this city. Being a natural politician he soon embarked in a struggle for office, his first race being for the Legislature against his old Captain, Gen. Williams. The race was a close one and Williams won by six votes. The next term Hanson had no opposition and was elected. At the close of his term of office he moved to Lexington and began the practice of law. In 1855 he was elected to the Legislature from Fayette county, and the year following he distinguished himself in a canvass of the State as elector for the State-at-large on the Fillmore ticket. In 1856 he was nominated by the American or Know Nothing party as a candidate for Congress from the Ashland district. The Democratic candidate was Jas. B. clay, son of Henry clay. He beat Hanson so badly that the Know Nothing party was never again a force in Fayette Politics.

In 1859 he canvassed the State against Beriah Magoffin and the next year he supported the Union ticket, Bell and Everett. At the beginning of the war he was a Union man, but when the issues of war were made he sided with the South and threw himself at once into the war with all the vim of his nature. He entered the Confederate service as Colonel of the Second Kentucky Infantry. He was a strict disciplinarian and his regiment at once took rank with the best in the service. He was captured at Ft. Donaldson and after his exchange he was made a General and put in command of a brigade composed of the Second, Fourth, Sixth and Ninth Kentucky regiments, ht celebrated Orphan Brigade. It was commanded first by John C. Breckenridge who was promoted to a Major General's place. Gen Hanson succeeded him. When Hanson was killed, Gen. Ben. Hardin at Chickamauga and Gen. Joe Lewis commanded it to the end of the war.

Gen. Hanson was struck by a shell in the grand charge of Breckenridge's division on the "fated Friday" at Murfreesboro, a charge in which in less than an hour nearly half of that grand division was lost. His leg was torn nearly off and he died in the course of a few hours. He was buried at Nashville and three years afterward his old comrades brought the remains to Lexington where they have since remained.

The Winchester Democrat, Friday July 12, 1895.

"Mr. Tolliver Young, of Sharpsburg," says the Maysville Bulletin, "has a plug of tobacco that was found in the pockets of Gen. Roger Hanson after the latter was killed at the battle of Stone Gap. The clothing worn by Gen. Hanson at the time of his death is still in possession of his family, and has been preserved just in the condition when taken from his body."

The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, September 24, 1895

Hanson, Samuel

When Henry Clay went to Washington for the first time to serve out the unexpired term of General Adair in the Senate, he became acquainted with a young man named Samuel Hanson who had just completed his law studies and was on the lookout for a location. When he came home he brought his new friend with him and tried to persuade him to locate at Lexington but the bar at that place seemed so full that he hesitated to take the chances. He was without money and desired to find an opening where the prospects for quick returns would be more encouraging. He tried Paris and then Richmond, but finally in 1808, took up his permanent residence in Winchester, induced in part it is said by an attachment he had formed for a beautiful girl who lived near the Bourbon line in this county.

Mr. Hanson was born May 14, 1786, in the city of Alexandria, then a part of the District of Columbia, and received a good classical education in one of the high schools for which Virginia was once so famous. After he quit school, he served for a while in one of the clerks offices in the then young city of Washington, and finally read law with Charles Symmes, a distinguished lawyer of that place. He was thoroughly prepared for the practice of his profession when he came to Winchester. He had been a diligent student under a skillful master and had an accuracy of information which was a distinguishing trait during his entire career. When he first came here, he boarded with Mrs. Spillman, who kept tavern on the corner of Washington and Water streets where Jerry Wilson now has his grocery. Clark was a leader at the bar and Chilton Allan soon began the practice. There were a number of other able lawyers, but Mr. Hanson at once acquired a fine practice and had every prospect of speedily making a great fortune. Land litigation was abundant and profitable, and when men did not fight in those days, they sued over every controversy. The practice of law had better rewards then than it has now.

Mr. Hanson was ever a generous, devoted friend, and men whom he liked could always command his aid as security. In this way he lost a great deal of money. And then a few years after he came here, Winchester had quite a boom and prices of town property, ran up to figures beyond what they are now. Mr. Hanson bought the corner where John Spohn's meat shop now is, (opposite the mill on Main street) and other property at big prices, but in a short time, the bubble burst and he lost a great deal of money. This reverse of fortune no doubt kept him out of the wider stream of politics and was the cause of his adhering more closely to his profession than was usual in those days for young men of his ability and ambition. He was sent to the legislature in 1818 and was a member in 1825, 26, 27, 33, 34, 50, 51. In 1835, he was elected to the State Senate and continued a member until 1843. Two years of this time, he served as Speaker of the Senate or Lieutenant-Governor of the state, having succeeded Charles A. Wickliffe, who became Governor when Clark died in 1839. D. C. Wickliffe, the able editor of the Lexington Observer and Reporter, in a warmly written obituary notice of him in his paper, says of his Legislative career:

"The records of the Legislature for years has the impress of his masterly genius and the conservative principles which marked his whole political history; and few survive him who have exerted a more potent influence upon the policy of the State during the stormiest periods of our political history." Among other things that he advocated earnestly, was the projected railroad from Cincinnati to Charleston, which for a time was so warmly agitated along its line. Had it been built, it might have changed the history of the south. Mr. Hanson never held a State or Federal office. It was his delight to work for his friends and so astute was he as a politician that for years he bore the sobriquet of Talleyrand. He served for a time as Commonwealth's Attorney and was for twenty odd years the County Attorney of Clark by election of the County Court. In 1849, he was a candidate for a seat in the Constitutional Convention, but was defeated by Dr. Andrew Hood, a man of great force of character and a very popular physician of the county. At the next election, the people sent him to the Legislature. He died on the 6th day of February, 1858, and was mourned by the entire community. He had been a useful citizen, and was a kindly, good neighbor, a devoted self-sacrificing friend and a most indulgent father. He married three times and had thirteen children, two by his first wife, who was the young lady that attracted him to Winchester, and eleven by his second wife, who was the daughter of Gen. Richard Hickman, of this county. His first set of children were daughters; Serena, who married a gentleman named Smith and lived in Louisiana and Maria, afterwards Mrs. Hockaday. His second set were Hon. R. H. Hanson, Gen. Roger W. Hanson, Col. Charles S. Hanson, Samuel Hanson, Thomas Hanson, Isaac Hanson, Misses Sarah and Kate Hanson, Matilda, who married James C. Stone, a prominent citizen of Missouri, Mary, who married Mr. Gladding of Rhode Island, and Ellen, who became the wife of Capt. Helm of Virginia. Mr. Hanson did not have the popular gifts of Gov. Clark or the general reading of Captain Allan, but he was a better lawyer than either. It was his rule to read Blackstone every year, and he was specially accomplished in the science of pleading. He was always strong before a jury and had no superior when it came to presenting a question of law to the court. His mind was logical, clear and vigorous and his learning in his profession was accurate and thorough. He would have made a great Judge had fortune called him to such a position, and was always a leader in every case in which he was engaged. He was unsurpassed in selecting a jury as he was thoroughly acquainted with the people and had a marvelous knowledge of human nature. Take him, all in all, the Winchester bar has had no abler lawyer which is high praise, when we consider by whom it has been adorned. His picture hangs in the Courthouse next to that of Mr. Allan, who was strictly his contemporary, both having been born in 1786 and having died in 1858. They were warm, personal friends until the latter part of their lives when they became estranged but, during the last illness of Mr. Hanson, the two noble old men had a conference, acknowledged the folly and vanity of animosities over the trivial things of this earth in the face of the eternity just before them both, and became fully reconciled. Mr. Hanson had entertained generously, had been liberal in providing for his family and in helping his friends, and had lost much money in paying security debts, but in spite of all this, left a considerable estate. He was undoubtedly one of the great men of the county. 	The Hardin family came to Kentucky about 1784 and the most prominent of them settled in Washington county. Martin D. Hardin, Col. John Hardin and Ben Hardin will be ever remembered as belonging to the category of Kentucky's great men.
	Gen. P. Watt Hardin received his education in the schools of Adair county. He studied law with his father and was admitted to the bar in 1865. From the very first Gen.
	Hardin was the pride of relatives and friends because of his noble heart and graceful manners. In 1870 he was naminated by the Democratic State Convention for Attorney General of In 1879 he was nominated by the Democratic State Convention for Attorney General of Kentucky and was elected, re-elected in 1883 and again in 1887. In 1891 he was a candidate for Governor and after a splendid contest was defeated by Hon. John Young Brown.
	As an orator he has few superiors. His fine work in the Bradley-Buckner campaign was greater than all the leaders together.

Harding, Jas. W.	Wades Mill.
riarding, Jas. w.	Eld. Jas. W. Harding was a guest of Dr. and Mrs. Snowden one day last week. He is one of our oldest and most popular preachers. He was born in Winchester May 6, 1823, and has lived in the city all his life. He has been preaching more than half a century. His first charge was Ruckerville, and soon after he was called to preach for the congregation at Log Lick. Squire William Prewett's first wife, who was a Miss Quisenberry, was the first person he ever baptized. Bro. H. said: "I approached this task with fear and trembling, but the dear sister was a splendid subject and I got along nicely. I don't know that I have ever done any better on a similar occasion since." It is more than probable that I have ever done any better on a similar occasion since. It is more than probable that Bro. Harding has preached more funerals and married more people than any other minister who ever lived in our county. I suppose Eld. Wm. Rupard would make a close second. In answer to our question, Bro. H. Said: "The largest fee I ever received for marrying a couple was paid by Harry Groom. He married a Miss Arnold at Frankfort.

Harding, Jesse	He paid my way there and back and gave me $50. The smallest fee was a plugged half dollar which I sold to the bank for 35 cts. Bro. Ben Groom paid me the biggest salary I ever received for preaching. He said to me one day during the war, that he was making money fast and he felt like he ought to spend some of it in the service of the Lord. "I want to give you one thousand dollars for half your time this year, and you go where you think you can do the most good." It may have been the same year that he made me a present of a fine $200 horse. In his prosperous days Bro. Groom was a real helpful friend of mine and did me a great many favors. It was in the year of 1855 I was preaching at North Middletown. I preached on a Saturday and Sunday and, as was quite frequently my custom, I spent Sunday night with Bro. D. J. Pendleton, who lived on the creek just back of the Alpheus Lewis dwelling. Next morning on my way to Winchester, I met a runner who told me my store had burned down the night before. Like most everybody else in these days I carried no insurance. I had no money or very little to pay my bills as they fell due, and here Bro. Groom, with other good friends, came to my rescue and endorsed for me until I could get on my feet again. Of my boyhood schoolmates there are still living a very few; among whom I can just now think of are I. N. Massie, Robt. and Nicholas Winn and Judge James Flanagan. Judge Flanagan is the oldest native born citizen in Winchester and I am the next oldest. My father and his two brothers came to Kentucky from Boston about eighty years ago. My father settled in Winchester, one brother in Paris and the other went to Huntsville, Alabama. The Paris brother went west when the country was a vast wilderness. He was never heard from and it was always supposed that he was robbed and murdered. When I was a little child my father removed to Huntsville, Alabama. He only lived a few months and my mother came back at once to Winchester. The Alabama brother owned a water mill and was drowned while tryi

	The following resolutions were adopted by the Women's Missionary Society of the First Presbyterian church: WHEREAS, In the wisdom of our heavenly Father, our President has been taken from the duties and pleasures of earth to the rest and peace of Heaven, and where as in the past six years that she has been a member of this church, she has always sought and labored for its best interests, and we sincerely deplore her loss and desire to manifest our profound sorrow in some lasting tribute to her memory. Therefore be it Resolved, That in the death of Mrs. Harman this Society has lost one of its most valued members, a competent and faithful President.
	2. That her family has lost an affectionate, self-sacrificing wife and mother, devoted to their best welfare and comfort.
	3. That we tender our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family in their deep sorrow and that copies of these resolutions be sent to the deceased and placed upon the minutes

Hargis, Benjamin	Killing at Jackson. Dr. B. D. Cox, a well known and popular physician of Jackson, was assassinated on the Streets of that town Monday night. Shortly after dark he left his office to go home and after going a short distance, three shots were heard and he was found dead in a few moments with twenty-seven buckshot in his body. Nothing is known as to who did the killing or the cause of it. He was guardian of the Cockrell heirs, one of whom killed a Hargis some time ago. He was helping young Cockrell in preparing his defense which may have been the motive for the murder. He was formerly President of the Kentucky Valley Medical Association to which a number of our local physicians belong. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, April 18, 1902.
	Border On Civil War.
	Judges Openly Admit That They Are in Terror of Their Lives.
	Lexington, Ky., June 7.—John N. Johns, an attorney of this city, has returned from Jackson, Ky., whither he went to defend Tom Cockrell, charged with the murder of Ben Hargis, several months ago. Johns says the court and bar of Jackson county are in terror over threats of parties on each side of the Cockrell and Hargis factions and that Judge D. B. Redwine refused to act on application for the change of venue, announcing that he declined to act because of fear of his own life and the lives of others concerned in the trial of the case. Johns says two other attorneys of the bar were elected to preside as special judge, but each refused to act for the same reason. Gov. Beckham has been appealed to and has the matter under advisement. Johns says the county is bordering on a state of civil war over the case, as both factions are prominent and influential. The situation is strained and bloodshed is expected.

Writ of Habeas Corpus.

Sam Cockrell, who killed young Hargis at Jackson some time ago, has been confined in the Stanton jail for safe keeping, either to be kept from being injured by his enemies or rescued by his friends, we don't know which. At the recent term of the Breathitt Circuit Court a change of venue was desired, but such was the state of feeling in the county that Judge Redwine refused to act, and an effort to elect a special judge failed for the same reason. Cockrell is still confined in the Stanton jail, and in an effort to get bail has applied for a writ of habeas corpus, which will be tried today before Judge J. M. Benton.

Marshal Cockrell Shot From the Courthouse Window in Jackson.

Lexington, Ky., July 22.—James Cockrell, town marshal of Jackson, Ky., brother of Tom Cockrell, who shot Ben Hargis there and over which shooting a feud is now on in Breathitt county was shot and mortally wounded at noon Monday from the courthouse window in Jackson. A train is on the way to Lexington with the wounded man to get medical attention.

It is not known who fired the shot. The town is reported in an uproar.

James Cockrell, who was shot at Jackson Monday by unknown parties was brought here Monday night and taken to Good Samaritan hospital. It was found upon examination that he was shot three times. There is a small hope of his recovery. He was met here by his cousin, ex-Congressman Thomas Y. Fitzpatrick.

It is said that the keys to the circuit court room at Jackson, from which the shots were fired, are in the possession of a Hargis man, the opposing faction to the Cockrells. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, July 25, 1902

Other Breathitt Killings.

Things must be in a very bad fix in Breathitt county. It is said that thirty-six men have been killed in that county since Christmas and in most cases no arrests have been made. The most intense excitement was caused by the shooting in broad daylight Monday afternoon of James Cockrell, a prominent young man of that city. He was shot by some unknown person from the window of the courthouse, much in the same manner as Senator Goebel was. Five balls struck him and he died the next morning at the Lexington hospital where he had been taken; the remains were taken to Jackson and buried under the auspices of the Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias to which he belonged.

He was a brother to Tom Cockrell who is in the Stanton jail for killing Ben Hargis, and a nephew of Dr. Cox who was assassinated recently. He had obtained a situation at Ford with the men building the new lock and had gone to Jackson to arrange matters to leave. He was a nephew of Sam Jett of this city; a younger brother, McKinley Cockrell, who had been warned to leave Jackson, also lives here.

More trouble is feared at Jackson and a number of persons have left. The whiskey warehouse of W. S. Will (?) a cousin of the deceased, was buried Monday night. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, July 25, 1902

Special Judge Appointed

Gov. Beckham has appointed Hon. Ira Julian, of Frankfort, a special judge to try the case of Tom Cockrell now in Stanton jail on the charge of murdering Ben Hargis. The first step will be a motion for bail and then for a change of venue.

Cockrell Case.

Judge Ira Julian, who was appointed by Gov. Beckham to try the case of Tom Cockrell charged with the murder of Ben Hargis, opened court in Jackson, Breathitt county, yesterday morning. It was found that the papers covering the application of Cockrell for a change of venue, had disappeared from the records and an adjournment was made until one o'clock today. None of the Attorneys for Cockrell were willing to risk their lives in going to Jackson. The same was true of Cockrell's friends. A lawyer from Mt. Sterling, Nesbit, was finally secured to go and make the motion for a change of venue. Miss Jett, a daughter of Sam Jett and a cousin of Cockrell, was the only one who would risk going to Jackson. Fortunately the attorney's for Cockrell retained a copy of their petition and this will be presented tomorrow. Mr. Sam Jett went to Stanton yesterday afternoon to meet Mr. Nesbitt who came down from Jackson to confer with him. How it is possible for Cockrell to get a fair hearing under the circumstances we cannot see. We are confident that Judge Julian will do his duty, but he can only decide upon what appears before him, and none of Cockrell's lawyers or friends are willing to risk their live by appearing I his defense. Truly this is a deplorable state of affairs.

THE COCKRELL CASE.

Tuesday Fixed as he Time For Hearing Motions For Bail, Etc.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 15.-Judge Ira Julian, appointed by the governor to go to Jackson, Ky., and preside in the trial of Tom Cockrell, met attorneys for the prosecution and defense here Thursday night and fixed Tuesday next as the time for hearing motions for bail and change of venue. Judge Julian declined the offer of Gov. Beckham to send militia to Jackson to insure order, saying that he expected no trouble.

The Winchester Sentinel, Wednesday, August 20, 1902.

From Tom Cockrell.

The Evening Post publishes the following card from Tom Cockrell:

"I see that they are trying to arbitrate matters in Breathitt. It seems to me that Judge D. B. Redwine is the man to grind out justice, to bring peace and order to Breathitt county, but for some cause or other he has not done so. So now it is the commercial clubs and arbitration committees that are trying to settle things. "James Hargis openly boasted in his campaign that he meant to be Judge of Breathitt county, and I, being a Democrat, admitted his pluck. "After the people were so kind in giving him his office (as he says they did) he ought to have taken some steps to have caught the men who brutally murdered Dr. Cox, Jackson's best citizen, from his barn, also the cowardly murderers that shot James Cockrell down in cold blood, nearly in his store door, in broad, open daylight. "Sam Jett", my uncle, of Winchester, is a law abiding citizen, and would not hear to anything but peace and justice, and would not be a leader of the Cockrells if they go gunning (as previously stated). For I do not think there is a Cockrell living, nor a Sam Jett, that would stoop so low as to conceal himself to take the life of any man. All we want and ask for is an impartial hearing in court for myself and to bring the men to justice that murdered my brother, James. "I deny Mr. Doug Hays' statement that I was blind 'drunk' the night I was shot. Hayes certainly must have been that way from his talk. "Nor did I follow him and Hargis anywhere, but he and Hargis were inquiring for me that night. "I had no desire whatsoever to hurt Ben Hargis or no one else, and would, under no circumstances have hurt him, if I had not been forced to save my own life. "Ben was about four years my senior, and we were always friends, schoolmates and associates, and what his motive was for hurting me I cannot see unless it was over trying to arrest his brother, Jas. Hargis, as has been previously stated through the press. "I can speak for my brother, Jim Cockrell, that he could not have been put up to do "ugly things" and any non interested party will verify my statement. He was only working to see that I get an impartial trial and get bail for me (which I am entitled to), before my health was destroyed, which is very bad and I am under the constant care of a physician. THOMAS COCKRELL."

The Winchester Sentinel, Wednesday, August 13, 1902.

Judge Appointed

The Hon. Ira Julian of Frankfort, has been appointed by Gov. Beckham to sit in the case of Thos. Cockrell charged with the killing of Ben Hargis in Breathitt county. Mr. Julian stands high as a lawyer and we believe that his appointment will be satisfactory to all who want to see justice done.

Judge Julian went to Jackson Tuesday to hear motions in the Tom Cockrill murder case. Cockrill waived his right to be present and remained in the Stanton jail. The original petition was lost and time was granted to prepare another. Attorney J. The prosecution, it is claimed, will make a motion that Special Judge Ira Julian can not sit in the case as he was appointed to hear the case only in Breathitt county. The defense will concede the point and another special judge will have to be appointed. However, all the wrangling is believed to be unnecessary, as it is understood the prosecution will ask that Cockrill be dismissed. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, September 12, 1902

Tom Cockrill Acquitted.

The trial of Tom Cockrill for the killing of Ben Hargis was held the past week at Campton, where it was taken by a change of venue from Jackson. Hon. Ira Julian, of Frankfort, presided as special judge. At the trial a most unusual thing occurred. The Commonwealth wished to dismiss the case and the defendant objected. The reason for this objection was that he was afraid another indictment might be procured and he would be forced to go to Jackson for trial. After a short trial the jury acquitted him on the ground of self defense. It is said that Cockrill will make his home in this city. Ben Hargis was killed last spring, and Cockrill himself badly wounded in the fight. The killing was one of the many that has resulted from the bitter feeling between the friends of the Cockrills and the Hargises. The last killing in the feud was the assassination of Jim Cockrill, Tom Cockrill's brother, from the courthouse at Jackson, for which no arrest has ever been made.

The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, October 28, 1902

Tom Cockrell Acquitted.

The trial of Tom Cockrell for the killing of Ben Hargis was held last week at Campton. Hon. Ira Julian, of Frankfort, presided as special Judge. The Commonwealth wished to dismiss the case and the defendant objected. The jury was unanimous for his acquittal.

He came directly to this city and is the guest of his uncle, Sam Jett. While he was in jail, his former guardian, Dr. Cox, and his brother, James were assassinated on the streets of Jackson for no other reason as he believes than they were trying to assist in his defense. He feels deeply over the fact that no effort has been made by either county, district or state to arrest the assassins, but he will not resent it. He does not want to kill anyone, neither does he want to be killed. He expects to locate in another State. The Winchester Sentinel, Wednesday, October 29, 1902 Gone to California. Tom Cockrill, who has been with his uncle, Sam Jett since he was acquitted a few days ago at Campton of the murder of Ben Hargis, left Sunday for California. He has a cousin there who he will visit and where he will probably locate. His brother, Curtis Cockrill has a paying position on the police force at Manila and wants him to come there, which Tom may finally do. He wants to get entirely away from the influences of the feud and says he is satisfied to let the law take its course. He believes the murderers of his brother, James Cockrell, and Uncle, Dr. Cox, will be indicted and punished.

Tom Cockrill, who left from here about ten days ago ostensibly to go to California, went no farther than Frankfort where he served for a few days as guard at the penitentiary while some of the guards went home to vote. He then returned to this city to be the guest of his uncle, Samuel Jett. He has not yet determined what he will do. The Winchester Democrat Tue., Nov. 11, 1902

Vaughn Leaves.

W. W. Vaughn who was the attorney for Tom Cockrell, has left the State. He will go first to Memphis and determine where his future home will be later. Mr. Vaughn has spent part of his time in this city since he was driven from his home. He is a lawyer of ability and a gentleman. He gave the following statement to the Leader at Lexington just before leaving:

"It is with much reluctance that I am about to leave the State and seek a home among strangers. My prospects in Breathitt were very flattering. I had many friends and acquaintances, yet I am compelled to give them all up and abandon a lucrative practice in my profession in order to avoid assassination at the hands of the men whose enmity I have incurred because I undertook to perform my duty as an attorney and defend a man charged with a crime. I am not the only one however, and it is an unjust reflection upon those who have been compelled to hide from bullets shot from ambush to style them "self made exiles."

Breathitt County Poisoning

Flem Tharp, of Breathitt county, was ill and had been taking quinine. From some cause a bottle containing strychnine was substituted for the quinine bottle and he took a dose, and in twenty minutes was dead. It is charged that the bottles were changed by some one maliciously and with the intention to kill Tharp. He was the principal witness against Mose Feltner in the case in which he is charged with conspiring to kill Judge Hargis. Tharp claimed that two years ago $4,500 had been placed in his hands to be paid to Mose Feltner and James Sanifer as soon as Hargis should be killed.

A Parricide

Judge James Hargis shot and killed by his only son, Beach Hargis – End of strenuous

A great sensation was caused Thursday afternoon by the news that Judge James Hargis had been shot and killed by his only son, Beach. The young man had been drinking for some time, and shortly before the killing was in the store of his brother-in-law, Dr. Hogg, at Jackson, where he drew his pistol on a man and frightened customers from the store. He then went to his father's store, and when he entered his father approached him and said something to him. Beach at once drew his pistol and began firing. The father tried to grapple with him when the son threw his coat over his father's face, blinding him while he continued to shoot. Five shots were fired, one taking effect in the breast, three in the bowels and one in the leg. June Jett, who was in the store sprang to his assistance, but with an exclamation for mercy the great feud leader fell to the floor and expired a few minutes later while being carried to his home. Officers Govan Smith and Grover Blanton at once arrested the young man, who fought like a maniac, but who was lodged in jail. Only a few moments before his death Judge Hargis spoke to a friend, saying the conduct of his only son had given him more trouble than everything else combined. He leaves a wife, who was formerly Miss Day, a sister of Floyd and John Day, of this city, also one son, who did the killing, and one daughter, who a few weeks ago married Dr. Hogg, who had been prominent on the anti-Hargis side politically. Judge Hargis was a native of Breathitt county and started in life a poor man, but by dint of business ability and industry, he had accumulated a large fortune for that section. He became associated in business with his brother, Alex, and the firm of Hargis Bros., dominated all the business of that section. Politics and business are closely connected in the mountains and they were successful in this also. Alex, was sent to the State Senate, while James was elected and re-elected as County Judge. He dominated the politics of the county and the men of his choice were chosen for the county offices. In a less degree he dominated the Legislative and Congressional Districts, and his say so had much to do with Democratic nominations. In 1902 Ben Hargis, his younger brother, was shot and killed by Tom Cockrill, the latter being shot four times, but survived. Before this John, or Tige Hargis was killed on the train near Beattyville by Jerry Cardwell, who was tried in this city and given one year in the penitentiary for the crime, but who was pardoned by the governor before being sent to the penitentiary. Jerry South, a brother-in-law was waylaid and killed but no one was publicly accused of the murder. Two months after Tom Cardwell killed Ben Hargis, Dr. B.D. Cox was shot from ambush and died at once. Only three months elapsed after the death of Dr. Cox was shot from ambush and died a few days later in a Lexington hospital. The climax was reached when the following spring J.B. Marcum was shot and killed while standing in the front door of the court house. These killings, especially the latter, aroused the State and prosecutions ensued. Sheriff McCord, of this city, arrested Curt Jett and Tom White was also arrested, and both are serving life sentences for these killings; Judge and Senator Hargis, Ed Callahan, B.F. French and some minor parties were afterwards indicted. Judge Hargis was the leader and bore the brunt of the fight. He won out in all his trials except the damage suit of Mrs. Marcum, which was tried here and which caused him to pay over ten thousand dollars for the killing of Marcum. At his death he was practically free from most of the charges growing out of the killing. Just how much money this has cost him nobody knows, but it is variously estimated from fifty to one hundred thousand dollars. Of late years Jas. and Alex Hargis had not been on good terms and a short while ago Jas. bought out his brother's interest and was sole proprietor. It is said that on a recent business trip to Louisville he selected a beautiful mahogany casket, costing fifteen hundred dollars for use when he should need one and when he came home he told his clerk about it. It was sent for and used for his burial. He was a Mason and a Red Man and was buried under the auspices of these orders. The Winchester Democrat Tuesday, February 11, 1908

Judge Hargis is slain by his son

Blinded with coat hurled by maniac, noted feudist stops four bullets

Parricide is dragged to jail howling like mad

Severe quarrel over habits of off spring is said to have been the cause of the crime, tragedy shocked the people of Breathitt county

Jackson, Ky., - Feb. 7. – His last words and unavailing plea for mercy, former Judge James Hargis was shot to death by his son, Beach Hargis. Following a brief quarrel the son drew a revolver and fired four shots into his father's body. Judge Hargis caught hold of his son in an effort to disarm him. The young man threw his coat over his father's face and after thus blinding him pumped the contents of the revolver into his father's body. "Mercy, Mercy, you have killed me," appealed the elder man, as he lay on the floor. Young Hargis' answer was to fire two more bullets into his parent's prostrate body. The tragedy occurred in Hargis' brother's store and was witnessed by two customers and a stenographer. All three fled. Young Hargis was later removed to jail by the town marshal and a deputy, but he struggled like a madman until thrown into his cell. Soon afterward the report was current that he had taken morphine in his cell, but no confirmation of this or any word of his condition could be secured from the jail officials. The news of Hargis' end came as a profound shock to the residents of Jackson and Breathitt county, on whose bloody feud records his name appears on almost every page. There did not appear to be any prospect of further violence, however. The younger Hargis had been on a protracted spree and some days ago his father administered a thrashing. The chastisement was the cause of the murder, the son having continued his debauch, nursing his resentment until his father again upbraided him for his conduct. The two men are reported to have had a severe quarrel several nights ago, when the father, it is alleged, was compelled to resort to violence to restrain his son. Young Hargis, it is said has been drinking heavily of late. He came into the store late Thursday afternoon and was apparently under the influence of liquor. Judge Hargis, it is said, spoke to his son about his drinking and a quarrel resulted. Father and son stepped behind a counter in the store, when the son, after only a few minutes conversation drew a revolver and fired five shots. Four took effect, the noted mountain character falling dead. The young woman stenographer and the customers in the store rushed for the doors and fled in fright. Young Hargis was arrested by Town Marshals Govan Smith and Grover Blanton and place in jail. He was raving like a maniac and the officers were compelled to drag him to jail.

Special Judge appointed

Judge Riddell, the regular Circuit Judge was sick and could not preside over the Breathitt Circuit Court which will begin Monday, and Gov. Wilson has appointed Judge Geo. W. Stone, of Leitchfield, Grayson county, as Special Judge. The trial of Beach Hargis for the murder of his father, will probably come up and other important cases are to be tried. Judge Stone recently held a special term of court in Wolfe county and gave such satisfaction that his appointment to Jackson was asked for.

Will not found

A report from Jackson says: "It is positively known here that the late James Hargis made a will, but it cannot be found. His private papers, safes and other probable places of deposit have been searched without avail. The report is current that the will devised the entire estate to his wife and made Floyd Day, Judge Hargis' brother-in-law, his executor."

Held without bail

Beach Hargis was brought before Judge Taulbee at Jackson Monday for his examining trial for the murder of his father, Judge James Hargis. He waived examination and bail being refused him, he was sent to jail to await the action of Circuit court which convenes in a short while. He will be defended by Judges Dave Redwine, and Crit Bach, two of the ablest lawyers in that section. It is said that Senator Hargis will take no part either in the prosecution of defense and, from the fact that no lawyer appeared to assist the County Attorney, it is inferred that the prosecution will be only nominal, and that the punishment will not be severe.

Cases continued

The trials of former Senator A.H. Hargis, Elbert Hargis, Bill Britton, Ed Callahan and John Abner will not take place until April. When the cases were called in the Lexington Circuit court they were continued on the motion of the Commonwealth. The continuance is on account of the death of Judge James Hargis, the brother of the two defendants, who himself had two trials for the same offense that of the murder of James Cockrill, in Jackson five years ago.

Beech Hargis indicted

The Grand jury of Breathitt county on Tuesday returned an indictment charging Beech Hargis with willful murder for the killing of his father, Judge James Hargis. The trial is set for March 2nd. Contrary to expectations, he did not ask for bail.

Will of Judge Hargis

It was known that Judge James Hargis had made a will, but after his death it could not be found. However, by consent of the heirs, it was written out from the stenographer's notes and will be probated Monday. In the will Judge Hargis gave $20,000 to his wife absolutely and directed that the remainder of his property be equally divided between his son, Beech and daughter, Mrs. Evaline Hogg. The will named Floyd Day, the testator's brother-in-law, executor without bond, and he has already assumed these duties. Judge Hargis' estate is estimated at from $50,000 to $125,000, and under the terms of the will, therefore, Beech will receive from $15,000 to $50,000. Mrs. Hargis has an estate of about $20,000 in her own right, which was left her by her father, William Day.

Perfectly composed

Was Hargis when he heard the reading of the murder indictment

Jackson, Ky., - The Breathitt county grand jury returned an indictment in open court against Beech Hargis, charging him with the willful murder of his father, Judge James Hargis. Young Hargis was at once brought into court, and upon agreement of counsel his trial was set for the 13th day of the present term of court. The defendant seemed perfectly composed. It is said that the night before the time of the tragedy Beech Hargis made an attempt to shoot his cousin, June Jett, a clerk in the Hargis store. He was thwarted by Cal Cooper, a negro. It was learned that an effort will be made by the citizens who see in Beech Hargis' conviction the dawn of a new era to raise a fund with which to employ additional counsel to be associated with Attorney Kash in the prosecution. Friends and enemies of Beech Hargis are alike open in their condemnation of him.

Were drowned in booze when he shot, says the defense

Jackson, Ky., - Judge J.P. Adams decided, after lawyers for the defendant had pleaded for hours, that Beech Hargis, who killed his father, Judge James Hargis, must be tried at this term of the circuit court. Judge J.J.C. Bach, of counsel for the defense, declared that young Hargis, intoxicated, did not know until the following day that he had killed his father. It had been contended by the defense that the prisoner shot his father in self defense. It is stated by counsel for Hargis that an effort will be made to compel Judge Adams to vacate the bench at this trial, as he prosecuted the criminal cases against Judge Hargis and other Breathitt county feudists. Judge Adams has ordered that the trial begin.

Cardwell was tried in this city and was given a term in the penitentiary, but was pardoned by Bradley before he reached the pen. Judge Hargis was outspoken in his condemnation of Bradley for the pardon, and never liked him afterward. The Winchester Democrat Friday, August 21, 1908

Change of venue granted

At Jackson, Tuesday morning, Judge Adams made an order transferring the trial of Beach Hargis for the murder of his father, to Estill county. The Commonwealth objected to every county in the district but Estill. The defendant objected to Estill county and strongly objected to being sent to any county in Judge Benton's district. Judge Adams presented a written opinion in which he said: "The evidence in this case presents the most unusual state of affairs I have ever known to exist in any case. The Commonwealth has proven that an overwhelming sentiment exists in the county against the defendant, while the defendant has introduced a number of witnesses to prove the same fact. "In the face of these conditions the Commonwealth insists on a change of venue. The defendant on the other hand is demanding a trial among people whom the proof shows are clamoring for his conviction. "It is proven by one witness at least that efforts have been made to influence men to qualify as jurors and hang the jury. No evidence is offered by the defendant to deny this charge. "While there are many just as good men in this county as can be found any where, the evidence shows that most if not practically all of them have expressed an opinion and hence would not be competent jurors. Under these conditions, I do not believe the case ought to be tried in this county and therefore the changes of venue will be granted."

Recently, in looking through some papers, Mr. Day found the will and last week it was probated at Jackson. It left the whole estate to Mrs. Hargis and did not mention Mrs. Hogg, his daughter, or Beach Hargis, his son. The estate was turned over to Mrs. Hargis in accordance with the will.

Discussing the approaching trial of Beach Hargis at Irvine in December, Judge Redwine said that young Hargis' health is daily growing worse under prison confinement and that fears have been expressed that he would not be physically able to stand trial. The case was transferred to Estill county upon a change of venue asked by the Commonwealth. Contrary to reports that he had abandoned the case, Senator-elect W.O. Case reversed

An echo of the Breathitt county troubles came up in the Court of Appeals Thursday when the court reversed the decision of Judge Benton in the matter of B.F. French's fine. It will be remembered that French was fined five thousand dollars by a Clark county jury for contempt of court in running off witnesses in the Marcum-Hargis trial. The case was carried to the Court of Appeals which sustained the verdict of the lower court. According to law this decision carried with it ten percent further charges. Most of this fine went to the Commonwealth's Attorney, County Attorney, Circuit clerk, etc., but a certain portion went to the State. Gov. Willson pardoned French from paying that portion due the State, but could not pardon that portion due the officers. The question arose as to whether the pardon of the Governor covered the entire ten percent which amounted to $500, or whether the officers are entitled to their portion of this also. Judge Benton decided that the pardon exonerated French from paying any portion of this amount but the Court of Appeals has decided otherwise.

The Winchester Democrat Tuesday, December 15, 1908

For his life

Beach Hargis is being tried for the murder of his father, case in the hands of the jury The trial of Beach Hargis for the murder of his father is in progress at Irvine. Considerable trouble was experienced in getting a jury and both sides exhausted all their challenges before it was completed. The opening statements created a sensation. Kelley Kash made the opening statement for the State, and during his statement he said much would be proved to show that the killing of Judge Hargis by his son was done with malice aforethought and that on several occasions before the killing young Hargis had boasted that he intended to kill his father. He said much would also be brought out by witnesses to show to what ends the mother of the young man had gone to acquit her boy. He said it would be proved that Mrs. Hargis offered one of the Cockrell boys five hundred dollars if he would have the indictment against Ed. Callahan dismissed at Lexington, and those against Alex and Elbert Hargis retained, and, if either of the latter two offered to asist in the prosecution of Beach, she would furnish testimony that would convict them. Mr. Kash said it would also be shown that Jim Hargis had amassed a fortune during his active business life, all of which was now being used in the defense of his slayer instead of being applied to bringing about a conviction. Judge Bach, who had always been Judge Hargis' friend and advisor, opened for the defense. He said Judge Hargis was the worst man in the mountains and that he had treated his boy not as a son, but more like a dog, and that on various occasions he beat him almost to death and then drove him from his home, sometimes in the dead of winter and without a cent of money or a place to lay his head. He said that it would be shown that no member of the family, not even the boy's mother or grandmother, were allowed any part in his raising. He said it would be shown that on any and all occasions, and in any and all places, Jim Hargis, without the slightest provocation, would take the boy and beat him until he was unconscious. He said any man who had lived the life and committed the sins that had fallen to Jim Hargis, was bound to meet the fate he so richly deserved, and which he did finally meet, and that, unfortunately, it fell to the lot of his own son to kill him in the defense of his own life. The taking of testimony is now in progress but the case will occupy several days yet. The testimony was finished Wednesday and it will probably be given to the jury this morning.

In trouble again

It would seem that Judge Adams would better have denied the application of Beach Hargis for bail. He was allowed bail in the sum of twenty five thousand dollars and was released Tuesday. In less than twenty-four hours after he got back to Jackson he was in jail again on the charge of shooting up the town. There were two warrants issued one for shooting on the street and the other for concealed weapons. Walker Cole, who is said to have been with him, was fined $20 for shooting and $2.50 for breach of the peace. Elbert Hargis was fined $75 on several charges. It is said his bondsmen are thinking of giving him up to the Jailer again.

A life sentence

The jury in the case of Beach Hargis, who was tried at Irvine this week for the murder of his father, Judge James Hargis, Wednesday morning brought in a verdict of guilty with a sentence of imprisonment for life. The case had been in the hands of the jury for several hours, and an acquittal or another hung jury was expected, and the friends of Hargis were greatly disappointed. Four of the jurors were Estill county men and eight were from Madison county. A motion was made for a new trial and if this is refused an appeal will be taken to the Court of Appeals. It is believed that the verdict was due largely to the reversal of public opinion caused by Hargis' bad conduct since his last trial. When the jury hung at the last trial it was freely predicted and generally expected that he would be acquitted at the next trial. A. Floyd Byrd, of this city, was the leading counsel for the prosecution.

Beach Hargis found guilty

Of the murder of his father and given a life sentence in the penitentiary Irvine, Ky., - Beach Hargis was found guilty of the murder of his father Judge James Hargis, by the jury and given a life sentence in the penitentiary in the Estill circuit court. A conference of Hargis and his attorneys at once followed, at which it was decided to ask for a new trial, and failing thus, to take an appeal to the court of appeals. Hargis feels that he was treated unfairly by the trial court in being compelled to stand trial during the illness of two of his attorneys and the absence of some of his witnesses. The representatives of the commonwealth expressed themselves as being satisfied with the verdict and believe it is justified by the law and the evidence. J.C.M. Day, uncle of Beach Hargis, was very much incensed over the action of Judge Adams in permitting the jury to stay at the hotel, which, as claimed by the defense was the acknowledged headquarters of the prosecution.

The Winchester company was full when they arrived, but room was made for them and they will go with Capt. Strother's company. It is needless to add that they will make sure-enough fighters.—Lexington Herald. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, May 6, 1898 Tuesday afternoon the case of the killing of John Hargis by Jerry Cardwell was begun. These are Breathitt county people, but the killing was done on a Lexington and Eastern excursion train near St. Helens, Lee county, in October, 1896. The case was tried once at Beattyville and resulted in a hung jury. So much excitement prevailed that the case was transferred to this county. No trouble was experienced in getting a jury. The following comprise it: W. B. Hodgkin, Wm. Berryman, John Sumpter, Ellis Baxter, R. J. Sidwell, Dock Pigg, Will T. Ragland, Will D. Judy, W. O. B. Donaldson, R. B. Patterson and Geo. N. Crutchfield. All the other jurymen were dismissed until Monday The Commonwealth is represented by Commonwealth's Attorney Crutcher, County Attorney Jeffries, Thos. T. Cope, of Jackson, A. W. Young, of Mt. Sterling, Judge W. M. Smith, of Richmond, and Judge J. M. Benton and Judge C. B. Hill, of this city. For the defense are Judge Robert Riddell, of Irvine, Judge G. W. Gourley, of Beattyville, W. W. Vaughn, of Jackson and Messrs. Hathaway, & Hodgkin, of Winchester. The case will probably be given to the jury today. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, May 6, 1898 Circuit Court. The attention of Circuit Court during the latter part of the week was directed to the trial of Jerry Cardwell for the killing of John Hargis. The case was bitterly fought, half a dozen speeches being made. The matter was given to the jury Friday afternoon and in a few hours verdict was rendered giving the defendant two years in the penitentiary for voluntary manslaughter. We understand that ten of the jury were for conviction and two for acquittal, and the verdict was a compromise.

A motion for a new trial was entered. If it is overruled, as will probably be the case, an appeal will be taken to the higher court.

Circuit Court

The petition for a new trial in the case of Jerry Cardwell, sentenced to two years in the penitentiary for killing John Hargis, was refused and the case will go to the Court of Appeals. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, May 20, 1898 Circuit Clerk Fox is copying the record in the case of young Cardwell who was given two years in the pen for killing Hargis and the case will be ready for the Court of Appeals by the middle of the week. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, May 31, 1898 The appeal of Jeff Cardwell, who is now in jail here under sentence of two years in the penitentiary for killing John Hargis, is set for today in the Court of Appeals. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, June 14, 1898 The Court of Appeals Thursday affirmed the judgement of the Clark Circuit Court by which Jerry Cardwell was given two years in the penitentiary for killing John Hargis in Lee county a year or two ago, and unless Governor Bradley grants executive clemency he will have to serve his term. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, June 28, 1898 In affirming the verdict of a Clark county jury giving Jerry Cardwell two years in the penitentiary for killing John Hargis, the Court of Appeals says: First—Appellant, Marshal, of Jackson, in Breathitt county, and also an employee on passenger train, had no right, as a peace officer, to make an arrest in the county of Lee, and, upon the trial of an indictment for murder, was not entitled to an instruction as to the protection accorded a peace officer in making an arrest. Second—An employee of a railroad company is not an officer known to the law, and has no authority to make an arrest. Third—It was not error to permit a prosecuting witness to testify that another then appellant also shot the deceased, as that was a part of the record and was competent testimony. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, July 5, 1898 Could Not Make a Verdict. The trial of Jerry Cardwell, of Beattyville for the killing of John Hargis is attracting much attention. It will be remembered that Cardwell, in October, 1896, while presumably in the performance of his duties for the railroad company, shot and killed John Hargis, of Jackson. Hargis was drunk and had created a disturbance on the train. When within a short distance of Beattyville Junction he engaged in a fight with a passenger. Cardwell interfered and shot Hargis through, killing him instantly. Owing to the fact that a feud had been existing between the Hargises and Cardwells, the relatives of Hargis believed the shooting was maliciously done and Cardwell's life was so endangered that he was forced to go to Lexington, where he has since resided. At his examining trial he was acquitted, but the grand jury indicted him shortly afterward. The trial resulted in a hung jury Wednesday. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, January 14, 1898 Jerry Cardwell Pardoned. Gov. Bradley on Wednesday pardoned Jerry Cardwell, who was sent up from this county for two years for killing John Hargis in Lee county. In pardoning him Gov. Bradley says: "Six of the Jury that convicted the defendant say: "We were compelled to find him technically guilty perhaps for shooting a little too soon, yet, in view of all the circumstances surrounding him at the time, and of the conflicting evidence, respectively represent that we consider his a case which fully justifies the exercise of executive clemency, and earnestly request and hope you will pardon him." "Nearly, if not all, the county officials of Clark county (being strangers to defendant, who was tried there on change of venue) recommended pardon, and express astonishment at the verdict. Besides a petition, numerously signed by citizens of Clark county, asks for a pardon. "The testimony is conflicting, but I think demonstrates that the deceased was under the influence of liquor, armed with two pistols, one of which he had in his hand in the passenger coach, which the conductor took from him; that he was not conducting himself in an orderly manner, and at the time he was killed was in the act of firing upon either the defendant or the conductor. A pardon is granted. The Winchester Democrat, Friday July 11, 1898. Hargis, Mrs. Evelyn The Winchester Sun Fri., 1-30-1914 The Winchester Sun Fri., 1-24-1913 Hargis, Mrs. Jane Hargis, Mrs. Joanna E. Hargis, Mrs. W. C.

Mrs. W. C. Hargis, of Morehead, took three grains of morphine with the intention of committing suicide. Medical aid was without success. The unfortunate woman was the wife of Judge Thos. F. Hargis' brother and was a sister of County Clerk Hogg, of Morehead. The suicide was a result of domestic troubles.

Hargy, Frank

On Sunday of last week Frank Hargy and R. E. Smith got into a difficulty in Mt. Sterling in which Smith shot Hargy, inflicting a wound which will probably prove fatal.

	Hargy charged that Smith wrote an insulting note to his wife, which was the cause of the trouble. A year or so ago Dude Smith, as he is known, rented the Central Hotel saloon in this city, had hand bills printed, etc., and left for Louisville to lay in supplies. The next day he wrote from Lexington saying he had been robbed of his money, watch, etc., and could not come, thus canceling his lease. Later-Hargy has since died.

Haricus, Peter	Mr. Peter Haricus died at his home of erysipelas at Corinth, Ky., aged sixty-six years. He leaves a wife and four children and one sister, Mrs. Mary King of Ford, five half brothers, one half sister. His father, Clemons Haricus, came from Germany in the early part of the past century when a mere boy and never returned to his native land, but reared a family here of eight children. Mr. Haricus was a man of noble character and will be sadly missed but the loss here was a gain for him in the beyond.

Harlan, Howard	One Dead The Other Dying. Two Kentucky Farmers Fight a Duel with Knives—They Quarreled Over a Settlement of Tobacco Crop. Ballardsville, Ky., Feb. 1.—Whitaker Manna and Howard Harlan fought a terrible duel with Barlow knives in McWilliams blacksmith shop here Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The men quarreled over the settlement of a crop of tobacco, and at a meeting Monday morning agreed to settle it. They sprang at each other, and in a few minutes were bleeding and exhausted from stabs and cuts. But their fury was unabated. They waited a moment and then resumed the combat. The second one was to death. When it ended Manna was dead. Harlan will die. Both were respected farmers and lived on

Harp, George W.	Horrible wreck
	Engine blown from track on C & O Railroad near Colby station
	FOUR MEN MEET DEATH
	Three men were instantly killed and another so badly injured that he died while on the way to the hospital at Lexington as a result of a wreck on the C & O road near Colby Station, about five miles from this city at 12:15 Tuesday. The dead are: George Harp, engineer, Lexington; Fred Runyon, fireman, Olive Hill; Claude K. Marshall, fireman, Lexington; George Berry, brakeman, Mt. Savage. The train, a heavy freight, was run as a double header, and was running at the rate of twenty miles and hour, when the boiler of the front engine, No. 232, was blown up and turned in the opposite direction from which it was traveling. The force of the explosion was so great that it shook houses some distance from the wreck, and blew heavy parts of the machinery into adjoining fields, 100 yards away. The cause of the disaster is not known yet, but it is said that the engine had not been in working order for several weeks, and that the injector was not in proper working order. The pony trucks and front drive wheels of the second engine were derailed, but the engineer and fireman escaped injury. The word was at once telephoned to this city, and Drs Shirley, McKinley, Browne and Combs & Combs were immediately sent to the scene, besides a number of people from town drove out. When they arrived Engineer Geo. W. Harp, Fireman Claude Marshall and Brakeman George Berry were dead. Fireman Runyon was placed on a passenger train which backed to Winchester and left over the L & E road with Runyon for the hospital at Lexington.
	Runyon died on the way. Engineer Harp was blown up in the air, and fell in time for the pony trucks of the somersaulting engine to rest across his horribly torn body, and it was late in the evening before he could be removed. Fireman Claude K. Marshall was found under the debris between the two engines. Brakeman Berry had his body so badly torn that his remains were picked up in a basket. Runyon was found a little distance from the wreck mangled and badly bruised. All the bodies were sent to Lexington that night. The disaster, while not as great from the standpoint of loss as some which have occurred, was the most horrible one that has occurred in this section in years.

	Big damage suit filed
	About a year ago a double header freight train going East on the C & O road had reached a point between Pine Grove and Colby in this county, when one of the boilers exploded and among other damage, the engineer, George Harp was killed. Eva L. Harp, as administratrix, filed suit in the Circuit court Friday for twenty-five thousand dollars damages. In addition to the railroad, W.P. Hobson, Master mechanic of the road, and J.E. Insko, foreman of the shops at Lexington, are made defendants. It is claimed that the engine was out of fix when it left Lexington and that it was their duty to see that the engine was kept in repair and that the accident resulted from their gross negligence.

	Damage cases on trial The consolidated case of Eva D. Harp, Admx., and T.B. Marshall, Admr, and Josephine Runion, Admx., against the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, are on trial in the Federal court at Frankfort. The suits are for $25,000 damages each for the loss of the lives of George Harp, C.K. Marshall and Charles Runion who were killed in a railroad accident near Colby, this county, a few years ago. Scott and Hamilton are conducting the cases for the plaintiffs and John T. Shelby for the defendants. The Winchester Democrat Friday, October 8, 1909
	A hung jury In the Federal court at Frankfort when the case of the administratrix of George Harp against the C & O road was tried, the result was a hung jury instead of a verdict for the railroad as was reported at the time. Harp was the engineer in charge of the engine which exploded between Colby and Pine Grove a year or so ago killing three men one of whom was Harp. Some of the jury were in favor of the railroad, claiming Harp was negligent in letting the water get too low, while others thought the road was to blame in sending out an engine so defective. The Winchester Democrat Friday, October 22, 1909
	The Harp case In the Federal Court at Frankfort which convened this week, the case of Eva L. Harp, administratrix, of Geo. Harp, against the C & O road was called and the trial entered and into is still in progress. Harp was killed by the explosion of a locomotive near Colby, this county, several years ago and the trial is the result of a suit for damages brought by his widow as administratrix. The Winchester Democrat Friday, May 20, 1910
	Failed to get damages A year or two ago a freight train with two locomotives was coming from Lexington to this city over the C & O road and when it got to a point near Colby Station, this county, one of the boilers exploded, killing several men, one of whom was George Harp, the engineer. It was said at the time that the engine was in a bad condition and that the fact was known to the officials of the road. Suit was brought by Mrs. Eva Harp, widow and administratrix of the dead engineer for twenty-five thousand dollars damages. The case was transferred to the Federal Court, and was tried at Frankfort the past week, occupying several days. The testimony was concluded Friday and the Judge gave the jury peremptory instructions to find for the railroad, and Mrs. Harp thus lost the case. The Winchester Democrat Tuesday, May 24, 1910
	New trial refused An order overruling the motion for a new trial of the case of Eva L. Harp, administrator, vs. C & O Railroad Company has been entered by United States Clerk, Charles Wiard. Plaintiff is granted until March term of court to file bill of exceptions. The judgement in the case was peremptorily given by the court in finding for the defendant. – Frankfort Journal. Mrs. Harp is the widow of Geo. Harp, an engineer, who was killed by the explosion of a locomotive near Colby, this county, several years ago. She sued for heavy damages in the Clark Circuit court and the case was transferred to the Federal court where it was decided in favor of the railroad. The Winchester Democrat Friday, October 14, 1910

Harper, John	A Big Estate A dispatch from Mt. Sterling says: "It has just developed that John Harper, who went from this county to Indian Territory in 1830, and who recently died in that place, has left an immense estate to his descendants. An enormous amount of land and money in plenty is left to be divided among his relatives, and the beneficiaries who are at the head of families will receive 640 acres of land each. Among those who will receive something from the estate are M. R. Cheatham and Mrs. J. E. Thomson of this city, and Mrs. R. M. King, of Clark County." The Winchester Democrat Tue., Aug. 12, 1902 Good Prospect Of Success The heirs of John Harper in this section, who went to Indian Territory recently to register and enter their claim for the estate left by Harper, have returned and feel confident of winning their claim. The estate consists of a vast tract of land in the Creek and Cherokee District and Indian Territory. The land has been rented for many years, and the accumulated rents amount to thousands of dollars. The Winchester Democrat Tue., Jan. 13, 1903 Prospects Are Good C. C. Hanks of Wolfe county, and one of the leaders in the effort of the heirs of John Harper to recover lands in the Indian Territory, has returned. He says while he was there, the United States Commissioner, whom the heirs, claims are before for adjustment, appointed Commissioners to locate and stake off the land claimed by them. Mr. Hanks says each claimant will get 320 acres of land and about $5,000 in money. A Mr. Ray, of Muscogee, Indian Territory, will be at Campton this week for the purpose of getting as many families as possible to start on March 3 rd for the purpose of locating on this land and forming a colony. Mrs. C. S. Guy, of this city, is one of the heirs, and we hope these predictions are corredt.

Harris, James (Zim T.)	Gives Way The Big Trestle on the L. & N. Near Town Nineteen Freight Cars Drop Sixty-Five Feet Crushing Out Two Lives in Their Fall. Warren Burch, of this City, One of the Killed. Trestle Was in a Dangerous Condition. Train Men Make a Miraculous Escape. Details of the Horrible Affair. One of the greatest railroad accidents that has happened in this part of the State for a long time occurred Saturday afternoon a short distance South of this city on the Kentucky Central road. At that point a big double wooden trestle about 300 feet long and sixty-five feet high spans a deep ravine. The timbers had decayed badly and a force of bridge carpenters under the supervision of Oliver Green were engaged in repairing the trestle. Thirty or forty feet of the Northern end had been repaired and the men were at work on the bridge when a North bound freight train came along. It consisted of an

engine, twenty-one cars and a caboose and was in charge of Conductor Sorrell. Apprehending no danger, the men at work on the bridge did not get out of the way as the train passed over, but continued their work. The engine and a couple of cars passed over in safety, when a cracking noise was heard and nearly the whole structure went down with a crash. Hearing the noise, the engineer looked back and saw the cars falling: he at once applied all the steam which alone prevented the engine, tender and two cars attached from being drawn back into the wreck. Several cars had not reached the trestle when the structure fell, but their momentum carried them over the embankment and into the wreck. The caboose left the track and turned over but did not fall into the ravine. The news spread rapidly and in a very short space of time hundreds of people were there and an examination began to find out the loss of life and those injured. Upon investigation it was found that James Harris and Warren Burch, both members of the construction corps, were missing and a search for their bodies was begun. The body of Harris was found in a few moments and was soon recovered. His leg, shoulder, nose and hip were broken and death was evidently instantaneous. Burch was soon found but car after car of lumber and coal was piled over him in such a manner as to make it dangerous to work where he lay, and it was far in the night before his body was extricated: his hand, foot, arm and neck were broken and his chest crushed. Will Durbin of Richmond, was knocked down more than once by the falling timbers but escaped with a cut on his head. Hub. Ecton ran through a wire fence in escaping and was slightly cut. None of the train hands were hurt.

The bodies of Harris and Burch were brought to Winn's undertaking establishment and prepared for burial. Harris was a young man not much beyond his majority and came from Sumpter county, South Carolina, to which place he was intending to return in a short time. His body was embalmed and sent home for burial. He was unmarried. Warren Burch was a native of this county, a son of Will Burch and was about twenty-eight years of aged. He was quite popular with all who knew him, and great sympathy is expressed for his wife and little child, thus so suddenly bereft of support. He was buried yesterday at Dillard Ecton's, funeral services being held by Eld. J. W. Harding. Thousands of persons came Saturday and Sunday to view the wreck, which was appalling. Great timbers were smashed and broken as if they were straws and car loads of lumber and coal were piled together in inextricable confusions.

Of course all freight traffic was suspended but passengers and baggage were transferred and passenger trains ran as usual. The railroad company at once put a large force of men to work to clear away the wreck and rebuild the trestle. They worked all day and night and traffic will be resumed to-day or to-morrow. The damage will amount to many thousands of dollars, to say nothing of probable suits for damages on account of the death of the two men.

Coroner Lewis viewed the remains and impaneled the following jury: Jas. H. Boone, J. M. Locknane, S. I. Walden, E. G. Baxter, Chas. A. Sullivan, R. L. Sutherland and the inquest will be held tis morning. As Mr. Locknane is closely related to one of the dead men, some one else will probably serve in his stead.

This section of the road has been the scene of a number of fatalities. The negro, Bob Haggard, was hung by lynchers to the bridge on this side; Maj. John Brink was struck by a train and killed near this place a few months ago; John Brink was struck by a train and killed near this place a few months ago; John O'Banion was shot and killed near the scene of the wreck and although the act was committed in broad daylight and in sight and hearing of a dozen people, neither the perpetrator or the motive was ever found out. While the road was being built, a work hand was blown to pieces by dynamite near the same place. A short distance on the other side an unknown tramp, who was stealing a ride, fell from the car and was cut in two by the wheels. An unknown man was killed while asleep on the track near the same place. Other accidents which did not prove fatal, have also occurred here. James W. Reed fell or was thrown from the train while passing over this trestle and was crippled for life. Mart. Ragland was struck by the cars and badly hurt, and Andy Murray, a section hand, was struck in the same manner and had a number of ribs broken.

The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, November 30, 1897

Coroner's Inquest

Coroner Lewis summoned a jury last Saturday in the cases of Warren Burch and Zim T. Harris, the two men who were killed by the falling trestle that afternoon. As the witnesses were quite busy clearing away the wreck, he adjourned the inquest until Wednesday afternoon, when he made a full and careful inquiry into the matter. J. M. Locknane, who was an uncle by marriage of Burch, declined to serve, and James Oliver was put on the jury in his place. After full consideration the jury brought in the following verdict in regard to Burch and a similar one as to Harris:

We, the jury, find from the evidence the body before us to be that of Warren Burch, aged about 28 years, and that his life was crushed out by the falling of timbers, or giving away of the first trestle South of Winchester on the L. and N. R. R. on the evening of November 27, 1897. We further find from the evidence that said trestle was very much decayed and unsafe.

Capt. Thomas Reviews the L. and N. Disaster

Harris, James Andrew Harris, James B. Harris, James Herbert Harris, James P. Harris, James T. Harris, James T. Jr. Harris, James Thomas Harris, Jas.	On Saturday P. M., November 27th, the high, long trestle on the K. C. Division of the L. and N. Railway, one and a half miles South of Winchester, gave way, precipitating some twenty-one cars into the abyss and killing two men who were working on the trestle, by a miracle the train men escaping. The timbers were rotten and the trestle known to be unsafe for years past. For four or five years past trains have had "slow up" orders at this place as we are informed, and know by the trains slowing up. But "slow up" world of for timbers many of which were as rotten as an old stump, I will not say that the blame attaches to subordinate officers of this road, but rather think to the policy of its management. Some one should be responsible for this criminal negligence. A common humanity cries out. We cannot bring the poor dead men back to life, but something must needs to be done to protect both the public and operatives of our roads. The appointment of a first class State Engineer and Inspector, responsible to, and reporting to our chief executive to inspect the rolling stock, bridges and roadways of the roads of the State might answer. We have two Insurance Commissioners to protect us from wildcat insurance. Our lives are of greater importance. We can not depend on great corporations, whose managers are most ambitious to earn dividends for foreign bondholders to keep their branch lines in safe condition; they should be made to do so or forfeit their charters. When the State grants privileges it has a right of surveillance. No sort of institution connects itself more closely with the lives and interests of the people against corporate greed. While fariness should be shown invested capital, the rights of the people should be jealously guarded, and if perchance the bondholder does not get his dividend, the roads should be put in order and made safe. This is not only right but it is the best policy for the roads themselves. A property not kept up can not be expected to pay regular dividends to its ownership. It might this

Harris, Marion	Death Of Marion Harris Marion Harris, one of Clark County's most respected citizens, died at his home in this county Saturday after a lingering illness of typhoid fever. His funeral was preached Sunday at Providence Baptist Church, of which he was a consistent member, by Rev. B. B. Bailey, and the remains were buried in the family graveyard of Mrs. Mary Reed. He was twice married. His first wife was Miss Powell; and after her death he married Miss Bettie Reed, who with two children by his first wife survives him. He was quite popular and his death will be greatly regretted. The Winchester Democrat Tue., Aug., 13, 1901

Harris, Paula Jane (Hallford)	Paula Jane Harris (Hallford)
	(November 14, 1943 - February 21, 2023)
	Paula Jane Harris (Hallford) was born in Waco, Texas on November 14, 1943 to Imogene and Paul Hallford.
	She was preceded in death by her parents Imogene and Paul Hallford.
	Paula Jane, first and foremost, was a believer in Yeshua-Jesus Christ and remained dedicated to our Heavenly Father until her last breath here on earth. You couldn't have a conversation without her talking about Jesus as her strength and hope. Paula was raised in San Antonio, Texas and lived there until she graduated from high school. She embraced the opportunity to travel overseas and see this big world. She lived in Texas, New York, Oklahoma, Kansas City, Parkville and Farley, MO, and Dover, AR. Her final home, where she and her husband Dietz lived, "Dietz and Paula's Mountain Top" overlooked the small town of Rogers, Kentucky. Paula was a homemaker for many years. She helped raise 4 teens from Iran who lived in her home in order to attend school in the US. Later, she started her own daycare and began a farm with many animals in Parkville. Moving to Farley, MO with her husband Dietz, she raised goats to sell goat's milk. She had a career working with the elderly, caring for many families over a 10 year span. She helped raise several of her grandchildren in Kentucky. She was a lover of music and would sing anytime she had the chance, including lullabies to her children at bedtime. This had a ripple effect and influenced her youngest daughter and grandchildrens' success in the music industry. Anyone who had the opportunity to talk with Paula knew her as an encouraging person during times of need. She loved not only the Heavenly Father but her family, friends and strangers deeply and unceasingly.
	Paula leaves behind, to treasure her memory: her husband Dietz Harris, her daughters, Jacqueline Zahabi, Lisa Zahabi, Elizabeth Zahabi and Kendra Redden. Her son Br. Alex Mary Nyangezi. Her sisters, Diane McCoy and Jennifer Mullinax. Her grandchildren, Monique Allen, Jarred "Apollo" Zahabi, Emilia Zahabi, Romeo Zahabi, Brandy Cornett, Guindolyn Morrison-Zahabi, Noah Madden, Joe and Savanna Redden, Pat and Appalachian Redden, Jay Luna, Riki Bennett, Alisha Hatfield and Cole Sailor. Her Great-grandchildren, Adalyn Redden, Aiden Bennett, Jaxon Bennett, Ronin Hatfield, Kai Zahabi, Lincoln Bennett, Cassian Hatfield, and Winter Gilbert as well as her friends and loved ones.

Harris, Pres. AA	A monument is being put up in the white cemetery at Richmond, Ky., to the memory of Munk, the colored Indian fighter, who was a hero in the battle with the Wyandottes in 1782, where Mt. Sterling now stands, and who carried Captain James Berry, who was badly wounded, forty miles on his back to the Fort, in Madison. Captain Estill and all his men, but six were killed, and all the Indians but one Pres. Harris, another colored man, recently died in Richmond. He was a drummer in the old Militia days, and beat the drum for volunteers in the Mexican war when Gen. C. M. Clay was the first to enlist. He also beat the drum at the laying of the corner stone of the Clay monument at Lexington and various other places. He was Drum Major of the 145 th Kentucky Infantry, colored and, in a contest with a hundred regiments in the Army of the Potomac was awarded the prize for the best drilled Drum Major. General Grant awarded the prize in person, a fine baton.—National Chronicle The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, April 15, 1891

Harris, Robert M.	A A	Tragedy at Richmond Robert M. Harris, of Louisville, formerly of Richmond, was shot twice in the breast at the latter place last Friday afternoon by his brother-in-law, William Willis, a druggist of Richmond, formerly of Shelbyville. Willis' wife is Harris' sister, and there had been some trouble about settling up the Harris estate. The young gentlemen met on Lancaster Avenue in the residence portion of the town and nobody was near enough to hear any words of consequence. Willis gave himself up and was released on bail. Many of our readers will recall the romantic elopement of young Willis and Miss Harris from Louisville some weeks ago; Mr. Willis had become engaged to Miss Harris while she lived in Richmond, and her mother and brother moved to Louisville in order to separate her from him. But the young people were too fond of each other to let such a trifle as parental opposition come between them, hence the elopement. Since that time young Harris and his mother have been very harsh against Willis and even made threats of violence. The Winchester Democrat Wed. 4-13-1887

Harris, Wm.	The Richmond Climax tells of a contested will case in which former Clark county people are parties as follows: The will of Col. Wm. Harris was offered for probate at the July county court by the sole executor, Dr. J. W. Harris. A protest came from J. B. Harris and other relatives. A month's time was given for preparation. The case came up before County Judge Burnam yesterday, and was conducted by A. R. Burnam and S. D. Parrish for the contestants, and by Hon. C. F. Burnam for the defendant. The will was probated. The property amounts to about $3,000 and is willed in the main to Dr. Harris. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, August 9, 1895

Harrison, Carter		Carter Harrison, Mayor of Chicago, was called to his door and shot to death Saturday night by Patrick Prendergast, a carrier for Mr. Harrison's paper, The Times. The murderer is evidently crazy. Mr. Harrison was five times elected Mayor of Chicago as a Democrat and in face of a big Republican majority. At one time minister of every church in town preached a sermon against him on the eve of the election and every paper, of all shades of politics save his own paper opposed him. He was to have been married next Tuesday to a Southern lady. He was born in Fayette county and was related to the Lewises and others of this county. John Lewis, formerly from here, is business manager of his paper and Tracy Lewis, a brother is at the head of the illustrating department. Rev. Thos. P. Dudley, well known to many of our older people was Mayor Harrison's stepfather. The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, November 1, 1893
		ASSASINATED Mayor Harrison, of Chicago, Murdered on Cold Blood, He Sought Rest at His Home When the Assassin Stole Upon Him, Three Cruel Bullets Entered His Vital Parts—"I Did It," Said Eugene Patrick Prendergrast, as He Surrendered Himself to the City Police. Chicago, Oct. 30.—another crazy crank has done his deadly work and Carter H. Harrison, five times mayor of Chicago, and one of the best-known men in the west, lies dead in his home, No. 231 Sought Ashland Boulevard. Three bullets entered his body, two of them making wounds sufficient to cause death. The Murder was committed Saturday evening by Eugene Patrick Prendergast, a paper- carrier who declared that Mayor Harrison had promised to make him corporation counsel, and had not kept his word. That he said, was his only reason for committing the crime. The only persons in the house at the time besides Mr. Harrison were his son, William Preston Harrison, 25 years of age; his affianced wife, Miss Annie Howard and his servant. Shortly before 8 o'clock the doorbell rang and when Mary Hansen, the domestic, opened the door she was confronted by a man. "Is Mr. Harrison in?" asked the man, in a quiet, pleasant voice. "Yes sir," responded the girl as she threw the door wider open to permit his entrance. "I would like to see him, please," said the man, as he walked toward the back end of the hall. Mr. Harrison was in the dining room which opens into the rear end of the hall. Hearing the man ask for him, he arose, and stepped into the hall, walked toward Prendergast, who by the time he caught sight of Mr. Harrison, had advanced about ten feet from the doorway. Without saying a word, Prendergast drew his revolver and commenced to fire. He pulled the trigger but three times and every bullet hit the mark. One ball shattered Mr. Harrison's left hand another passed into the lower right side of the abdomen making a wound that would have been mortal within a few days; the third bullet entered the chest, slightly above the heart. This was the immediate cause of death.
		Running to the door the coachman was prepared to continue hostilities, but several people were entering to learn the cause of the shooting and by the time the coachman had reached the sidewalk, Prendergast had been swallowed up in the darkness. Across Ashland boulevard, directly opposite the residence of Mr. Harrison, is the home of W. J. Chalmers, the wealthy maker of mining machinery. Mr. Chalmers was standing upon the front steps of his residence when the shots were fired. He bounded down the steps and dashing across the street, met Mr. Prendergast almost out of the gate. "What is it?" said Mr. Chalmers. The man walked rapidly north on Ashland Avenue without replying, and Mr. Chalmers hastened into the house. He reached Mr. Harrison's side almost at the same instant that William Preston Harrison had found where his father lay. "Are you hurt?" asked Mr. Chalmers, as he and the son of the dying man strove to raise "I've got my death, Chalmers," responded the mayor Noticing a spot of blood on the mayor's waistcoat, Mr. Chalmers said: "I guess not." "I'm shot in the heart, and I'm a dead man." Was the only reply. A moment later he said with a voice which was rapidly losing strength: "Unbutton my vest, Chalmers. There's where the trouble is." By this time the stricken man had been borne to a couch in an adjoining room and as quickly as he spoke Mr. Chalmers opened his waistcoat. The front of the shirt was soaked with blood, which welled rapidly from two holes, one just above the heart, the other in his abdomen. "It's through the heart," said the mayor again, his voice scarcely above a whisper. A moment later he sank into unconsciousness and in twenty minutes after receiving the wounds Mr. Harrison was dead. The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, November 1, 1893 Miss Annie Howard, the affianced bride of the late Mayor Carter Harrison, is the only daughter of Chas. T. Howard, the lottery king. Mr. Howard was the original proprietor with John A. Morris, the big race-horse owner of the Louisville lottery, famous throughout the world. When he died he left his daughter $4,000,000. The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, November 1, 1893 Carter Harrison, who was so cowardly murdered in Chicago Saturday night, purchased a $12,000 diamond necklace last week to present to his bride-to-be, Miss Annie Howard. He also bought another diamond ornament which cost $3,000, for her. He was as tender in his devotion to his fiancee as a youth one-third his age, and took as much pleasure in selecting these presents as a schoolboy would be in choosing his first modest gift for his sweetheart. He and Miss Howard were to have been married vesterday. The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, November 8, 1893 The will of the late Carter H. Harrison, of Chicago, was made public Saturday. With exception of $10,000 donated to charitable institutions, the estate valued at $950,000 is to be divided equally between his four children at the expiration of two years. The Winchester Democrat, Wednesday, November 15, 1893 The trial of Pendergrast, the man who killed Mayor Carter Harrison is in progress in Chicago. The Winchester Democrat; Wednesday, December 6, 1893 Prendergrast, the murderer of Mayor Carter Harrison, was refused a new trial, and will be hanged March 23rd. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, March 2, 1894 The jury to investigate the sanity of Prendergrast, who killed Mayor Harrison, of Chicago, declared him sane and he is to be hung on the 13th. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, July 6, 1894 THE railroad riots and the bitter feeling engendered against the anarchists have cut off all hope of governmental clemency and Prendergrast, the slayer of Mayor Harrison will be hung today. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, July 13, 1894. Harrison, Carter Henry AFTERTHOUGHTS. In the Death of an Old Citizen.-Something of His Ancestry.-A Cyclopedia of local In our brief notice last week of the death of William P. Stubblefield we overlooked some important facts, and also were in error as to the given name of the deceased's father. William P. Stubblefield was the son of John Parker Stubblefield, who was a descendant of Gen. Anthony Parker, or Virginia. Gen. Parker was twice a member of the Continental Congress and also recruited and commanded a regiment in the Revolutionary War. John Parker Stubblefield was a first cousin of the late noted Baptist divine, Elder Thomas Parker Dudley, who was step-father to the late Carter Henry Harrison, of Chicago. William P. Stubblefield was one of the few remaining links connecting the past with the present. We have already referred to his retentive memory, extending back for over three-score years. He was familiar with all the important personages and events of local history; was accurate as to dates and situations, and that no record was kept of his reminiscences is additional cause for regret. The Sun-Sentinel, Thursday, December 17, 1903. Harrison, Cecil The Winchester Sun Sat., 2-17-1940 Harrison, Cleveland FREIGHT TRAINS COLLIDE. Two Men Were Killed and Four Injured, Two of Whom Can Not Survive at Nortonville. Nortonville, Ky., July 19.-Two freight trains on the Louisville & Nashville railroad collided here Thursday night, and as a result two were killed, two fatally hurt and two slightly injured. The collision was due to a conflict of dispatcher's orders. When the trains met they were running at a full rate of speed. E. M. Corbett, a brakeman, was caught in the wreck and instantly killed. His body was mangled beyond recognition.

Cleveland Harrison, a tramp who was riding in a box car, was killed. Two other tramps whose names cannot be learned, were in the car with him and were so badly injured that they cannot live until morning. The engineers of the trains James McGrath and William Porter jumped when the collision took place and were slightly bruised. The two engines were wrecked and 20 box cars destroyed. All trains are delayed as a result of the wreck, and the track is not expected to be cleared before late Friday morning. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, July 23, 1901.

Harrod, Carlos Harrod, E. L.	The Winchester Sun Mon., 9-25-1939 CITY, COUNTY, STATE-EX-Sheriff Van Arsdall who killed Dr. Harrod at
Hallou, E. E.	Harrodsburg, was committed to jail without bail at this examining trial on Wednesday. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, January 18, 1895.
	JOHN L. VARDSDALL, sheriff of Mercer county, shot and instantly killed Dr. E. L. Harrod at Harrodsburg Friday. The causes leading up to the killing are attributable to the recent election in that county. Van Arsdall was a candidate for re-election, and was opposed by the doctor. An anonymous circular, in which Van Arsdall was raked for an act in his domestic relations, was sent out. He was charged with throwing a bucket of water on his sick wife while she was in bed in order to make her get up and cook breakfast. It was also charged that he had unmercifully whipped his grown daughter with a club. Van Arsdall was defeated, for re-election by James, Republican. It was charged that
	Dr. Harrod was the author of this circular, as he had lived in the house with Van Arsdall and was a strong supporter of the sheriff in his first race. Dr. Harrod leaves a wife, formerly Miss Mary Wallace, daughter of the the late Thos. Wallace who lived not far from Pine Grove. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, January 18, 1895.
	CHAS. H. SULLIVAN, formerly of this county, has been selected to wind up the business of Sheriff Van Arsdall, of Mercer county, the latter being in jail for the murder of Dr. Harrod. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, February 5, 1895.
	The trial of ex-Sheriff Van Arsdall, of Harrodsburg, for the murder of Dr. Harrod, which has attracted much attention in all parts of the State, was concluded Saturday, the jury, bringing in a verdict of acquittal. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, February 26, 1895
	The Harrodsburg papers say that grave fears are entertained that the mental strain on the wife of Dr. Harrod, for whose murder ex-Sheriff Van Arsdall was recently acquitted, will prove too much for her reason. Mrs. Harrod was Miss Mary Wallace and was raised in Fayette near the Clark line. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, March 1, 1895
V. 1.6	Mrs. Mary Harrod, of Harrodsburg, has brought suit to recover the value of a two thousand dollar accident policy which her husband, Dr. E. L. Harrod, held at the time he was killed by Sheriff Van Arsdall. Mrs. Harrod was Miss Mary Walls before her marriage and was raised in Fayette county near the Clark line. Hart, Jesse G.	Death of James L. Allan.
Trait, sesse G.	James Louis Allan died at his home at Allansville Friday morning of typhoid fever, aged fifty-two years.
	He was the eldest son of Judge Frank S. and Elizabeth Allan, and had lived all his life in this county. He was twice married. His first wife was Miss Susie Oldham, daughter of Orthonile Oldham, of Madison county. She lived only a year or two and died without children. He afterward married Miss Sue Hart, daughter of the late Jesse G. Hart, who with three sons and three daughters survives him. The remains were interred in the cemetery here Saturday afternoon, services at the grave by Rev. B. B. Bailey, of the Baptist church, of which he had been a prominent member for many years. Winchester Lodge, No. 20, F. and A. M., also assisted in the funeral ceremonies. For many years he had been a devoted Mason and at the time of his death was a member of Winchester Lodge and also of Winchester Chapter Royal Arch Masons. Genial, courteous and polite, he was still a man of firm convictions and for years was the leader of the Democratic party in Goodes precinct when every election meant a hard fought battle.
	As a member of the County Committee for years his voice had great weight in the councils of his party. In every position, as husband, father, citizen, member of the church and lodge, he bore himself as a true man, and in his death Clark county loses on of her best men.

Hart, Joel T.	The Winchester Sun Wed., 9-21-1938
Hart, Joel Tanner	Perhaps the most widely known person whom Clark County has produced was Joel T.
	Hart, the sculptor.
	He was born near where J. N. Winn now lives on the 10 th day of February 1810. His father was a pioneer and located a survey of 800 acres, which included nearly all of the present limits of Winchester lying North of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad. His mother was Judith Tanner, who was descended from the best blood of Virginia and was herself a woman of mark.
	Hart's opportunities for an education were limited indeed. His father had been ruined by the rascality of an agent whom he trusted to collect the proceeds of a heavy shipment of produce to New Orleans, and had besides become a confirmed cripple as the result of an accidental fall. The State was then young and poor and could not recognize its obligation to provide for the education of its children. He went three months to a country school but was greatly assisted by his elder brothers who had fared better when
	, , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , , ,

their father was more prosperous.

He had however a heritage which many a more favored boy in worldly prospects might well have envied.

"What doth the poor man's son inherit?

Stout muscles and a sinewy heart,

A hardy frame, a hardier spirit;

King of two hands, he does his part

In every useful toil and art,

A heritage it seems to me

A king might wish to hold in fee."

Joel T. Hart had these endowments in rich profusion. He had great physical vigor, and early life, began to work for his own living. He took up the trade of a stonemason and was quite proficient in building chimneys. Quite a number of specimens of his skill still stand in Clark and Bourbon counties. He loved a good book and sought the society of the most intelligent and refined people wherever he went. He loved music and played well on the flute and violin. His habits were faultless and his manner agreeable and polite.

A short time after reaching manhood, he found employment in Pruden's marble yard at Lexington where he began to see a chance to carry out his cherished design of becoming a sculptor. Schobal V. Clevenger, the gifted young Ohioan who afterwards gave such promise of a great career, and died so young whilst on his way to Italy, came to Lexington about this time to model a bust of Henry Clay, and becoming acquainted with Hart, gave him much encouragement to follow his chosen career. Clevenger had been a stonecutter too, but had been fortunate enough to attract the attention of Nicholas Longworth the munificent patron of art in Cincinnati, who was afterwards generous in his assistance.

Hart took a course of lectures in anatomy at Transylvania University and spent every moment of spare time in such studies as would fit him to be an artist. Cassius M. Clay was his first patron and gave him a commission to make his bust in marble for which he paid him $500. In 1845, he went East and remained until the summer of 1846 in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Richmond, where some specimens of his work which he had taken with him were much admired. Through the influence of Henry Clay and other friends he was introduced to the best people wherever he went, and was greatly improved by his trip. He had several orders for work, and, among them was one from an Association of ladies at Richmond, Virginia, to execute a full statute of Clay in marble.

As soon as he returned to Lexington he began to prepare for this work and had every opportunity afforded him to study his subject. He sent to Cincinnati and had a daguerreotypes come and take pictures of Clay from every point of view. He made careful measurements of his body and limbs and then had plaster casts which could not be otherwise than accurate. In 1849, he went to Italy to complete his work and located at Florence. The clay model of Clay, which he had shipped as freight on a sailing vessel, was lost at sea, but, fortunately, he had left a duplicate at home, which finally reached him and was made the basis of the figure now in the rotunda of the Capitol at Richmond, and also of another which may be seen in the Courthouse at Louisville. When he got to Europe he found how imperfect had been his education, and set to work to repair its defects. He spent fourteen months in studying anatomy at London and Paris, and then stayed six months in Rome in the society of the best critics to be found in that great centre of art. He did not finish his statue of Clay until 1859, when he came back to America to deliver it to the Association. He visited friends in Clark and wherever he went received much attention.

He had whilst gone, made busts of Fillmore, Alexander Campbell, Crittenden, and other notable men, and had achieved a great reputation for an American artist. Before leaving home the first time, he had in his mind a ______ on which his chief claim to fame should rest. It has been worked out in the beautiful figure now to be seen in the Courthouse at Lexington, and known as "Woman Triumphant." It engaged many, many years of his time and was barely completed when he died in 1877.

The sculptor forms the model of his work in clay and it is then put in marble by workmen who make this a business. The artist gives the finishing touches, but genius does its part in creating the figures in material more plastie. Hart invented a machine, as he said, "for applying science to sculpture," and which enabled him to produce rapidly copies of great pieces of sculpture. It was frowned on by the artists, however and has never received the attention which its merits deserved.

Hart could paint a little and had a great facility for making verses. In his will, he expressed a desire that what he had written should be published in book form, but it has not been done. He took much interest in struggling young men who desired to become artists, and, among others took into his own studio a nephew named Robert Hart, who had been a stone cutter at Palmyra, Mo., and a stranger named Rinehart from Maryland, each of whom gave great promise, but died early.

Hart died and was buried at Florence, but our Legislature, at the instance of T. G. Stuart, sent for his remains in 1884 and had them re-interred in the State lot at Frankfort. The agitation consequent upon the effort to have his remains brought back to America, led to the formation of an Association of ladies at Lexington which finally succeeded in buying his masterpiece for the sum of $5,000 and placing it where it now stands in that city.

It is not claimed that Hart was a great inventive genius like Phidias or Michael Angelo, but his work has never been surpassed by any artist of the new world. His career is marvelous when we consider his opportunities and surroundings. Reared in the backwoods and with only three months of country schooling, he aspired to measure himself with the great artists of Europe, where they were surrounded by the noblest works of art and had all the advantages of the best schools and most cultivated society. That he should have succeeded as he did under such circumstances will always be a wonder.

Hiram Powers said that he was the best bust-maker the world has ever seen. He never married, but is believed to have had in early life an affair of the heart, which through a misunderstanding lent a tinge of sadness to his after life. He was a Jackson Democrat Except when Henry Clay was a candidate but was always opposed to slavery, and a Universalist in his religious belief. From his life let us gather a higher conception of the fine arts whose value and importance Joel T. Hart comprehended at a period when books and schoolhouses were scarce in the region where he lived and when the pioneers of this Commonwealth still walked the earth. If in this new land of ours we would encourage the gentle influences that sweeten life, strengthen the forces of law and order and bring men nearer to God, we must make the ideal arts familiar spirits; we must take them into our houses; we must teach them in our schools; we must encourage them by our laws; we must exhibit them in our landscapes; we must use them in our workshops and patronize them in the cities of our dead.

"Science does its duty," says Ruskin; not in telling us the causes of spots on the sun, but in explaining to us the laws of our own life and the consequences of their violation. Art does its duty, not in filling monster galleries with frivolous or dreadful indecent pictures, but in completing the comforts and refining the pleasures of daily occurrence and familiar service; and literature does its duty not in wasting our hours in political discussion of in idle fiction, but in raising our fancy to what may be noble, honest and felicitous in actual life; in giving us, though we may ourselves be poor and unknown, companionship of the wisest spirits of every age and country and in aiding the communication of clear thoughts and faithful purposes among distant nations which will at last breathe calm upon the sea of lawless passion and change into halcyon days the winter of the world that the birds of the air may have their nests in peace and the son of man where to lay his head."

The Winchester Democrat Wed., 2-20-1889

The Louisville Post is responsible for the following good one on our representative in the Legislature: Judge Beckner succeeded by a nice artifice in driving the House into a consideration of his bill to place a monument over Joel T. Hart by obtaining the floor and producing the manuscript of his speech on the occasion of the interment of Hart's remains. As soon as the members discovered the situation there was a cry from all quarters: "Hold up, Judge; don't read it and we'll all vote for the bill." The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, March 13, 1894.

THE bill appropriating $ 500.00 for a monument to Joel T. Hart, which passed the House some time ago, passed the Senate Thursday. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, March 13, 1894.

The following dispatch from Frankfort shows that tardy justice is being done to the memory of one of Clark county's gifted sons:

"Gov. Brown has selected a monument to mark the grave of Joel T. Hart, the Kentucky sculptor whose remains are buried in the cemetery here. The last Legislature passed a bill appropriating $500 for this purpose and authorizing the Governor to make a selection of design. This was delayed by reason of the suspension of the State Treasury. From among several designs submitted, Gov. Brown selected a fac-simile of the one erected at the grave of Prof. J. Lawrence Smith, of Louisville. It is of granite from Quincy, Mass., and all except the base will be polished. It will be six feet six inches in height and properly proportioned otherwise. It will be placed over the grave of Mr. Hart about the first of October. There will probably be a local ceremony at the unveiling." The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, August 6, 1895

Joel T. Har

The last Legislature appropriated $500 for the erection of a monument over Joel Hart's grave in the Frankfort Cemetery. Governor Brown selected the design some time ago, and awarded the contract to Muldoon, of Louisville. The work is nearly ready for the inscription, which the Legislature left to the Governor. Governor Brown requested several Kentuckians to write out for him a suitable inscription for the monument. Out of a number of suggestions received, the Governor has selected the following written by Robert Burns Wilson.

Seek him not here, but in the stone where He lives in his own art's immortality. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, October 22, 1895

Work on the foundation of the Joel T. Hart monument at Frankfort is in progress. Kentucky has been a long time in providing a monument for this gifted son of hers, but it will now soon be done.

The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, December 24, 1895

Editor J. G. Craddock, of the Paris Kentuckian-Citizen, is endeavoring to locate the exact birthplace of Joel T. Hart, the famous Kentucky sculptor, in Flat Lick precinct, Bourbon county, and also the stone fences and chimneys built by Hart in his youthful days.

The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, January 26, 1897

CRADDOCK, has grossly offended the people of Clark by making inquiry for "the exact place where Joel T. Hart was born in Flat Lick precinct, Bourbon county" The Colonel will get another collar bone broken if he makes another such pass at the Clarkites.-Richmond Register

The Winchester Democrat. Tuesday, February 16, 1897.

Joel T. Hart's Birthplace

To case Colonel Craddock's anxiety concerning the birthplace of Joel T. Hart, the famous sculptor, we desire to inform him that Hart was not born Bourbon county but in Clark. The site of the house which he was born is near a famous spring on Col. Nick Winn's farm, adjoining the city limits of Winchester. There has never been any doubts among his relatives on this point. Specimens of his skill as a stone mason are still extant.

The Winchester Democrat. Tuesday, February 16, 1897.

Craddock Not Convinced

According to ancient history, seven cities claimed the honorable distinction of being the birthplace of the immortal Greek poet, Homer, and now, in these later days, two counties (Bourbon and Clark), each claim that Joel Tanner Hart, the great sculptor, was born on their soil....When Hart was in Paris for the last time en route for Italy, where he died, we heard him say in conversation with his friend, the late Richard H. Hanson, who asked his opinion of Powers "Greek Slave." "Well," replied Hart, "I find but one fault in that great work—not sufficient breadth of hips for a perfect woman.—Paris Kentuckian-Citizen

The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, February 23, 1897

Hon. Thomas G. Stuart, Representative from Clark county, brother of Mrs. French Tipton, of this place, introduced the bill in the Legislature that secured the appropriation for bringing the remains of sculptor Joel T. Hart from Florence, Italy, to Frankfort, Ky., and Judge Charles E. Kincaid was sent to Italy to carry out the provisions of the bill. Hart was an old friend of Mr. Stuart's mother; they living in the same locality in Clark, and he made a model of her arm which he used in the production of the statue.— Richmond Register.

The Winchester Democrat, Friday, May 21, 1897

More sorrow is expressed here for the destruction of Joel T. Hart's great statue, than for the burning of the Lexington courthouse. The model from which it was made is said to be still in existence at Florence, Italy, and the ladies of the Hart Memorial Association are taking steps to have a copy of the great work made.

The Winchester Democrat, Friday, May 21, 1897

A correspondent says of the Hart statue that was destroyed by the burning of the Lexington Courthouse: "The loss of the famous piece of sculpture, known as "Woman Triumphant," has cast a gloom over the entire bluegrass region, which will be shared by the lovers of the beautiful in art all over the United States. It was the masterful of that famous Kentucky sculptor, Joel T. Hart, who was born in Clark county in 1810, and died in Florence, Italy, in 1877. The art correspondent of the London Athenaeum once said that it was the finest work in existence. Hart was offered $20,000 for the piece before it was finished. It was sold after his death and became the property of the Tiffany's, New York, who in turn disposed of it to the ladies of the Hart Memorial Association, of Lexington, of which Mrs. W. C. P. Breckinridge, now dead, was the President."

The Winchester Democrat, Friday, May 21, 1897

A WIDESPREAD uncertainty exists regarding the proper title of the Joel T. Hart's celebrated statue, which was destroyed recently in the burning Courthouse in Lexington. Those who strive to be exact in the matter maintain that it was the "Triumph of Chastity" while it is generally called the "Woman Triumphant". In fact, both are right, for it was originally known by the former title, but it is really the "Woman Triumphant". The confusion dates back to the time when the sculptor began working on the model. He planned it and always referred to it as the "Triumph of Chastity", until he began working in the marble. Then he changed the name and in the first cause of the sculptors will the matter definitely thus: I desire as a most important item hereinto mentioned that a life size ideal group of mine, casting an adult nude female with a male child, which I name "Woman Triumphant", now far advanced in the marble shall be, as soon as practicable, elegantly finished, with my name and the date engraved on the plinth." Nevertheless the statue is always referred to in Florence by the name Hart first Joel, but it has always borne the true title since it has been in America. The reason for the change is obvious. "The Triumph of Chastity" is really a misleader, for it is a folly that a woman surrender to the power of true love detracts from her chastity. Hart's meaning is too clearly expressed to admit any mistake. His ideal was his proof against Cupid's random arrows-but no ideal can be proof against true love and be a woman. Besides, the influence of sunny Italy is in a measure responsible for the use of the original phrase. It is entirely out of place in America, where the "Woman Triumphant" expressed adequately the sculptor's true thought infinitely better than the other, which could be tolerated, only as it was really designed. Therefore, whatever may be the opinions Florentine artists, and those who seek exactness, the fact remains that by the master himself, was and is and shall be the true designation of masterpiece.—Courier Journal The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, May 24, 1897.

The model of Joel T. Hart's "Woman Triumphant" has been lost, and it will be impossible to replace the statue destroyed in the burning of the Courthouse at Lexington. The model was destroyed five years after Mr. Hart's death. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, June 25, 1897

Inspired by Hart's Masterpiece.

Last fall Mr. James Nelson, of this county, took his young son, Johnnie to Lexington to hear Bryan speak. While there the youngster was taken to see Hart's Triumph of Chastity, and it was explained to him how the figure was chisled out of solid marble. It made such an impression on the boy that when he came home he secured a common rock, polished it, and with a nail and a chisel, carved a Bible which is a wonderful piece of work, every detail, to the lettering and the clasp being perfect. Since then he has done other work just as remarkable, and has molded the face and head of a man out of plaster of paris that has been pronounced a splendid piece of work. He is a marvel and should be given a chance to fully develop his talent.-Harrodsburg Democrat. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, August 17, 1897.

Hart Memorial Spoon

The Hart Memorial Association, met at Lexington Saturday, to take steps for the reproduction of the Statue, Woman Triumphant. Miss Elizabeth Winn, of this city, submitted a design, of which The Argonaut says: "Miss Elizabeth Winn, of Winchester, has drawn the design for an elegant Hart Memorial Spoon, which a Cincinnati firm proposes to make and sell so as to allow a liberal margin to the association if approved. A picture of Joel T. Hart is on the handle and a relief cut of Woman Triumphant in the bowl. A plaque has also been designed bearing the face of the sculptor and the statue. These were exhibited at the meeting.

Model Discovered

The model of Joel Hart's famous statue, "Woman Triumphant," has been discovered in Florence by W. W. Polk, of San Francisco, and it is now stated that the statue will be restored. The original was destroyed by fire when the Fayette county Courthouse was burned.

Sculptor Hart's Tutor Dead

Lexington, Ky., June 13

M. Pruden died here, aged 84 years. He was the pioneer monument builder of this place. He was the tutor of the famous Kentucky sculptor, Joel T. Hart. The Winchester Democrat Fri., June 19, 1903

He Got The Book.

Apropos of the death of Gen. Cash Clay a correspondent sends in the following: "Under an act of the Legislature the remains of Joel T. Hart, the famous Kentucky sculpture were brought from Florence, Italy, where he died, and buried by the State in the Cemetery at Frankfort. Gov. Proctor Knott invited Judge W. M. Beckner to deliver an address on the occasion of the final interment. Judge Beckner wrote to Italy and to New York, Philadelphia and other places for information concerning Mr. Hart and his work. Among others he addressed a letter to Gen. Clay, who had been Hart's first patron as a sculptor, asking his recollections of the dead artist. He got an answer on a postal card, the substance of which was that the General had put all he cared to say about Joel T. Hart into his memoirs, which had been published and were being sold at $6 per volume. Judge Beckner immediately sat down and wrote him as follows: "I received your curt advertisement of your book written on a postal and must say that I was surprised. If you had been spending as much time and energy to do honor to a dead friend of mine as I have been to pay a public tribute to one who was as devoted to you as was Joel T. Hart, and I had written as good a book as they say you have, and you were as poor as I am, and I as rich as you are supposed to be and you wrote me for facts about my friend which I had put into print in my book. I would send you a copy, even it it's price should be so enormous a sum as $6."

The next mail brought to Judge Beckner the following reply:

"White Hall, Ky., April 12, 1887.—Dear Judge, I have ordered the Memoirs to be sent you. If you plead all your cases as well you will be rich enough yet. Yours. "C. M. Clay"

Hart's masterpiece

When Joel T. Hart's famous statue was burned in the Lexington Court House the loss was thought to be irremediable, but it is learned that the clay model from which he formed it is still in existence in Italy and a movement is on foot to have a duplicate made and brought to Lexington. The next Legislature will probably be asked for an appropriation for that purpose.

	A week or two ago it was rumored in the vicinity of Elkin that a Negro man named Jack Vivion had made a criminal assault on Lydia Hart, eleven years old, the step daughter of Pleasant Woolums, who lives near there. Nothing was done about the matter at the time as the Negro's guilt was not clearly established. Since that time the girl died of pneumonia, and after her death, it was reported that the assault was the cause of death. Threats of lynching were freely indulged in and would probably have been carried out had not the Negro suddenly left for parts unknown. The Winchester Democrat Wed., 2-29-1888

Hart, William C.	William Hart Murdered. William C. Hart, a printer, from Lebanon, Ohio, came to this city several months ago, and obtained work in this office for a few weeks, and afterwards in The Sun office, where he remained for some time, and in July he went to Shelbyville where he has since lived. Last Saturday night he went to the home of Annie Fields, a tough negro joint, in response to a note sent him by the woman. Shortly afterward he was found in the road near by with his skull crushed. A search showed blood on the floor of the Fields woman's home and a rock on the floor. She was arrested as was two negro boys, Clarence Garnett, aged fifteen, and Jimbo Fields aged nineteen. They confessed that they had beaten him, but did not think they had hurt him much. They were indicted for the murder Monday, but that night a mob provided with ropes went to the jail for the purpose of hanging them. The Jailer heard them coming and slipped out the back way with the keys and the mob was unable to gain an entrance. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, September 27, 1901

	Lynching Feared. Jail at Shelbyville Containing Anna and Jimbo Field and Clarence Garnett Guarded. Louisville, Ky., Sept. 26.—The jail at Shelbyville is being heavily guarded to prevent the lynching of Anna Field, a Negro woman and Jimbo Field and Clarence Garnett, Negro boys. William Hart, a printer, was found dying in a path leading to the Field house Saturday night. The two boys have confessed to the murder and all three have been indicted. Monday night 40 masked men made an attack on the jail and succeeded in breaking the door and getting into the corridors, but they could not get into the prisoner's cage. The jailer summoned a posse and managed to beat them off. The threats continue.
	The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, October 1, 1901 Murderers Lynched. In a late issue we published an account of the murder at Shelbyville of Will C. Hart, lately a printer in this office. Clarence Garnett and Jimbo Fields, two negro boys, sixteen and eighteen years of age, beat him to death with rocks. They were arrested and placed in jail and an attempt was made at the time to lynch them, but without success. The jail was guarded for some time, but as time passed and nothing more was heard of a mob, the guards were dismissed. Tuesday night a mob went quietly to the jail and asked for the keys. The Jailer refused to give them up, when the mob broke down the door and entered. The two young murderers were taken to the C. & O. trestle and hung, when the mob quietly dispersed. The authorities say none of the mob were recognized. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, October 4, 1901
	Died Of Fright When Clarence Garnett and Jimbo Fields, the two negro boys charged with the murder of the printer, Will Hart, at Shelbyville, were lynched last week, the wife of the Jailer was so badly frightened that the services of a physician were required. She grew worse and a day or two ago she died, obviously from the effects of the fright. The Winchester Democrat Fri., Oct. 11, 1901

Nothing more was seen of him until Friday morning when his body was found in his cistern. Hartman had removed his cistern cover and plunged in. No cause for the rash act is known.

	accidental burning of some valuable papers, together with heavy drinking, are supposed to have been the cause of the act.

	It Was Continued in the Army—Thirty-First Regiment Soldier Reported Fatally Shot by One of the Bakers. Williamsburg, Ky., Oct. 19.—According to a report received here the Baker-McCoy feud has suddenly been transferred from Clay county, Kentucky, to the military post at San Francisco. The information is that on last Tuesday one of the Bakers shot and mortally wounded a McCoy at that place. About a month ago a number of the Clay county feudists left Manchester and joined the army and were mustered into the 31 st regiment, now under quarantine at the presidio. The regiment is composed almost entirely of Kentuckians. The story is that one of the McCoys attacked a Baker and was beating him up, when Baker drew his revolver, and shot McCoy in the right groin, hand and leg. Baker was arrested and ordered to attend a court-martial. McCoy can not survive. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, October 24, 1899

	Leeland Hathaway
	At a called meeting of the members of the General John S. Williams' Camp of Confederate Veterans held at the Court house on Saturday, November 6, B.F. Curtis, Commander in the chair, the following resolutions and notice of death of members was passed, and ordered printed. Whereas it has pleased God to call from among us our dear friends and co-workers Lieut. Ellis G. Baxter and Capt. Leeland Hathaway, and in our association together as members of this Camp of Confederates of this city they have endeared themselves to us by their wise council and unflinching devotions to duty; therefore be it, Resolved by this Camp first that in the death of our two brothers our camp has sustained irreparable loss in that two of its most faithful and efficient members have been called away from us. And we now pledge ourselves anew to a more diligent effort in the work left for us to do, and we will further pledge ourselves to ever keep green the memory of our two faithful and devoted brothers who in their lives were always ready to act for this camp, and the cause it represents. Resolved, second, that we extend our sympathy to the family of Brother Baxter and the daughter of Capt.
	Hathaway and pray that the Holy Spirit may comfort and sustain them in this, their time of great sorrow. Resolved, third, that a copy of the proceedings of this meeting be sent

	Death, the common enemy of our race, has again invaded our rank, and another loved comrade has fallen. Another Confederate tried and true, "has passed over the river and rests under the shade of the trees." Captain Leeland Hathaway was a native of Montgomery county, Ky., and entered the Confederate Army from that county. Under the foolish idea of neutrality (a Yankee scheme to prevent Southern men from joining the Confederacy) it was hazardous to undertake it and the Captain had to fight home guards before reaching the command he had intended to join. He succeeded however, in reaching General John H. Morgan's command then located in Tennessee, and was soon thereafter made Adjutant of the Ninth Kentucky Calvary. He was captured on Morgan's

He grew up in western Kentucky and remained there until he joined the United States Marine Corps in 1944, one day after his high school graduation. As part of the "Greatest Generation," Elton selflessly served his country not for fame or recognition, but because it was the right thing to do. He served on Okinawa, and was decorated with a Purple Heart and the Distinguished Navy Cross, the country's second highest military honor, for his heroism during the Battle of Okinawa, often called the last great battle of World War II. Returning home, he went to Kentucky Weslyan College, where he graduated with a degree in history. He worked at Blue Grass Army Depot, where he retired after 28 years. Upon retirement, Elton and Betty operated Frames and Such in Winchester for 20 years. After his second retirement, Elton and Betty spent several winters in Florida, where he indulged his love of golf. Upon returning to Kentucky full time, he continued golfing and making sure the greens were well manicured at Southwind Golf Course. Elton loved his children and grandchildren, and attended countless sporting events and activities with great enthusiasm. He also enjoyed mowing, hunting, a good western and a well-told story. His family deeply mourns his passing, but consider themselves privileged to have shared his life. The Winchester Sun Fri., 7-24, 7-31-1931 Hatley, Rick

Rev. Rick Hatley, 60, a long-time Kentucky Baptist pastor and denominational worker, died Feb. 1, 2022 at Jennie Stuart Hospital in Hopkinsville, KY. Rev. Hatley was born on May 4, 1961 in Madisonville, KY to Richard and Ruby Hatley.

"Rick Hatley was a friend and a great Kentucky Baptist pastor," said Todd Gray, Kentucky Baptist Convention executive director-treasurer. "In my time with the Kentucky Baptist Convention, I was able to get to know him, preach in two of the churches he served and work with him in other capacities. Kentucky Baptists will miss him, and I will personally miss him. My family and I continue to pray for Carol and their family."

Hatley pastored Crofton Baptist Church for the past six years. Previous to that role, he was pastor of High Point Baptist Church in Mayfield and First Baptist in Pinckneyville, Ill.; director of missions for the Pulaski Baptist Association, Somerset; associate pastor/minister of education of both Central Baptist churches in Winchester and Corbin. He also was associate pastor of First Baptist Church, Marion, Ill.

Additionally he was associate executive director of the West Virginia Convention of Southern Baptists. He was saved and baptized at age 10 at First Baptist Dawson Springs, and he served in many capacities of Baptist ministry for 36 years.

Denominationally, he served as vice president of the Kentucky Baptist Convention and was a long-time trustee of Clear Creek Baptist Bible College. He was also trustee of LifeWay Christian Resources (Baptist Sunday School Board) and numerous association, state conventions and Southern Baptist positions.

Hatley was a graduate of Dawson Springs High School, where he was senior class president. He earned a bachelor of science degree at Murray State University, where he was president of the BSU for two years. He held both master of arts and master of theology degrees from The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville.

	Rev. Hatley is survived by his wife of 38 years, Carol Sears Hatley; parents, Richard and Ruby Hatley; Dawson Springs; brother Randy (Kim) Hatley, Franklin, Tenn; three daughters: Jessica (Jim) Adkins, Murray; Jennifer (Craig) Kemp, Bowling Green; Emily (Kody) Fox, Henderson; four granddaughters: Julie Beth Adkins, Joanna Ruth Adkins, Jane Katherine Adkins and Harper Lynn Kemp.
	Visitation for Rev. Rick Hatley will be on Sunday, February 6, 2022 from 4:00 – 8:00 PM at and on Monday, February 7, 2022 from 11:00 AM -1:00 PM at Crofton Baptist Church, 155 College Street, Crofton, KY 42217. The Funeral Service will be at 1:00 PM on Monday, February 7, 2022 at Crofton Baptist Church with Rev. Don Mathis and Rev. Dennis Wainwright officiating. Burial will follow in Rosedale Cemetery in Dawson Springs, KY.
	In an effort to deter the spread of covid-19 social distancing is heavily recommended. The family has requested that face masks be worn by everyone attending the visitation and service.
	Memorial contributions can be made to Clear Creek Baptist Bible College, "In Memory of Rick Hatley" and designated to church summer camp projects, 300 Clear Creek Road, Pineville, KY 40977.
	Rev. Hatley's service will be streamed live on Beshear Funeral Home Facebook beginning at 1:00 PM CST on February 7, 2022. (To view: "Google" beshearfuneralhomefacebook and select "videos" among the menu options).
	Beshear Funeral Home in Dawson Springs is in charge of arrangements.

Hatton, daughter	The case of Mrs. Hatton against the C. & O. R'y for damages for the loss of a leg, is now before the Court. She was run over by a train at the depot in the summer of 1892. Her little girl was killed at the same time and an action against the railroad on that account is now pending. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, February 15, 1895.
	Circuit Court The attention of the Circuit Court was engrossed by the trial of the case of Mrs. Hatton against the railroad until Saturday. It was generally agreed that she would get damages the only question being the amount. After deliberating for some time they agreed upon $ 7,000 and brought in a verdict to that effect. The attorneys for the railroad at once made a motion for a new trial which was overruled and the case will be appealed.

	Circuit Court
	The close of the Asher case was followed by the immediate consideration of another big case—the Wills will case. This will probably be decided by tomorrow. The damage cases against the railroad, arising from the death of little Susie Hatton, who was run over and killed, are set for tomorrow. The case now on trial has been before our court before. It was decided in favor of those holding under the will, but was reversed by the Court of Appeals, which ruled that Judge Morton had erred in not instructing the jury that they could sustain a part of the will and not sustain the whole.
	The following new jurors have been summoned this week to take the place of the same

	Yesterday was consumed by the trial of the suit for $10,000 damages by Mrs. Lou Hatton, of Knox county, against the K. C. railroad. In August, 1892, Mrs. Hatton was on her way from Knox county to visit relatives in Powell county. She got off the train here and started to cross the track on her way to the K. U. depot, when she was run over and her leg was cut off. Her little daughter was killed. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, June 1, 1894

	Circuit Court
	The four weeks term of Circuit Court was finished Saturday, and lawyers and litigants will have a much needed rest. The case of Mrs. Lou Hatton against the railroad which was before the Court at the time of our last issue resulted in a hung jury; seven were for damages from $300 to $10,000, and five were for nothing. The Winchester Democrat, Tuesday, June 5, 1894 Yesterday the case of Hatton vs. the C. & O road was called, but was continued on behalf of the railroad. This is a case for damages growing out of the killing of little Susie Hatton and cutting off of her mother's leg some two years ago. The Winchester Democrat, Friday, October 19, 1894.
	A few years ago Mrs. Lou Hatton and little daughter, Susie Hatton, of Knox county, were run over by a C. and O. train at the depot. The little girl was killed and Mrs.
	Hatton lost a leg. Suit was brought for ten thousand dollars for the injury done Mrs. Hatton and $1,999 for the killing of the child. The first case was tried here at the last term of Circuit Court and Mrs. Hatton got a verdict for seven thousand dollars. The company appealed and since then both cases have been compromised by the payment of $5,500.

A DISPATCH from Stanton of Wednesday says: "Elisha Morris indicted for the murder of William Hatton, Christmas day, 1888, jointly with Thomas Baker, now serving a life sentence at Frankfort for the same offense, was tried in the Powell Circuit Court to-day and acquitted. The jury was out only five minutes. George Miller, of Clark county, an important witness, testified that he was present at the difficult, and that Morris positively had no weapon at the time of the fight, and that Baker did not shoot Hatton until after Hatton fired first at Baker. Morris and Baker are half brothers. The testimony of Miller was substantiated by several others. Miller said the reason he did not appear at the Baker trial was that he had not been summoned and that he had been informed that two indictments had been found against him for carrying concealed weapons and that he was afraid of arrest if he appeared in Powell. An effort will be made at one to get a pardon for Baker. The Democrat, Wednesday, September 28, 1892. Hay, John	Death of John Hay.
	The Greatest Diplomat in the World Passes Away.
	At an early hour Saturday morning the life of John Hay ended. The following is a brief sketch of his career:
	He was a native of Indiana, having been born at Salem, Ind., October 8, 1838. His early education was received in the schools at Warsaw, Ill., and his academic education begun at Springfield, Ill., was completed at Brown, where he was graduated in 1858 with the degree of A. M. and L. L. D. and was also an I. L. D. of Princeton, Yale, Harvard and the Eastern Reserve Universities. He was admitted to the Illinois bar and was one of the private secretaries of President Lincoln. He was also Brevet colonel of Unites States volunteers and Assistant Adjutant General. Later he was secretary at various times of the legations at Paris, Madrid and Vienna and was Charge d'Affaires at the latter place.
	From 1879 to 1881 he was First Assistant Secretary of State, and in 1881 was Presidennt of the International Sanitary Conference. He was appointed Ambassador to England in 1897, but after serving but a short time was called to the United States to become Secretary of State, the position which he held at the time of his death. In addition to his fame as a diplomat and lawyer, he was a writer of ability, and was on the editorial staff of the New York Tribune for five years. He was also an author and a poet. For some years he had been considered the leading diplomat of the world and his triumphs in his special work were numerous, his greatest probably having been the securing of the repeal of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, which had caused misunderstanding between this country and England for half a century. Probably the greatest of all of his achievements as far as the whole world was concerned was his securing the consent of the Japanese and Russians to limiting the zone of fighting thus preventing China from becoming involved and guaranteeing its neutrality. During his administration, he has been regarded by the civilized world as its greatest diplomat of the age. He was authority on all internal questions. The funeral services were held at Cleveland yesterday. The President issued a proclamation and all American flags throughout the world were at half staff. The Sun-Sentinel, Thursday, July 6, 1905

The fight was between James Hayes and his four sons on one side, and Senator William Clarke, Sherman Leadford and others. The battle occurred on the streets. Senator Clarke was shot three times. There is no hope for his recovery. One of the Hayes boys had the contents of a double barreled shotgun emptied into him. He will die. Bad blood had existed between the families for a number of years. Clarke is the present senator from the Seventeenth senatorial district. It is feared this will develop into one of the worst feuds in the mountains. 	DEATH OF JOHN HAYES; John Hayes, the well-known grocer and coal merchant, died at his home on Sixth and Limestone streets Sunday night at 11 o'clock, aged fifty-three years.
	Mr. Hayes had been sick for three months and suffered the pains of many deaths. John Hayes was an honest, hard working, plain out spoken Irishman, and never proved false to his friends, and never went back on the poor. By strict attention to business and hard work, he accumulated quite a handsome estate and he will be sadly mistaken by many people in Lexington.
	John Hayes went through life on crutches, but he was ever jovial and good natured. That hearty laugh, known and appreciated by as many, will be missed, but never forgotten. He has gone far from the walks of men and there is no doubt but what he is better off, as he is relieved of all suffering.
	Mr. Hayes was married to Mrs. Norton, eighteen years ago, and she with six children by her first husband survives him. The funeral took place from St. Paul's church Tuesday morning. And was attended by a large concourse of relatives and friends.—Lexington Transcript

Hayes, Walter Prewitt	Walter Prewitt Hayes, 84, formerly of Winchester, passed away on Aug. 25 in Frankfort. He had suffered with Alzhemer's disease and contracted COVID-19, which caused his death.
	He was born to John Prewitt Hayes and Elizabeth Hackett Hayes in Clark County in May 28, 1936. In 1954, Walter graduated from St. Agatha Academy, Winchester, Ky., where he played on the basketball team. He entered the Navy in 1954 and attended radio school in Bainbridge, Maryland. He played basketball on Little Creek naval base team for four years. He attended Transylvania University. He was employed for 39 years, spending 10 years in Raleigh, N.C. with IBM, Walter was involved in many organization and community activities throughout this life. He was involved in Boy Scouts for many years, earning his Eagle Scout and becoming a member of the Order of the Arrow. He later was a Scoutmaster for bout Scouts Troop No. 54. He was a past president of the Clark County Fish and Game Club, and also past president of the Winchester Country Club. Golfing was his favorite hobby, and he played in many tournaments over the years.
	First Christian Church in Winchester presented Walter with a Distinguished Laymen award for his leadership as chairman of the board in 1982. He served there as a deacon and elder for many years, and was a past chairman of the board.
	At Calvary Christian Church, he served as a deacon and as building chairman and oversaw the building of the new sanctuary. At the time of his death, Walter was a member of the Sand Spring Baptist Church in Lawrenceburg. He was a longtime chour member and loved singing in church choirs.
	He also served on the Clark County school board and was a past chairman of the board. The Clark County school system commissioned Walter in 1986 as honorary member of Trapp Elementary School PTA. During his time on school board, both Strode Station Elementary and Clark Middle School were built. Walter was also active with Hospice and many cancer awareness initiatives during his wife's illness, until her death. He was commissioned a Kentucky Colonel in 1966 and again in 2015. He managed the Central Kentucky Monument Company for several years until retirement in 1997. Walter married Judy Averitt Hayes in 1958, who preceded him in death. He is survived by his loving wife of 12 years, Kay McDaniel Hayes, Lawrenceburg; his two daughters, Nancy Hayes Kirk and Beth Hayes (Jeff) Summay of Zenica, Bosnia-Herzegovina; five grandchildren and two-great grandchildren; and two stepchildren, Wayne McDaniel and Pam (Gary) Martin. He is also survived by beloved cousins, a niece and several greatnieces and a nephew.
	The family would like to thank the Frankfort Regional Medical Center for their excellent and compassionate care, especially the hospice nurses. Because of the COVID-19 pandemic, a private graveside service will be held for the family on Saturday, Aug. 29 at 1:30 p.m. In lieu of flowers, please send donations to Hospice East, 407 Shoppers Drive, Winchester, KY 40391.

Hays, Joseph E.
	Joseph E. Hays died Friday at the home of his son, J. Smith Hays, on South Maple street, aged sixty-five years. The funeral was preached Saturday at the residence by Eld.
	C. J. Armstrong and the remains were interred at the Winchester cemetery.
	Mr. Hays was raised in Knox county, but some years ago he moved to Boone county, Missouri. Some six weeks ago he came on a visit to Kentucky and for the past three weeks has been here. His death was due to quick tuberculosis, or congestion of the lungs. His wife and son, Thomas B. Hays, of Missouri, his son, Dr. George Hays and daughter, Miss Elizabeth Hays, of Highlands, North Carolina, and his brother, Hon. N.
	B. Hays, of Barbourville, were here to attend the funeral.
	The deceased had never been an office holder, though a man of strong convictions. He was a Confederate soldier under Morgan during the late war and had long been a consistent member of the Christian church.

	Mr. Joseph E. Hays, aged 65 years, died at the residence of his son, J. Smith Hays, in this city, Friday last.
	Mr. Hays was a native of Knox county, this State, but had been living in Boone county, Mo., for a number of years and was on a visit to his children when taken ill. The burial was at the cemetery here Saturday. Services by Elder C. J. Armstrong. Mr. Hays was a man of noble character. His brother, N. B. Hays of Pineville was here, also his five sons, J. Smith, of this city, Thos., of Missouri, James of Knox county, John, of Garrard county, and Dr. William, of Higland, N. C., and his daughter, Miss Elizabeth. Another daughter was unable to come. His wife came on from Missouri, but arrived too late to see her husband alive.

	Family and friends will be received at the church beginning at 12 p.m. on Monday, and are invited to a luncheon to be held at the church immediately following the service. A private burial will be observed. Ms. Hays passed away Sunday, Nov. 18, 2012, at her residence. Sylvia was born July 21, 1939, in Franklin County to the late Michael Benjamin and Carol Rose Marko Solheim. After graduation from high school, she attended the University of Kentucky. After retiring from state government, she became an avid bridge player who also enjoyed opera. She was actively involved in her community by volunteering at the Franklin County Senior Citizens Center, Salvation Army and Grand Theater. A deacon and member of First Christian Church, Sylvia was also a volunteer in their preschool activities. To share her passion for gardening, she joined the Garden Club of Frankfort. In addition, she was a member of the Kentucky Historical Society and the Red Hat Society. She is survived by a brother, Roger Michael (Martha) Solheim; brother-in-law, Ron Walpert; numerous nieces and nephews; and her special feline companion, Missy. In addition to her parents, she was preceded in death by her twin sister, Sandra S. Walpert, and husband of 30 years, Frank

Hazel, Rose Hazelett, Newton	The Winchester Sun Mon., 3-11-1918 Killing of Newton Hazelitt In Shelby county, Newton Hazelitt was found dead by the side of the road. His pistol had been fired twice and other cartridges had failed to explode. He was outspoken against the Equity movement and at once it was said the "night riders" had killed him. A neighbor, Walker Duncan, now admits he killed him. Duncan and two other friends were guarding the former's barn, fearing an attack from the "night riders." Hazelitt came down the road alone and he and Duncan got into a shooting scrape without knowing who each other were, and Hazelitt was killed. The "night riders" had nothing to do with it. 	To pardon Hazelett's slayer Said that Governor will free man who killed a supposed "Rider" Frankfort, Ky., - Within the next few days Gov. Willson is expected to grant a pardon to Walter Duncan of Jacksonville, Shelby county, who is under indictment in the Shelby Circuit court for the murder of Newton Hazelett. In granting the pardon Gov. Willson will be fulfilling his promise to the members of the Law and Order League and other such organizations to pardon them in case they killed riders trespassing upon property. The instructions of the governor to persons who desired to grow tobacco was to defend their homes and if a killing occurred in doing so a pardon would be granted. Duncan is ill with Bright's disease, and the chances are that he will not recover to stand trial. The Winchester Democrat Tuesday, August 11, 1908

Head, George	Accidently Killed
	George Head, the nineteen-year-old son of James Head, of Level Green, in Rockcastle county, was killed by his own gun Saturday night near the church at that place. Head had been hunting until a late hour, and wishing to attend church he placed his gun under a brush pile and after preaching was over, he accompanied a young lady to her home.
	He was found the next day near the brush pile, not far from the church, where in attempting to pull out his gun from the brush it was discharged, tearing a great hole in his breast.
